League Fears Aroused as Japan and Soviet Breach Widens.

Tokyo Believed Ready to Force Chinese Rail Issue to Head.

Geneva, Oct. 11 (U.P.).—Deep concern was expressed in League of Nations quarters today over increasing tension between Soviet Russia and Japan.

The opinion prevailed, however, that the Soviet leaders would do their utmost to avoid a break with Tokio. They fear, on the other hand, that the Japanese may decide it is better to provoke a conflict now because the Soviet army later may be better prepared to contest the Japanese program in the Far East.

Furthermore, the league delegates fear this tension may strengthen Japan's resistance to every proposal affecting her armaments—and if Japan continues to refuse to agree to arms control, it was admitted probable the United States and Russia, among other powers, would be compelled to do likewise, wrecking the arms conference opening next week, before it starts.

Berlin Not Alarmed.

The United Press Bureau at Berlin reported the Russo-Japanese tension was viewed calmly there. The Germans saw no immediate war danger, holding the internal situation in Russia made it impossible for the Soviet chieftains to send most of their Red army across Asia.

Moscow, Oct. 11 (U.P.).—Breach of diplomatic relations between Soviet Russia and Japan over the Chinese Eastern Railway dispute in Manchuria was feared in well-informed quarters today.

Soviet officials intimated that Russo-Japanese relations have taken a decidedly serious turn with Moscow's publication of allegedly "confidential" Japanese diplomatic reports presumably intercepted by the Soviet Intelligence Service.

These four documents purported to show that Tokyo was fomenting dissension in Manchuria looking to seizure by Manchukuo of the Chinese Eastern properties, now jointly held by Manchukuo and Soviet Russia.

Moscow Blames Japan.

Manchukuo took over its half when Manchuria was wrested from the rest of China. China and Russia originally jointly owned the strategic railway in North Manchuria.

In this game of "grab and grab again," Moscow is determined to hold her own, and Soviet leaders hold Japan directly responsible for the alleged plot to seize the C. E. R.

The Russians maintain the first steps of this purported plot were carried out by the arrests of Soviet officials on the railway and raids on Soviet offices in Manchuria.

Tokyo, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Japan regards future Russo-Japanese relations as a matter which Soviet Russia must decide.

Stand Made Plain.

A spokesman for the foreign office made that stand plain today when he said, "whether diplomatic relations will continue depends upon the attitude of the Moscow government."

Regarding publication of documents dealing with a purported attempt by the Jananese to gain control of the Chinese Eastern Railway, the spokesman said:

"Publication of these documents, coupled with Russian press comment thereon, supports the belief that the Soviet desires the worst in Russo-Japanese relations.

"Perhaps they even desire to fight us!"

Geneva Leaders Expect Berlin Will Yield to Ultimatum.

Geneva, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Chancellor Hitler of Germany, confronted with stanch opposition to rearming from the United States, France and Great Britain, was forced tonight into a position of deciding whether to accept transformation of the Reichswehr without immediate possession of war materials.

In a swift moving climax of the day's disarmament developments, the United States joined England and France in a united position against an increase of German arms.

It was revealed in French circles that United States Ambassador at Large Norman H. Davis told Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour that American opposition to rearmament had been made clear at Washington.

Steady Progress Made.

Indications tonight were that slow but steady progress was being made toward a solution of disarmament problems.

M. Paul-Boncour was pleased at the American attitude. France always has been opposed to any German rearmament proposal. Today, at a three-power parley, Great Britain, through its foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, took a decisive stand in the same direction.

The three-power conversations were unsuccessful in reaching agreement on how the problem of German armaments should be handled.

Indications continued that adjustments will be made in a spirit of conciliation which will satisfy Germany, although the British are known to oppose allocation of military airplanes.

Seek Common Ground.

Sir John Simon will talk first with the Italians, then the Germans, endeavoring to reach a common ground before the resumption of the arms conference Monday.

The American delegation will continue to labor for a treaty "freely negotiated and freely accepted." Ambassador Davis informed Rudolf Nadolny, German delegate to the arms conference, how events were shaping up, and said the United States would continue in the role of helpful mediator.

Americans at Geneva held the impression that Chancellor Hitler has abandoned his intention of making an address in reply to Premier Daladier's exposition of the French stand on disarmament, and deemed this a helpful note.

The Americans had not taken a position as to what should be allocated to Germany. Experts worked out a technical scheme under which the Reich would be given a certain number of observation planes, small tanks and artillery.

Assassins' Bullets Miss King Carol 3d

Ambushers Riddle Wrong Train in Roumania.

Vienna, Austria, Oct. 11 (U.P.).—King Carol III of Roumania narrowly escaped an ambush attack while returning today from army maneuvers.

The assassins, however, mistook another train for the one in which he was riding.

Their volleys riddled empty coaches on a train as it was leaving Tragoviste Station five minutes after Carol's special had passed.

Berlin, Oct. 11 (U.P.).—A Telegrafen Union dispatch from Bucharest, Roumania, tonight said an official denial had been issued there on reports of an attempt to shoot King Carol.

Philippine House Hits Liberty Bill

Congress Act Declared Not Acceptable.

Manila, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—The Philippine House of Representatives tonight approved, 55 to 22, a resolution formally declaring Congress' independence act unacceptable in its present form.

Although leaders predicted the Senate would concur probably tomorrow, it was generally agreed the law was not killed and may be revived before January 17.

The resolution hit the proposed limitation of imports into the United States from the Philippines during the decade period of preparation for insular independence. It denounced proposed restriction of admission of Filipinos to the United States and retention of American military reservations in the islands.

Old Landmark Hotel Of Northwest Burned

Portland, Oreg., Oct. 11 (A.P.).—The Government Camp Hotel and its annex, on the slope of Mount Hood on the Loop highway, burned today.

Jury Decides Kellys' Fate Within Hour

Kidnaper, Wife to Hear Verdict Read Today at 9:30 a. m.

Defense Counsel Claims Court Charge Ordered Guilty Ruling.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—A sealed verdict tonight held the fate of George (Machine Gun) Kelly and his comely wife, Kathryn, accused of conspiracy in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, wealthy oil man.

The verdict, reached by a Federal jury in just one hour of deliberation, was sealed shortly before 9 p. m. It will be delivered to Judge Edgar S. Vaught at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Judge Vaught closed the brisk three-day trial with terse instructions, which Kelly's attorney, James H. Mathers said "virtually amounted to an instructed verdict of guilty."

Kelly Made No Fight.

"There is no doubt about the verdict after those instructions," said John V. Roberts, attorney for Kathryn, who was on the stand nearly all day in a tearful fight for acquittal.

Kelly himself had nothing upon which to base a hope for acquittal, as his wife and own attorneys sought to shift the entire blame for the kidnaping upon him and others already convicted and sentenced, and pictured Kathryn as a participant through fear of her husband.

Trial Lasts Three Days.

The trial consumed just three days. Its forerunner of September 18, in which seven persons were convicted and sentenced, four to life imprisonment, required two weeks.

Brief arguments of counsel were climaxed by the appeal of Herbert K. Hyde, district attorney, for a conviction.

"How can you believe that this was the demure, loving and fearful wife she pretends to be after hearing that she roamed the country like a millionaire's daughter or wife, buying machine guns?" Hyde thundered.

"Do you think she schemed with George and others under threats? I tell you she was the arch-conspirator!"

Kathryn's story, told with smiles and tears, of an unwilling part in the Urshel abduction was called a "lie" by Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant Attorney General, as the trial

Billings Asks For Parole

Romance Seen in Bomb Plot Prisoner's Plea After 16 Years.

Folsom Prison, Calif., Oct. 11 (A.P.). After 16 years behind prison walls waiting for a pardon and refusing to seek other forms of clemency, Warren K. Billings, who with Thomas J. Mooney was convicted of bombing the 1916 San Francisco preparedness parade, applied today for a parole.

The case will be considered by the parole board in December.

In the past, Billings like Mooney has refused to ask parole, contending it would be inconsistent with his innocence.

Warden Smith said there was "a possibility" Billings would marry Madaline Welland if released. Miss Weiland has been handling Billings' correspondence.

While supporters of Tom Mooney were waging the battle that became world-wide, Billings remained in the background. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1916 while Mooney was conndemned to die.

More than three years ago Billings applied for a pardon. Because he was a second offender the court refused to recommend the pardon and Gov. Young denied clemency to both Mooney and Billings.

Inventor of Rocket Plane's Hurts Fatal

Tiling and Assistant Die After Laboratory Blast.

Osnabrueck, Germany, Oct. 11 (U.P.).—Reinhold Tiling, inventor of the rocket plane and his assistant died here today from injuries received last night in an explosion in their laboratory.

Tiling had toiled at his rocket plane the last five years. He planned to shoot in it across the Atlantic.

The inventor, a World War veteran, was 37. He worked with liquid explosives, seeking a means of shooting an especially designed plane high into the stratosphere under such control as not to shock its pilot.

The plane had folding wings, like a sailfish, as the ship shot skyward, the wings were to fold back along the sides. Then when the machine reached its zenith, the wings were to have unfolded as rockets propelled it, finally permitting the pilot to land his ship like a glider.

M'Kee Hits Two Rivals; Opens Fight

Calls O'Brien Incapable; Says LaGuardia Seeks "Cheap Publicity."

New York, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Joseph V. McKee, scholar, banker and former acting mayor, stood in historic Cooper Union tonight and dedicated his independent mayoralty candidacy to the destruction of invisible government and the restoration of self-government."

Calling Fiorello H. LaGuardia, fusion nominee, a seeker of "cheap publicity," and Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate, an "impotent figure," McKee opened his campaign in the old building, where the movement that overthrew "Boss" Tweed had its inception a lifetime ago.

McKee declared he declined to run as fusion candidate, because he could not accept "the dictation" of Samuel Seabury, fusion strategist. He said he did not enter the Democratic primaries because of the "degrading" leadership of Tammany Hall.

Tammany Leaders Waver.

Meanwhile defections from Democratic ranks to McKee's standard continued. Several Tammany district leaders were reported to be awaiting an expression from former Gov. Alfred E. Smith before deciding whether to switch to McKee.

If Smith remains neutral, it was said in some quarters, the restless Tammany leaders may swing away from Mayor O'Brien.

McKee attacked the records of his opponents and promised the city "a sane and stable and permanent road to recovery."

"No one can have any confidence in LaGuardia because his whole record has been a record of opportunism, instability and explosiveness unparalleled in politics," said McKee.

LaGuardia Record Hit.

"Running on any ticket, so long as he gains public office, he has known no standard of public service except that of self-exploitation obtained by tub-thumping and cheap publicity. I am against government by fury as I am against government by Curry."

Turning his attention to O'Brien and Tammany, McKee said:

"I could not, in conscience, support the stupid, arrogant leadership that forces upon the city the well-intentioned but impotent figure of the present mayor."

Tammany has started reprisals against Brooklyn district leaders who switched to McKee, and are threatening to force John H. McCooey, Brooklyn chieftain, to retire unless he joins them. City jobholders are expected to be dismissed.

Divorcee Kills Self Near Mate's Home

Glendale, Calif., Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Going to the front of Dr. Lawrence L. Craven's home, his former wife Lena Luella Craven, bridge instructor, shot herself to death today.

Dr. Craven found the body in a motor car at his driveway after someone had telephoned him there was "a woman patient sitting in a funny position" in a car outside.

Lewis Revolt Bloc Routed; 'Plot' Denied

Turbulent Battle Marks Struggle to Enlarge A. F. L. Council.

Miners' Leader Attacks "Charge" of Seeking to Oust Green.

Following hours of dispute, the American Federation of Labor Convention late yesterday stamped out a revolt against the organization's governing executive council by a vote of 14,143 to 4,410.

The vote was on a resolution designed by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, to alter the constitution and enlarge the council from eight to 25 members.

Sponsors argued that while the present executive council had done good work it is composed of "elders"—that what youthful intelligence it possesses is "juvenile," that it is not representative enough of the labor movement, and that the infusion of "new blood" is necessary to carry forward the campaign for 25,000,000 members.

Election Methods Scored.

"It is time to stop bowing at the altar of the mighty," shouted Frank X. Martel, of the Typographical Union. "It is time to cease thinking that all the brains of these conventions are in the eight men elected by political machine methods.

Lewis and Daniel J. Tobin, president of the Teamsters Union, indulged in such acrimonious debate that William Green, president of the federation, warned them against personal abuse.

Lewis declared that Tobin, in opposing the resolution, had insinuated Lewis was seeking to enlarge the council in a plot to place another candidate for the presidency in the field against Green.

"Tobin's attitude that behind this resolution are the sinister designs of intriguing men is childish," Lewis declared calmly as Tobin roared denials.

"Green knows, without Tobin informing him otherwise, that the United Mine Workers have no other candidate. If God gives me strength I shall renew his nomination before this convention. I hurl your implications back into your face, Dan Tobin."

Tobin stormed to the platform, shouting that "John is not going to get away with this grandstanding without me answering back." He declared he did not want his statements misunderstood as implying Lewis was seeking to displace Green.

Discarding his belligerent attitude and pleading for harmony, he declared the "world is watching the A. F. of L." and that any change in its setup would give "enemies trying to undermine it" propaganda ammunition. The results, he said, would be that its new "mushroom" membership would be "frittered away."

30-Hour Week Urged.

Siding with the United Mine Workers in the battle were the bricklayers, the railway clerks, cloth hat, cap and millinery workers, maintenance of way employes, butchers, printing pressmen, telegraphers, typographers, brewery workers and several smaller unions.

Earlier, the convention adopted resolutions urging a congressional fight for a 30-hour week for Government employes, as well as the same work week for all labor, if demands to the NRA for shorter code hours fail to produce desired results. Shorter weeks for firemen were urged, in condemning "false economy" in fire departments.

The convention rejected a resolution which would have altered an executive council decision in order to permit outside salesmen and collectors of Allegany County, Md., to affiliate with the A. F. of L. The resolution was offered by W. A. Miller, of the Allegany Trades Council.

Sol. A. Rosenblatt, deputy NRA administrator, told the convention that "if we are to progress, men must receive a living wage, which is an adequate wage."

Green went him one better, declaring that NRA codes must provide a shorter work week, else the Nation shall be forced to "maintain a standing army of unemployed."

Japanese Statesman Improved.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 11 (A.P.).—The condition of Dr. Inazo Nitobe, Japanese statesman, was reported slightly improved tonight from an attack of pneumonia.

3 Soldiers Hurt in Sham Battle At Frederick County Fair

Frederick, Md., Oct. 11 (A.P.). Three soldiers were wounded here tonight in the maneuvers at the Frederick County fair as the Battle of Cantigny, first attack of the American troops in the World War, was reenacted by troops of the First Infantry, Maryland National Guard, with the aid of tanks and an airplane.

The hand of Sergt. William Steele, 35, of Glenburnie, was mangled when a combustible, representing a shell, exploded prematurely. He was taken to the Frederick City Hospital and then removed to the Walter Reed Hospital.

Corpl. Boyd Meade, 31, of Fort George G. Meade, was seriously injured while on duty with the tanks. The extent of his injuries was not determined at the hospital.

Private Howard Carr, 21, of Westminster, was struck in the back by a flying missile. His condition was said not to be serious.

Company A, of Frederick, and part of Company H, of Winchester, took the part of the enemy, "defending" Cantigny. The attacking force was composed of Company B, of Hagerstown, and the rest of Company H. The howitzer company, of Kensington, was divided between the two forces.

Four tanks from Fort Meade were used.

Decision of Roosevelt Awaits Results of Other Measures.

Reaction to New Bond Issue Is Expected to Influence Policy.

By Elliott Thurston.

Notwithstanding persistent rumors to the contrary, President Roosevelt is not yet prepared to define his monetary policy.

He means to await the results of his drive for credit expansion, of paying off half of the closed-bank deposits, of efforts to stimulate heavy industry by Federal loans, and of the Treasury's testing of the Government's capacity to borrow on long-term bonds, before dealing finally with the dilemmas of monetary uncertainty.

The President continues to be deluged with conflicting advice. It is delaying his intended announcement of the plan for the new $1,500,000 governmental banking corporation to free frozen bank deposits and also to provide new capital for such open banks as may require it to qualify for the Federal deposit insurance which takes effect January 1.

Budget Expanding.

The Federal budget is expanding at such a rapid pace, portending a four billion dollar increase in the public debt this year, that the Treasury is anxious to see what sort of public reception awaits the offering of 10-12 year bonds, bearing interest at 4¼ per cent for the first year, and 3¾ per cent thereafter, which was unexpectedly announced yesterday.

Though the Treasury has found a ready enough market for short-term paper, it has hesitated to try the longer-term issues. If the new issue is well received, the administration's disposition will be to continue the present course and perhaps to finance deposit-freeing by money directly raised in the bond market.

Pressure Increasing.

If the issue meets a chilly reception, the impulse will be to face the difficult alternatives of monetary policy without further delay. Some administration economists regard the present test of the bond market as a portent of impending monetary action of a definite character.

British Deny Ship Mutiny

Statement by Admiralty Claims no Trouble on Giant Cruiser.

London, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Published reports of a mutiny aboard H. M. S. Hood, the world's largest battle cruiser, were described tonight in an official statement issued by the admiralty as "base rumors deflecting on the splendid ship's company."

The official statement followed investigation of reported insubordination aboard the giant craft, which carries more than 1,200 men. She was said to be in home waters on her way to fall maneuvers in the North Sea.

H. M. S. Hood is well known in American waters. In her cruises, since she was commissioned in 1920, she has gone through the Panama Canal and visited the West Coast of the United States.

Two years ago, also during the fall maneuvers, she was one of the ships aboard which occurred the unrest which resulted in cancelling the maneuvers.

Pay cuts causing the trouble were afterward eliminated.

Home Rule Appeal Sent From Hawaii

Delegation Will Visit U. S. to Consult Ickes.

Honolulu, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—The Hawaii Home Rule Commission selected three members today to visit Secretary Ickes in an effort to retain the present governmental set-up of the Territory.

Members of the commission expressed alarm at continued silence of the White House concerning a new governor for Hawaii, saying they feared President Roosevelt intended to revive the Rankin bill for appointment of a mainland man.

Commission members chosen to go to Washington and Judge A. G. M. Robertson, former supreme court justice, a Republican; William H. Heen, Territorial senator, Democrat, and Samuel W. King, Territorial senator, Republican.

Italian Bluebeard Dies Friday.

Woodin Promises News Next Week On Bank Deposits

Philadelphia, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Secretary of the Treasury Woodin tonight indicated the Roosevelt administration would make public next week a plan to thaw frozen deposits in closed State and National banks.

There will be "very good news" the first of next week, he said in an interview here, and indicated that Monday or Tuesday the Government plan for the relief of closed bank depositors would be announced.

He said the "very good news" would cover depositors in State as well as National banks, but declined to make public any details of the contemplated plan.

Uniform Pay Sought in New Federal Jobs

Roosevelt Orders Survey to End Inequalities; 6,000 Involved.

Uniform salary scales in Government departments will be sought by classification of workers in new emergency agencies, it was learned yesterday.

President Roosevelt ordered the Budget Bureau to make a personnel survey of the ten administrative units created at the last session of Congress. Several more weeks are expected to be required to set scales for the 6,000 jobs involved.

The study probably will be completed in time for incorporation of the adjusted salaries in the 1934 budget, due to be submitted to the House Appropriations Committee before Congress convenes in January.

Approximately 2,800 Washington employes of emergency organizations will figure in the classification program. Salaries found to be above or below similar positions in permanent establishments will be adjusted.

Civil Service Standards.

Officials pointed out many new positions would not be brought under Civil Service administration as regards examinations, qualifications, hours of work and annual leave. Civil Service standards will govern, however, in fixing of salaries.

Although the classification is intended to effect some economies, the primary purpose is to smooth out inequalities.

Classification of some 1,100 employes of NRA was the first phase of the program executed by the Budget Bureau. In discussing this step yesterday, Secretary of Commerce Roper, who is chairman of the Cabinet supervisory board for NRA, said details of the new schedule would be announced early next week.

Other Surveys Planned.

The Budget Bureau plans to turn immediately to the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Home Loan Bank Board, the Federal Relief Administration and the administration offices of the Civilian Conservation Corps. The classifications will be undertaken in the order named. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation will be surveyed later, as well as employes of the Farm Credit Administration, the Public Works Administration, and the Coordinator of Transportation.

Treasury to Exchange Long-Term Securities for Fourth 4¼s.

$500,000,000 Provided to Care for Federal Current Needs.

A new financing program, which came as a complete surprise to financial circles, was announced yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury Woodin.

Simultaneously with a call for redemption on April 15, 1934, of approximately one-third of the outstanding Fourth Liberty Loan 4¼ per cent bonds, Secretary Woodin announced that an issue of 10-12 year Treasury bonds, bearing interest at 4¼ per cent for the first year, and 3¼ per cent thereafter, would be offered for subscription on October 16.

The new long-term bonds will be offered in exchange at par for any bonds of the Fourth 4¼ Liberty Loan issue, whether called or uncalled, and in the approximate amount of $500,000,000 for cash at 101¼.

Bonds Drawn by Lot.

Drawn by lot from a transparent glass urn in the Secretary's office yesterday afternoon, the total of Fourth Liberty Loan bonds called for redemption in six months was $1,875,000,000. Bonds to be redeemed by the Treasury are those whose serial numbers end in the digits 9, 0 or 1. Permanent bonds called also bear the distinguishing letters J, K or A.

The Treasury announced there are approximately $6,268,000,000 of these Fourth Liberty Loan bonds outstanding, and that the importance of the day's joint operations lies in the fact it constitutes the commencement of a refunding of these bonds, which, unless previously called, would mature in 1938, when $900,000,000 of Treasury notes also mature.

"The exchange of the new bonds for a substantial portion of the outstanding 4¼ per cent Liberty bonds will effect not only a material reduction in the annual interest charge on the public debt, but will improve the structure of the debt by reducing in volume the near-term maturities," the Treasury said.

In addition, of course, the new bond issue will provide the Treasury with some $500,000,000 of cash funds to meet current needs.

Woodin Plays Guitar.

The ceremony of selecting that portion of the outstanding Fourth Liberty Loan bonds to be redeemed was conducted by Undersecretary of the Treasury Acheson, assisted by W. A. Julian; Treasurer of the United States, and Eugene R. Black, governor of the Federal Reserve Board. Mr. Woodin, at the time, was en route to Philadelphia, where he was to play a guitar solo on a radio program which included Kate Smith.

In the glass urn, on a pedestal in front of the Secretary's desk, reposed 10 envelopes, rolled up and fastened with rubber bands. These contained three digits each, together with serial letters for the permanent bonds, and the one upon which Undersecretary Acheson's groping fingers fastened gave the decision for digits 9, 0, and 1, and the corresponding letters J, K, and A.

The new bond issue, on which books will open next Monday, then was introduced, with the statement by Secretary Woodin that "the current offering affords to the present holders of Fourth 4¼s, which must be retired on or before October 15, 1938, an opportunity to exchange their bonds for a new long-term issue, callable in 1943, and maturing in 1945, which will bear the same rate of interest as the bonds they now hold, until October 15, 1934, and a rate of 3¼ per cent thereafter.

Attractive Offering.

"At the same time cash subscribers are offered an investment at a price which will yield a return in line with current yields on similar Government obligations. The offering should prove attractive both to present holders of Fourth 4¼ Liberty bonds and to individuals and corporations with funds to invest."

"This financing," said Secretary Woodin, "is an important and constructive step in the Government's program and an essential contribution to the sound process of recovery. While there continues to be a disparity between the unusually low level of short-term open-market rates and the level of rates on funds for long-term investment, improvement has been apparent in the market for long-term Government obligations. The present offering of Treasury bonds and the conditions which warrant it, mark progress toward the greater availability of funds for long-term uses.

Brazil Plans To Pay Bonds, Says Banker

Dillon Partner Testifies McAdoo Aided Selling Defaulted Issue.

The Brazilian government is at work on a plan for partial resumption of payments on defaulted state and municipal bond issues widely floated in this country, the Senate Banking Committee was told yesterday.

Robert O. Hayward, Dillon, Read & Co. partner, who handled a $12,000,000 Rio de Janeiro bond issue now in default, said details now are being worked out by the Brazilian govermnent and will be announced after January 1.

He volunteered this information as committee members pressed him on steps taken by the New York banking firm to protect American holders of the $12,000,000 issue, defaulted since December, 1931.

Land Reclamation Scheme.

Hayward related how $8,900,000 of the $12,000,000 issue went to tear down a mountain and reclaim new land from the sea. Profits from sale of lots were to be used for bond retirement.

Pecora developed that the family of Clarence Dillon, head of the banking firm managing the bond flotation, owned 45 per cent control of the engineering firm awarded the Rio Mountain demolition project.

Senator McAdoo (Democrat), California, a member of the banking committee, served as attorney for Dillon, Read & Co. in arranging the details of the $12,000,000 bond flotation, Hayward testified.

The committee turned to the South American bond flotations late in the day, concluding inquiry into Dillon, Read & Co.'s two investment trusts, United States & Foreign and United States & International Securities Corporations.

Believed in Securities.

Dillon admitted most losses suffered by the two trusts were in stocks of companies in which individual directors had an interest. He insisted the directors were not responsible, but that stocks were bought because they were "good securities."

Later Dillon told the committee he favored legislation going beyond the securities act in matters of publicity. Reports to stockholders should be made monthly or quarterly, he said. At the same time, he favored amending the act so "directors would not be held liable for mistakes of accountants," he added.

Turning to the $12,000,000 Rio de Janeiro issue, Pecora placed Hayward on the stand. The junior partner told how the banking firm and associates kept $320,000 of bond proceeds for commission, and $1,500,000 additional to purchase for the city of Rio de Janeiro bonds of a prior issue, floated by Imbrie & Co.

When purchases could not be made, he said, $1,000,000 was paid to the trustees of the Imbrie issue to retire bonds and $500,000 sent back to Rio de Janeiro at the mayor's request. Hayward told of an additional $250,000 retained as a "cushion" to safeguard investors against defaults in interest and sinking fund. The "cushion" was almost entirely "flattened" by payments on sinking fund after Rio had defaulted, he testified.

Although $1,000 bonds of the issue now are selling at $160, and interest payments ceased in 1931, Hayward voiced belief all bonds will be paid off from proceeds of Rio lot sales, after exchange conditions between the two countries are stabilized. He said the Brazilian city now has $240,000 deposited to the credit of the bondholders, which has not been transferred because of unfavorable exchange rates.

Acquired Bonds at $89.

Hayward explained how bonds of the issue, which Dillon, Read & Co. acquired for $89, were eventually marketed to the public for $97.75. Dillon, Read & Co. sold them to a group of bankers for $91; the banking group sold them to a distributing syndicate for $93.75, and the syndicate passed them on to the public at the higher price.

Couzens asked if this did not represent an "unusual spread." Hayward said it was the "normal" one.

The committee today will delve into additional Brazilian loans, including a $25,000,000 loan in 1922 for the Central Railroad of Brazil.

Meanwhile, the Senate banking committee broadened its inquiry into New York Stock Exchange activities to embrace security exchanges throughout the country. Questionnaires, similar to the one submitted last week to the New York Stock Exchange, yesterday were sent out to 15 other security exchanges, including the New York curb market.

French Plan New Taxes, Public Work

Cabinet to Start Recovery Drive Along Lines of Roosevelt.

Paris, Oct. 11 (AP).—President Roosevelt's drive to lick the depression will have a French counterpart, with variations, in a far-reaching program designed by Premier Daladier to balance his nation's budget and speed wheels of French industry.

The cabinet will meet tomorrow to put finishing touches on a plan which its finance ministry and other experts have studied all summer, by which the government can:

Cut expenses, tap new sources of revenue, start an extensive national works program and decrease unemployment.

The national works program will be concerned with roads, bridges and public works. It is likely this building plan will be marked by the inclusion of contracts placing labor on a 40-hour week, although private industries, not handling government contracts, would be exempt.

The revenue program will include a turnover tax on gas and electric power companies, hitherto exempt, and concentration of various automobile taxes into a single gasoline tax.

Government employes will be asked to take a 5 per cent cut, probably to be paralleled by a tax on salaries of employes of private industry, which have not been reduced. This last taxation would be levied only during the period of financial stress.

In order to bring about a balanced budget, the administration hopes to raise 6,000,000,000 francs (approximately $360,000,000) through these economies and fiscal control.

O'Neill's Wife Buys Him Veteran Piano

Playwright to Celebrate Birthday in Georgia.

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Eugene O'Neill started for Georgia today for a vacation and his birthday, on which he will receive a nickel-in-the-slot player-piano from his wife.

He will go directly to his winter home at Sea Island Beach to begin a new play, "The Life of Bessie Brown." His wife is with him.

The famous playwright will be 45 years old October 16, and his wife already has purchased the player-piano that once wheezed and groaned in a New Orleans saloon. It is painted a greenish yellow.

He will return to Broadway for rehearsals of his newest drama, "Days Without End." His latest play, "Ah, Wilderness," is running on Broadway now.

Nine to Face Hearing On Violation of NRA

Nine alleged violations of the President's reemployment agreement will be heard by the board of compliance of the local NRA. All accused employers have been requested to show cause why the Blue Eagles should not be removed from their windows.

Four petitions for acceptance of adjustments also will be heard by the board.

Misses Game

Boy's Arm Fractured in Fall From Fence.

He climbed a fence and was almost inside the park when he fell. He was taken to Emergency Hospital.

Senator Davis 'Lottery' Trial Nearing Close

Three Defense Lawyers Make Arguments for Moose Head.

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, heard himself characterized as a "great humanitarian" today, as the Federal lottery case against him neared a jury's hands. Davis' defense rested early today without his taking the stand.

Three defense attorneys offered summations. They were George Mintzer, who pleaded the case of Theodore C. Miller, codefendant with Davis; Charles H. Tuttle and Charles J. Margiotti, attorneys for Davis. Louis Mead Treadwell, assistant United States attorney, is to argue for the prosecution at the opening of court tomorrow.

Davis, director general of the Loyal Order of Moose, and Miller, head of Moose propagation, are charged with sending lottery tickets in interstate commerce in connection with Moose "charity balls" conducted in 1931.

Mintzer spoke briefly, pointing out that none of the witnesses who told of the actual shipping of tickets had ever had any dealings with Miller.

Tuttle declared the prosecution was based solely on inference, innuendo and suspicions and said no direct evidence was offered to show Davis had any knowledge of the alleged lottery.

Margiotti told the jury Senator Davis was "a great humanitarian whose life has been spent in uplifting his fellow men." He ridiculed testimony to the effect Davis received more than $350,000 from the Moose organization department in 10½ years.

Walter B. Howe, attorney, 1821 H street northwest, was named beneficiary for half the residue in a life estate of $50,000 left by his great aunt, Sarah E. Bruce, New York, it was learned here yesterday.

George Bruce, Providence, R. I., was named heir to the estate, and Ellen Curry, Kingston, N. Y., named as a "faithful servant," will receive $5,000.

Mouse Visits Cage of Canary To Dine Peacefully With Pal

New Market, Va., Oct. 11 (Spl.).—Pete and Runt are fast friends. Perhaps a more unique friendship does not exist.

On entering the dining room of a hotel here guests are surprised to find Pete and Runt peacefully feeding from the same bowl in the canary's cage.

After finishing his meal Runt will climb out of the cage, squeak a mousey good-by to his feathery friend, scamper down among the flower pots and into his nest beneath the dining room floor.

Widespread Strikes Balk Peace Moves

Bombs and Bullets Fly in Coal Fields of Two States.

On a dozen points mediators moved last night in atempts to settle strikes that had brought violence, death, and local obstruction to industry.

A bridge was bombed in Westmoreland County in the Pennsylvania soft coal area and pickets closed several mines that had opened in response to a back-to-work appeal from President Roosevelt.

Earlier a coal tipple was burned and an unsuccessful attempt was made to wreck a freight train.

Mrs. Pinchot In Field.

Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the governor, invading the western Pennsylvania steel district, in defiance of opponents, to address the striking workers. She charged steel operators had prevented a worker's rally at Apollo, Pa., where she had been scheduled to speak.

In the Illinois coal field snipers became active in the feud between the Progressive and the United Mine Workers Unions. Lives of citizens were reported endangered by shooting last night.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery chief, said he hoped the union warfare could be cleared up locally, but indicated the NRA would be enforced to allow miners to join any union they wished.

Agencies Seek Peace.

Five separate agencies moved toward settlement of agricultural and industrial strikes in northern and central California. The strikes involved cotton pickers, grape growers, sardine fishing-boat owners, stevedores.

The National Labor Board at Washington sought to end steel strikes at Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, Ohio. A near-riot at Weirton was quelled when State police hurled tear gas bombs into a crowd at the entrance of the Weirton Steel Co. plant during a fracas.

State boards and Federal mediators were active in other instances.

President Debates Monetary System

concerned with administration monetary policy agreed emphatically yesterday that there is no immediate prospect for stabilization, for devaluation, for release of gold to settle international balances, or for other steps of a decisive character.

Pressures are rapidly increasing upon the President to lift the uncertainty hanging over and inhibiting private capital. His own advisers, while disagreeing among themselves, indicate a consensus of opinion to the effect that continuing uncertainty is prostrating private lending or borrowing.

War-debt talks with the British have already run into the unsolved riddle of the kind of dollars in which any sort of payment might be made. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is finding no takers of its proffered billion dollars of "easy money."

The NRA is troubled because large employers are grumbling over the lack of market for goods produced in larger volume at higher costs.

Labor, in turn, is going on spontaneous strikes. Inaction in the building and construction industries vividly reflects the uncertainty over the future value of the dollar.

Bankers Protesting.

Bankers are protesting, and the governors of 12 reserve banks, winding up their quarterly meeting here yesterday, discussed at length the futility of further open-market operations, now that about $800,000,000 of excess reserves have been piled up.

That the President is fully aware of these and many other aspects of the monetary question is attested by various administration advisers. His view, however, is that so-called stabilization would be premature now, that the latest plans must be given a trial, and that the disadvantages of defining a fixed monetary policy as yet are greater than the advantages to be reaped from a release of private funds and a probable large repatriation of American capital.

Some of his most trusted advisers have told him that to attempt stabilization now would require a stiff dose of accompanying inflation, even greenbacking, to offset the stimulative effect on the dollar of a reflow of American and foreign capital and the gold which they think would be drawn here so fast as to jeopardize the position of the French and others of the "gold bloc."

In the midst of much differing opinion, the President means to move ahead with the immediate program. A chief factor in this program is the still pending deposit-release plan in which Henry Bruere is the leading figure.

Officials Confident.

Treasury and reserve authorities said yesterday they had no doubt that banks would absorb all the Reconstruction Finance Corporation debentures needed to finance the freeing of half of the frozen deposits in banks closed since January 1. Legal authorities differ over whether Reconstruction Finance Corporation debentures are eligible for reserve banks, but the weight of opinion is that the Thomas amendment gave the reserve banks power to absorb the debentures if necessary.

If Treasury views prevail the proposed $1,500,000,000 new Federal banking agency, which is to be the medium for release of frozen deposits, will also subscribe to stock of such banks as are deemed ineligible for Federal guarantee on January 1 next. Thus, most of the ineligibles would be eligible, or would be combined with other institutions, or otherwise rehabilitated.

Woman Who Called Patrol Admits Being Drunk.

Here's one person who used the recently installed public police phone box system properly.

The First Precinct patrol was called to the box at Fifth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest. While Policeman W. Thomson sought the person who called, a woman from a nearby bench rose and placed herself in the wagon.

"Take me to the station, I'm drunk," Thomson quoted her as saying.

At Police Court yesterday Marie Gladys Hall, 37, admitted making the call and pleaded guilty of intoxication charges. She was fined $15, or 15 days in jail.

Plan to Break U. S. Buildings Strikes Told

McGrady Says Congress Will Be Requested to Act in Row.

Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, yesterday warned organized labor that Congressional action will be asked to settle interunion disputes unless the present tie-up on the Federal building program is ended quickly.

Referring to the iron workers and carpenters, whose fight over the installation of metal radiator inclosures in the Labor-I. C. C. buildings resulted in a strike by iron workers and the shutdown on that project September 15, Mr. McGrady said:

"I have told labor that unless the unions settle that dispute between themselves, and settle it quickly, we will go to Congress in January and ask power for the Government to make the decision in cases involving Federal buildings."

To date the National Labor Board and Labor Department conciliators have been powerless to end the dispute, trusting to the international heads of the two unions to reach an agreement. William L. Hutcheson, carpenters' president, failed to arrive here yesterday as expected. Union and Government officials are looking for him today.

P. J. Morrin, president of the Ironworkers, who is attending the American Federation of Labor convention, has expressed willingness to discuss the matter with Hutcheson.

Another obstruction to the building program, the dispute over a four-hour day for ironworkers, may be removed tonight when contractors lay their case before the union. Several subcontractors on the Postoffice, Justice, Supreme Court and other buildings have ceased operations indefinitely rather than give up the eight-hour day. Other employers of ironworkers temporarily accepted the split shift, designed to spread work.

Hopkins Assures Food For Needy in Winter

Persons in need will be fed this winter, Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, said last night.

Hopkins said the NRA has done commendable work, but 15,100,000 Americans remain on unemployment relief rolls. He added Federal, State, and municipal governments would cooperate to care for them.

The principal speaker of the evening will be Homer S. Cummings, Attorney General, who will outline the progress made by the Federal Government in stamping out crime. The purpose of the conference is to enlist the aid of citizenry in putting an end to lawlessness.

McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, who will pronounce the invocation; Rabbi Abram Simon, president of the Synagogue Council of America, who will read from the Scriptures, and the Right Rev. Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby will welcome the delegates. Mrs. John Allan Dougherty will lead in a pledge to the flag.

Col. James A. Moss, president general of the Flag Association, will present statistics on the number of crimes of different types committed annually, the cost to taxpayers of maintaining courts and penal institutions and the growth of crime during the last 15 years.

A general meeting of 14 committees assigned to investigate specific aspects of crime will be held this afternoon at the Shoreham Hotel. Recommendations in the form of resolutions will be drawn up at the session for presentation to the conference.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, New York, will address the first business session tomorrow morning at the Shoreham. His subject will be "Racketeering and Kidnaping."

Sessions will be held all day tomorrow and the conference will continue through Saturday afternoon.

Head of Guaranty Trust Rose to Power From Farm.

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Charles Hamilton Sabin, 65, a farmer boy who rose to be one of the leading bankers in the Nation, died last night at his home near Southampton, Long Island. Since 1921 he had been chairman of the board of the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York.

Although in poor health for six months, the end came suddenly, and before his wife, the nationally known prohibition reformer, could reach his side.

Aside from his wife, the former Pauline Morton, of Chicago, whom he married in 1916, there is a son, Charles Hamiltn Sabin, jr.

He became vice president of the Guaranty Trust Co. in 1910, and five years later became president.

Students Still Worrying New Cuban Leader

University Has Autonomy; Other Peace Efforts Meet Delay.

Havana, Oct. 11 (AP).—The Ramon Grau San Martin government today moved vigorously to get Havana University students back to their books.

While the predicted "Cuban solution," involving radical changes in the present government set-up, still remained in the air, President Grau signed and had published a decree granting entire autonomy to the National University.

Students, now among President Grau's chief civil supporters, had demanded university autonomy as the price of their withdrawal from politics. Under present plans, the University will open November 1 or shortly thereafter.

Meanwhile, political mediators seeking some formula that might bring Grau and his potent opposition together were silent today, but it was understood all participants had agreed to delay negotiations several days.

Col. Carlos Mendieta, veteran Machado foe and leader of the powerful Nationalist Union, had been virtually settled on as provisional president to succeed Grau, should the latter abdicate, but last-minute misunderstandings caused postponement of the political maneuver.

Feeling in the army, inspired by reports that any new government would deal harshly with the armed forces, was one of the reasons for the postponement, it was learned.

Jury Decides Fate Of Kelly in Hour

"Don't believe that Kathryn was forced by her bad husband," Keenan told the jury.

"She did her job and did it well when she dashed to the Shannon farm and got the little girls out of the way before they took Urschel there."

Three Defense Witnesses.

The defense had rested with only the testimony of Kathryn and brief questioning of her 15-year-old daughter, Pauline Frye, and her father, J. E. Brooks. Not a word was offered in behalf of Kelly.

"Mr. Urschel owes his life today to Kathryn Kelly.

"She persuaded George Kelly not to kill Urschel, and tried to persuade him to turn Urschel loose."

He said Government testimony that Kathryn wrote death threats to Urschel during the first trial, which resulted in seven convictions, was "absurd."

"George wrote them and George admits writing them," the attorney said.

"Kelly said he and Bates alone were responsible. That doesn't say Kathryn was involved."

Claimed Saving Urschel.

Crying softly, she declared she told Kelly when he threatened to kill Urschel during his captivity on a Texas farm:

"If you do I'll tell on you, even if you kill me."

The blue-eyed defendant, gay when she took the stand this morning, broke down under the prying cross-questioning of Joseph B. Keenan, Assistant Attorney General.

There, she said, she had her first inkling of the kidnaping when Kelly woke her at 4:30 a. m. on July 23, about five hours after the abduction, and told her before Mrs. Coleman forced him to leave:

"We got a kidnaped man outside."

And when she "learned what was going on" at the Paradise, Tex., ranch of her mother, Mrs. Ora Shannon, and her stepfather, R. G. Shannon, where Urschel finally was hidden, she related:

"I begged him to please release him.

"He said it was none of my business. He threatened me.

"He said they were going to kill him (Urschel). I begged him not to."

She described their flight, with the "borrowed" 12-year-old Geraldine Arnold, as a "shield," until they reached Memphis and Geraldine went home to her parents in Oklahoma City and told officers all they needed to know to trap the Kellys in their Memphis hideaway.

"When you took Geraldine Arnold to Chicago, you knew you were wanted by police, didn't you?" Keenan asked.

"Yes, I knew it then," she said.

Knew Nothing of Money.

Of the burial of $73,250 in ransom money, later found by Federal agents on the Texas farm of her uncle, Cass Coleman, Kathryn said she knew nothing, except that she was there and Kelly and Coleman "were gone a long time. I don't know where they went."

Hotly she cried, "I did not!" when her attorney asked if she had written two letters, airmailed from Chicago during the first trial, threatening Urschel and others. The signature, she said, "is Mr. Kelly's." A handwriting expert, called by the Government, had testified the handwriting was Kathryn's.

This is an architect's drawing of the $3,200,000 model ship experimental basin at Cabin John, Md., planned by the Navy Department. Funds for the project may be granted by the Public Works Administration. The undertaking would provide employment for scores of workers. It has been approved by the Fine Arts Commission and other Federal agencies.

Navy Awaits Federal Grant For Test Basin

40 Per Cent of $3,200,000 Cost to Be Spent for Labor.

Plans have been approved for construction of a $3,200,000 model ship experimental basin at Cabin John, Md., near Conduit road, Navy Department officials revealed yesterday.

A decision is expected shortly from the Public Works Administration on requests for funds. Arrangements have been perfected to advertise for bids on the first unit soon after the grant is made.

The undertaking has been approved by the Navy Department, the Fine Arts Commission, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Shipping Board, engineering societies and private maritme interests.

Land Cites Benefits.

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, pointed out about 40 per cent of the estimated cost would be spent on labor. The remaining $1,920,000, besides cost of the land, would go for materials and equipment.

"There are but two establishments in the United States equipped for test work, one at the University of Michigan and the other at the Washington Navy Yard. As the Michigan tank is limited in size, towing speed, equipment and personnel, by far the greater part of model testing in this country falls on the Washington tank," Admiral Land said.

Admiral Land cited existence of 18 basin establishments abroad. He predicted this country would lag hopelessly behind other nations on the high seas unless the project materializes.

The project contemplates a large, deep-water basin for work with ship models, a shallow basin for experiments with models of river craft, a high-speed basin for seaplane pontoons, a special basin for steering and turning tests, a general laboratory for testing ship structures, an aerodynamic laboratory with wind tunnels, modern shops, a power plant and an administration building.

To Permit Private Tests.

Upon completion, the plant would be operated by civilian personnel under the direction of Naval officers.

Officials indicated private interests probably would be permitted to have the Navy make experiments for them at the basins.

About 15 acres of the land expected to be acquired would be transferred to the director of public buildings and parks for use as part of the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

Capt. Shannon, Ill For Years, Is Dead

Death Occurs at Walter Reed Hospital.

Capt. Torrence T. Shannon, 44, 7701 Georgia avenue northwest, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital after an illness of more than a year.

After graduating from the University of Kansas, Capt. Shannon joined the Infantry. He studied at Fort Benning and saw service in the Philippines and Puerto Rico. During the World War Capt. Shannon served overseas. He returned and became adjutant in the disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth.

Capt. Shannon, a native of Mound City, Kans., is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret K. Shannon. Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night, but he will be buried in Arlington Cemetery with military rites.

Not Funny

Comedian's Wife Obtains Divorce and Child.

Los Angeles, Oct. 11 (AP).—Living with a motion picture comedian isn't just a life of giggles, Mrs. Lois Laurel told a Superior Court judge today to win a divorce from Stan Laurel, slender half of the film comedy team, Laurel and Hardy.

"He was forever leaving home, staying away for two or three days at a time," Mrs. Laurel testified. "He frequently told me I could not get a divorce fast enough to suit him. I decided life with a film comedian was anything but funny."

By a property settlement, Mrs. Laurel will have custody of their 5-year-old daughter, Lois. The Laurels were married August 23, 1926, and separated last May 20, she said.

Hardy, the fat member of the team, sued his wife for divorce several months ago, but they recently announced a reconciliation.

State Control Board Ponders Rum Problems

Public Hearing Planned on Virginia's Part in Dispensing.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 11 (AP).—The State liquor control commission, at its first session here today, prepared an agenda of four questions to be discussed at a public hearing October 23 and 24.

Although no decisions were reached, several of the members were outspoken in their belief that distilled liquors should be distributed under regulations more rigid than those for beer and wine.

Some members suggested that the State manufacture and sell distilled beverages, leaving the sale of beer and wine to private agencies.

Raymond B. Fosdick, of New York, in charge of the Rockefeller liquor survey, will be invited as the first speaker before the two-day hearing. At that time the public will be invited to express its views on the following questions:

Questions Listed.

1. Shall the sale of distilled spirits be conducted exclusively through State agencies or by private licenses?

2. Shall the manufacture of distilled spirits be by State distilleries or by private licensed distilleries, or by both?

3. Shall private licenses be permitted to sell wines and beers for consumption on the premises? If so, under what conditions?

4. Shall a purchaser be required to have a permit in order to purchase distilled spirits?

Several commissioners said they believed the sale of beer and wine should be made as liberal as possible to encourage consumption of these beverages and to reduce drinking of hard liquors.

Judge John L. Ingram, of Richmond Hustings Court, a member of the commission, was an outstanding advocate of this view. "I want to treat light wines and beers as the French do," he said. "Let the people drink them right out on the streets if they want to."

Former State Senator C. O'Conor Goolrick, of Fredericksburg; former State Senator James S. Barron, of Norfolk, and Senator Henry T. Wickham, of Hanover, also recommended liberal provisions for the sale of wine and beer.

Layman Favors Plan.

George W. Layman, of New Castle, author of the Layman act, Virginia's dry law, said he would favor this plan if some reasonable limit were put on the alcoholic content.

Layman, Barron and Delegate Wilbur C. Hall, of Loudoun, said they favored State manufacture of distilled spirits and distribution through a dispensary system. Barron was the most outspoken advocate of this plan.

State Control Over Liquor Declared Best

Keeps Politicians From Profits, Rockefeller Survey Says.

New York, Oct. 11 (Spl.).—After suggesting totally dry areas within State borders whese "local option" called for them, the Rockefeller liquor survey, in that portion released for publication today, discussed "the necessity of eliminating political influences under a State alcohol monopoly."

"From an experience that is all too painful," says the study, prepared by Raymond B. Fosdick and Albert L. Scott, "we are aware of the dangers of political influence and corruption under the license plan. Are these dangers not equally great under a State management system? We think the answer can honestly be given in the negative.

Based on Experience.

"This opinion rests in part on experience elsewhere with State alcohol monopolies, and in part on the revolutionary change which the elimination of private profit in retail sales brings into the entire situation. Politics and corruption entered the license system primarily because liquor dealers attempted to maintain and expand their sales.

"Under a State authority, the entire foundation is changed. Instead of a mobilized army of opposition to restriction of liquor selling, there is substituted a force of clerks under the chain store accounting systems, who have nothing to gain from expanded sales.

Can not Take Profits.

"Politicians will still be eager to control the patronage, and in some cases to determine the wet and dry areas, but they will not be able to lay their hands upon the profits.

"Under the authority plan the entire responsibility for honesty and efficiency will be concentrated upon the board of directors and the managing director.

"There is, of course, no guarantee against dishonesty and abuse in any system, but the external regulation of recalcitrant private enterprise is clearly a more difficult task and much more subject to graft than internal management by a responsible authority. This is doubly true of the liquor business."

"Bossy" Gillis Pleads Guilty in Libel Case

Salem, Mass., Oct. 11 (AP).—Andrew J. ("Bossy") Gillis today pleaded guilty to four charges of criminal libel, based on stories in his "red hot" paper, Asbestos.

He served two terms as Mayor of Newburyport before his defeat in 1931. His turbulent career gained him national prominence.

The four charges were based on articles criticizing William J. Cusack, a reporter; Fire Chief John F. Cutter and District Court Judges Nathaniel N. Jones and Charles I. Pettingell.

Block Plan

British Visitor "Learns" of U. S. Politics.

Kansas City, Oct. 11 (AP).—A woman member of the British Parliament sought to learn about Midwestern municipal politics in an interview today with one who should know and came away with a decided idea about the difference between a "bloc" and a "block."

After waiting in line at his office and introducing herself, Miss Marjorie Graves asked T. J. Pendergast, city Democratic boss whose influence has extended over Missouri, about problems of politics.

"Tell me something," she asked, "of the system of your organization. Is it by bloc or how?"

"We have workers in every block workers report to the precinct captains, who, in turn, confer as to organization activities, and and consult with the ward leaders as to organization activities, and the ward leaders talk with me.

Marines Sail To Cuba Base

Navy Department Denies Battalion Will Fight Possible Outbreaks.

With a battalion of marines aboard, the battleship Wyoming is on its way to the Guantanamo Naval Base, Cuba, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Department officials described the movement as part of the "regular training." They denied that the 514 enlisted men and 27 officers are to be held in readiness for possible disorders in Cuba. They declared most of the marines are recruits.

The Wyoming sailed Tuesday from Hampton Roads, Va., where the battalion was taken aboard last week.

Original orders called for a training cruise off Hampton Roads, but Admiral William H. Standley said recently the Wyoming might relieve the battleship New Mexico in Cuban waters. The Wyoming will reach Guantanamo October 14.

Tip Provision In Restaurant Code Attacked

Hint of Walkout Follows Union Protest of NRA Scale.

Assailing the code submitted by the National Restaurant Association, the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' Alliance, Local 781, yesterday announced it would not accept the code and indicated a walkout might be resorted to in its fight.

The provison for a wage of 15 cents per hour for employes receiving tips was singled out for the union's attack. Charles E. Sands, secretary, charged this is an admission by restaurant owners that the public is supposed to pay the wages of waiters and waitresses.

Section 6 of the proposed code says: "The established minimum rate of wages for employes in restaurants who receive gratuities shall be 15 cents per hour, but each such employe shall be guaranteed that in the event that payment of this hourly rate, plus gratuities received, results in a total hourly earning less than that established under Section 5 for employes who do not receive gratuities, the difference shall be paid by the employer and the employer shall accept the signed statement of the employe as to the amount of difference; but in no case shall any such employe receive less cash per hour than prior to June 16, 1933, for the same position."

The code provides a 27-cent hourly wage for employes in cities of Washington's size, but specifies a two-cent reduction for the District of Columbia. This differential also was attacked by Sands.

Ford Pledge Told In Sweeten Suit

Promsied to Make Good Losses, Is Testimony.

Philadelphia, Oct. 11 (AP).—Henry Rudolph, former vice president of the Sweeten Automobile Co., of this city, which is suing Henry Ford for $168,000, testified today that Ford, his arm around the Philadelphian's shoulder, promised his firm would "get back" its losses.

Ford is suing the Sweeten Co. for $6,800 due on promissory notes. The Sweeten Co. started a counter action contending it lost $168,000 through purchase by Ford of the Lincoln Motor Co. The Philadelphia concern distributed the Lincoln car.

Thomas Sights Fascism Unless Workers Unite

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP).—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for the Presidency last year, tonight told an audience at the University of Chicago that unless manual and brain workers combine in effective economic and political organization an American version of fascism is probable.

He declared the greatest dangers confronting recovery arise from backwardness in social organization. He urged organization of consumers for protection against price profiteering.

Elgen Flays I. C. C. Phone Rate Control

Right of State Regulation Urged at Convention . . . in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Oct. 11 (Spl.).—Riley E. Elgen, acting chairman of the District of Columbia Public Utilities Commission, today launched an attack on Interstate Commerce Commission control over telephone depreciation charges and classification of accounts before the National Association of Railway and Utility Commissions in convention here.

"Public utility services regulated by Federal authority are the only ones which have not decreased," he said, "that is, freight rates and telephone rates."

Reviewing efforts of the District and eight State commissions to persuade the I. C. C. to surrender control of intrastate telephone business, Elgen expressed hope the I. C. C. "will do the only fair and reasonable thing" and recommend to Congress that promulgation of a uniform system of accounts and the determination of depreciation rates be removed from that commission's jurisdiction.

Until that is done, he said, "effective regulation can not be expected from State bodies," and "relief in the matter of lower rates is difficult under present conditions." He explained that the District Commission now has a rate case pending in the courts.

Elgen expressed the belief, however, that the telephone companies would seek voluntarily to reduce rates to improve their relations with the public.

Elgen cited the limitation the District commission exercises over the Potomac Electric Power Co.'s depreciation fund as being an ideal arrangement. The District commission contends telephone rates might be lowered in Washington if the depreciation fund could be reduced.

Woman Inherits Pflaster Estate

Property Left to Man Who Died Is Claimed.

Bluemont Farm, located in rolling Virginia pasture land where many fine race horses have been raised, has a new mistress—Mrs. Alice Martin Turner, formerly of St. Louis.

The farm, lying in Loudoun and Clarke Counties, was the property of Mrs. Mary Pflaster, who died in May at her Washington residence, Eighteenth and K streets northwest, leaving an estate valued at $200,000. Mrs. Pflaster also left real estate on F street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets northwest, and at Nineteenth and K streets northwest. In her will she bequeathed all her property to her husband, George Pflaster.

Pflaster, however, preceded his wife two months in death, and the property went to Mrs. Turner. The estate was handled by Michael Doyle, Washington attorney.

Glimpse of a retirement ceremony at Veterans' Administration. Left to right—Miss Jennie J. Harris, William B. Koontz, J. N. Kreider, Frank Schaffer (retiring after more than 41 years' service in Pensions work), E. G. Flester and Mrs. Edna Robey.

DEMANDS that practice of placing workers on a temporary basis cease as reorganization proceeds in several departments was made yesterday by E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes.

BAKER.

"Several hundred employes in the newly formed Division of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations alone have lost all leave privileges because they have been placed on a temporary basis," Mr. Babcock pointed out, after a conference with Arno B. Cammerer, director. "Workers in other agencies have been affected similarly. Besides loss of leave privileges, they are subject to dismissal without regard to efficiency or preference they may have."

Mr. Cammerer is reported to have told the labor leader that under present conditions it has not been possible to do other than give the employes a temporary status. More than 3,000 workers are affected, being formerly with the old Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks and the National Park Service.

The A. F. G. E. has pushed this matter to the forefront of their program for improvement of Federal working conditions, taking rank with the fight for restoration of salary levels, fight on the "marriage clause" and other reforms.

Jew Refugee Board Voted

Protection Plan Described at Final League Session.

Geneva, Oct. 11 (AP).—The League of Nations assembly, convening September 25, adjourned its fourteenth session today, after obtaining approval of a plan to appoint a high commissioner for Jewish refugees.

The session adopted a variety of reports, including reports showing progress toward abolition of slavery and drug traffic. It went on record with the view that the World Economic Conference has not yet completed its work.

Assembly members were pleased by the return of Argentina, and elected the South American nation to the council. Others elected were Australia, Denmark, and Portugal.

Germany agreed to the proposal that the league council appoint a high commissioner to deal with Jewish refugees, on the stipulation that the project is not otherwise linked to the league.

The assembly president, Charles te Water, in his closing address predicted that international peace was assured "if the leaders of the great powers changed their policies from fear and resentment to a policy of generosity."

Nazi Assault On American Brings Action

Hull Will Check Whether Prosecution Ordered in Dozen Cases.

Check-up by American diplomatic representatives of prosecution of Nazi storm troops for alleged participation in attacks on American citizens was promised yesterday by Secretary of State Hull.

He said the investigation will form the basis of the government's future policy toward Germany in regard to these attacks.

Secretary Hull said he was awaiting definite information before he could state whether this Government might publicly announce that it can no longer guarantee the protection of American citizens in Germany. Information as to the promptness of promised prosecutions is especially desired.

Yesterday's action came as the result of an official report to the State Department of an alleged attack on Roland Velz, native American, at Duesseldorf during a recent Nazi parade.

Information from the consul general at Berlin, George S. Messersmith, stated that Velz has filed an affidavit declaring he was not only attacked by storm troopers without provocation but police to whom he appealed refused to act.

Velz and his wife, according to the affidavit, were walking on the sidewalk when the parade passed. Many spectators were moving up and down the street, paying no attention to the parade, he avers. Without provocation, Velz declared, an S. A. man twice hit him in the face, causing his mouth and nose to bleed.

Action following the report of the Velz case is the most vigorous yet taken by the Government to secure punishment of offenders. At least a dozen such cases have been reported, officials estimate.

Repeal Nears, Rum Program To Be Hurried

(United Press.)

President Roosevelt made plans last night to meet two major problems—liquor and Congress—that already appear to be headed for the White House doorstep.

The Chief Executive, who swung back to domestic matters after having settled half a dozen questions affecting Panama and the United States, revealed that if and when prohibition is repealed he was desirous of having a program ready.

Concerning Congress, he and Senate Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson went over plans for clearing away routine affairs before the session starts in January.

Within a week Mr. Roosevelt will bring together four agencies representing the Treasury, Internal Revenue, Justice Department and State Department, in an effort to coordinate the independent work already accomplished on repeal problems.

Anticipating the end of prohibition, they were expected to formulate a liquor policy before Congress meets and also to draw up legislative recommendations. Decisions also would be made, it was felt, on matters of taxation with consideration to the possibility of nullifying certain so-called "nuisance" taxes in anticipation of liquor revenue.

An indication congressional committees might get to work on liquor legislation before the session starts was given by Robinson after the White House discussion in which Mr. Roosevelt let it be known he would have budget estimates ready soon.

"Committees will be asked to hold hearings on general appropriation bills prior to the meeting of the next session with a view to disposing of those bills early in the session."

Discussing emergency measures passed by the extra session he said "reasonably satisfactory progress was being made" in their administration.

"My information," he asserted, "is that approximately one-third of the unemployed have been absorbed into actual labor."

Mr. Roosevelt, who put in one of the busiest days in many weeks, concluded his conversations with President Artas of Panama. It was indicated at the White House that requests of Panama for permission to establish its own radio station and competition between United States commissaries in the Canal Zone and native merchants be eliminated had been satisfactorily met.

Culbertson on Bridge

Psychologically Speaking.

If you has as partner one of America's master players and faced a crucial situation in a rubber game where opponents, whom you ranked slightly below yourself in skill and finesse, had a game on the rubber while you had a part-score of 60 but no game and wished to convert this part-score into a game, what response should you make to an Opening bid of one notrump by your partner, as Dealer, holding

♡ 8 6
◇ Q J 9 6
♣ Q J 8 2

A controversy on this question started recently after the conclusion of a hand at one of the Bridge clubs in New York, and continued after the rubber hand ended and even through the dinner hour as well. It resulted in the placing of a small wager as to the correct call and the reference of the matter to two distinguished experts—namely, Messrs. Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Oswald Jacoby. After consideration, Mr. von Zedtwitz decided that the proper response was two diamonds, with the full intention later of bidding three clubs, provided there was an adverse Overcall of two hearts. He said, however, that with some opponents he would bid two notrump in an effort to forestall further bidding. Mr. Jacoby, in answer to the same question, decided that his response would be two clubs, arguing that if there was an adverse Overcall of two hearts or two spades which his partner found it expedient to pass, not even raising his clubs to three, then obviously the Opening Hand must be prepared to play the hand at diamonds.

In my opinion both of these great experts failed to take into consideration all the elements in the case. It is true that, judged purely by the standards laid down for Raises, the responding hand does not have the honor-tricks to justify a Raise. However, in view of the fact that opponents are vulnerable and that the side which has opened the bidding has a part-score of 60, I believe that the proper response to the Opening bid of one notrump is neither two diamonds nor two clubs, but the bold and daring bid of two notrump.

If the vulnerability situation were reversed, then I believe that the responding hand has no other good bid available than two diamonds, but with the opponents vulnerable and with a strong partner and a part-score situation, such as above, there always exists the possibility—indeed, the strong probability—that the Opening bid may be shaded or even supershaded. If it is greatly shaded or was an out-and-out psychic, of course I should not expect to make two notrump on the hand, but, on the other hand, I can conceive the possibility of an adverse bid of two hearts or even two spades successfully carried to a game contract by vulnerable opponents.

As a matter of fact, the response of two notrump was made by one of the parties to the dispute. The Opening bid had been made on

A spade was opened, and the Declarer eventually was set 2 tricks. It was at this moment that the argument began, the Opening bidder pointing out that either two clubs or two diamonds could be made, while two notrump was an utter impossibility. As a matter of fact, two in the minor suit can be made due to the fortunate location of the diamond King, which would be caught between the upper millstone of the Ace and the nether millstone of the Queen-Knave.

U. S. Officials Launch Wheat Bootleg Probe

(Associated Press.)

Bureau of Internal Revenue agents have been assigned to investigate widespread complaints that wheat bootlegging is prevalent in the grain belt.

The bootlegging has taken the form of violations by growers of regulations permitting them to have their own wheat ground into flour for home us, tax free.

This privilege was given when the farm bill was passed. Now millers' organizations and others are protesting that growers in many instances are having more flour ground than is necessary for their own use and that the surplus is being sold at a profit.

Farm Adjustment Administration officials said they would cooperate with the Revenue Bureau to end the violations.

County extension agents and others in the grain belt will be told to have protests referred to the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Enforcement of the regulations placing a 30 cents a bushel tax on wheat is the responsibility of the Bureau, is as collection of the levy. Wholesale violations, however, would threaten the administration's wheat production control program.

The administration has estimated the levy would yield about $135,000,000 annually. The proceeds are to be used to pay wheat growers for reducing acreage next year.

The administration is concerned lest the bootlegging grow and returns from the tax will fall far below the amount necessary to pay for production control.

Unless bootlegging is stopped, there probably will be an effort in the next Congress to take away from the farmer the right to have his flour ground free.

Chicago's State St. Has Birthday Party

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP). — Chicago celebrated State street's 100th birthday today, and the birthday cake was 25 feet long.

The guests were so many, police estimating 10,000, that 100 officers were required to make way down the street for the cake.

At State and Madison streets, which Chicago calls the "World's Busiest Corner," the cake, bearing 100 red candles, was cut. Everybody ate some. The mayor made a speech.

"We're the fastest growing, most virile city in the world," he said, "and we're not going to stop or slow down."

Minimum Price Fixing Sought In Food Code

Wholesalers and Retailers Demand Retention of Stop-Loss Feature.

Virtually unanimous demand that minimum price fixing provisions be left in the master food code was given farm administration officials yesterday.

Rallying to support of the provisions attacked by R. H. Macy & Co., spokesmen as economically unsound, wholesalers and retailers reiterated their confidence in the stop-loss elements of the code. Two requests were made to raise the margins established in the document.

Direct consumer interest reached the hearing for the first time yesterday when Alice L. Edwards, executive secretary of the American Home Economics Association, asked that a clause be inserted requiring grades of food to be plainly marked on packages.

Ask Minimum Markup.

A minimum markup of 10 per cent for retailers instead of 7½ per cent was advocated for staples by George Schultz, St. Louis food journal editor, as the hearing entered its third day. C. Y. Early, president of the Texas Wholesale Grocers Association, asked 10 per cent for retailers and 3½ instead of 2½ per cent for wholesalers.

R. H. Macy & Co. was attacked by retailers and wholesalers alike for branding as "absurd" the minimum price clause. A. J. Falk, San Francisco wholesaler, said the minimum markup feature would not necessarily increase profits nor boost the average of food costs. The use of "loss leaders" as advertising was condemned by Louis Ginsburg, New York distributor.

H. M. Poulhaus, Baltimore grocer, asserted below-cost selling was used by large organizations to demoralize markets. Clarence Francis and Paul Willis, spokesmen for grocery manufacturers, joined in the plea against permitting continuance of the loss practice.

Chain Store Views.

F. H. Massmann, representing chain store interests, expressed belief that the markup clause would not reduce chain profits, nor increase independent store profits.

Brokers at the hearing sought an amendment to prevent voluntary or chain groups doing their own brokering from receiving a commission on their deals.

The sugar industry yesterday joined eight other major food manufacturing or processing groups seeking exemption from the code.

Labor Leaders' Diamonds Out-Glittered Society Opera

High Official Explains $10,000,000 Stones Were Just Gifts.

More diamonds than are usually seen at the Metropolitan Opera are in evidence at the meetings of the American Federation of Labor.

A conservative estimate places the value of diamonds worn at the present convention near $10,000,000.

There is a reason for this unostentatious display of precious stones.

Almost every labor leader in Washington has at some time or other been a business agent for his local union. As business agent, it became his duty to adjust differences between employers and employes. Whenever the adjustment was made in favor of the workers, the men voted an award to the business agent.

They gave big diamonds—big ones, of one or two carats. At least, this is the explanation of one high labor officer.

Prisoner Is Extradited In $500,000 Theft

Oklahoma City, Oct. 11 (AP).—Gov. W. H. Murray today ordered the extradition to San Antonio, Tex., of Elmer Burd, charged with conspiracy to receive stolen property in connection with the theft of five $100,000 Government bonds from a New York bank.

Tennessee Valley Chief Given Norris Faith

McCook, Nebr., Oct. 11 (AP).—Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, has written Dr. A. E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, denying reports that he is dissatisfied with Morgan's management and is seeking his removal.

"My confidence in you has not been lessened and even if I had it in my power to cause your removal, I would not think of such a thing," Senator Norris wrote.

10,000 Attend Rites For Morris Hillquit

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Ten thousand persons surrounded Cooper Union today during the funeral for Morris Hillquit, chairman of the Socialist party.

Mrs. Billy Sunday, Jr., Fined for Auto Crash

Santa Monica, Calif., Oct. 11 (AP). Convicted of reckless driving, Mrs. Mae Sunday, former wife of Billy Sunday, jr., today was told to pay a $100 fine or spend 50 days in jail. Then the judge suspended $50 of the fine and Mrs. Sunday paid the remainder.

The sentence followed a collision Tuesday.

Harlan Ware Divorced On Charge of Cruelty

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP).—Mrs. Virginia Hickman Ware today was granted a divorce from Harlan Ware, novelist and playwright, by Judge Joseph Sabath of the superior court.

To support her charge of cruelty, Mrs. Ware testified the writer pushed her from his studio when she interrupted his writing.

No alimony was provided. Mrs. Ware said she and Ware agreed on joint custody of their son, Richard, 4½ years old.

Tell me something..
what makes a cigarette taste better

WHAT makes anything taste better? It's what is in it that makes a thing taste better.

CHESTERFIELDS taste better because we buy ripe tobaccos. These ripe tobaccos are aged two and a half years—thirty months. During this time the tobaccos improve—just like wine improves by ageing.

CHESTERFIELDS taste better because they have the right kind of home-grown tobaccos and Turkish Tobaccos "welded together."

4,200 Kings Mountain Graves To Be Moved From Flood Area

Valley Authority Plans Memorial Cemetery for War Heroes.

Bodies of many pioneers and early patriots will be moved from the area to be flooded by the Norris Dam, near Knoxville, Tenn.

More than 4,200 graves from 92 cemeteries, many of them the resting place of men who fought in the decisive battle of Kings Mountain, will be transferred to make way for the Government project.

Representatives of the Tennessee Valley Authority have mapped each cemetery, numbered each grave and recorded the wording on the tombstones prior to moving the remains. A historian and a contact man are interviewing families of the dead to learn their wishes as to reburial.

Dotting the 50,000 acres to be flooded are some of the first cemeteries established west of the Allegheny Mountains. A majority of the graves will be relocated in a national memorial cemetery, the authority plans.

Religious, patriotic and civic bodies are cooperating so that reinterment will be carried out with due reverence and respect. A Tennessee Valley church advisory committee has been organized by various denominations to arrange the removal of churches in the area.

Historical data will be collected and given to the University of Tennessee, which will make them available to all historical bodies.

Georgia Gets $500,000 For Relief of Jobless

Georgia was granted $500,000 of Federal Relief Funds yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, relief director, to help provide unemployment relief for the remainder of October, according to the Associated Press.

"The grant was allotted from the 'discretionary' fund of Federal relief money," Hopkins said. "When information was submitted that the money available from all sources within the State, including previous allotments of Federal funds, was insufficient to pay relief costs."

Price Movements.

In these days when everybody is convinced that rising prices are essential to the restoration of prosperity, there is danger of forgetting that high prices have not always been regarded as an unmitigated blessing. When high prices result from a lack of economic balance, reflecting an unhealthy state of the economic organism, the conditions which give rise to them create accompanying disorders which lead eventually to a reactionary downward movement of prices. Generally speaking, however, the public is singularly blind to these long-time trends. Absorbed in contemplation of current developments, people and their legislative representatives frequently mistake the superficial signs of economic distress for the causes of existing maladjustments. Hence, time and energy may be dissipated in treating symptoms instead of trying to correct basic evils.

A striking example of this short-sighted method of approach to the solution of price problems is found in a resolution adopted by the Senate of the United States in May, 1920, directing the Federal Reserve Board to "advise the Senate what steps it purposes to take or to recommend to the member banks of the Federal Reserve system to meet the existing inflation of currency and credits and consequent high prices." When that resolution was approved cotton was bringing over 40 cents per pound in the leading markets of the United States. By the end of the year it had dropped below 15 cents per pound and was still declining. A few months later, the farm price of cotton fell to 8 cents per pound. Wool, which sold for 66 cents per pound in May, was quoted at 30 cents in December, and had fallen to 26 cents by the summer of 1921. Hard winter wheat selling for $2.93 per bushel in Kansas City, when the Senate was demanding action to reduce prices, had declined to $1.69 per bushel by the following December and had dropped to $1.09 by the end of 1921. The farm price of wheat fell meantime from $2.50 per bushel in May, 1920, to $1.46 in December and to 93 cents a year later. Sugar, bringing 21 cents per pound in May, 1920, was quoted at 5 cents in December; rubber, worth 39 cents per pound in May, dropped to 17 cents in December, while the general level of wholesale prices fell about 35 per cent between May and December.

In short, when the Senate was adopting its resolution, the decline in prices was already upon us. Alert students of business conditions had noted unmistakable signs of the impending collapse some time before the climax of the inflationary post-armistice price advance was reached in May, 1920. Those who had been following the course of developments in the United States and the rest of the world realized that the cessation of war-time buying of certain commodities and the gradual removal of war-time restrictions would require fundamental readjustments to accommodate our industry and to adapt our financial methods to the requirements of a peace-time economy.

This process of adjustment was delayed, however, by the sudden expansion of buying during the latter part of 1919, stimulated by the prevailing high level of wages and financed in part out of surplus income accumulated during the war period. The consequence was a further rapid rise in prices, an expansion of plant capacity to meet increased consumer demands, and a growing strain upon the credit facilities of the country. Strikes and congestion on the railroads caused delays in deliveries and helped to create the mistaken impression that the high and rising prices were due to scarcity.

Early in 1920, however, signs of trouble ahead began to appear. Cancellations of orders were reported in increasing numbers. Inability to market goods was reflected in the strain upon credit facilities with accompanying advances in discount rates. The collapse of the Japanese silk market called attention to the fact that large stocks of silk had accumulated in New York and were being carried on borrowed money. Later it became apparent that the supposed shortage of many kinds of goods was illusory. When the necessity of liquidating credit by moving commodities into distributive channels no longer could be evaded, the inevitable deflation of the price structure followed.

The Senate resolution of 1920 provides a striking illustration of legislative action based upon failure properly to analyze the basic causes of economic maladjustments and thus to apprehend the trend of the times.

Arlington's Sewer System.

The development of Arlington County will be greatly expedited by the action of the Public Works Administration in allotting $2,500,000 to that county for construction of an adequate sewer system. Thirty per cent of this sum is an outright grant, and the balance will be secured by a bond issue. It is estimated that the work will give employment to 500 men for 22 months, beginning within 60 days.

The system will include mains, laterals, and two primary sewage disposal plants. Studies are in progress to determine the advisability of joining the outlets of the District of Columbia and Arlington County sewer systems in one disposal plant which will insure protection of the Potomac against pollution and possibly make profitable use of sewage.

Arlington County is capable of rapid growth by reason of its natural attractions and accessibility, and the installation of such conveniences as a modern sewer system will add materially to its facilities for taking care of increased population. That area, in view of the steady development of Washington, is essentially an urban community which should provide itself with all the accessories of a city.

Uncle Sam as Landlord.

Secretary Ickes' plan to establish a Federal housing corporation raises a number of difficult questions. The project is still under consideration, although tentative articles of incorporation have been drafted.

Under the public works section of the National recovery act the President is authorized to establish such agencies as he may find necessary "to effectuate the purposes of this title." The act provides, however, that agencies established thereunder shall cease to exist at the expiration of two years, or sooner if the President or Congress shall declare that the emergency has ended. The functions of such agencies would then be transferred to some governmental department designated by the President.

These provisions ought to be kept in mind in considering the feasibility of a Federal corporation to construct and to sell or lease low-priced housing projects. Undertakings of this kind are of a continuing nature. If a Federal corporation should acquire property in the slum districts of various cities and erect modern apartments, it would be necessary either to sell these buildings or to operate them. There can be no assurance, of course, that the Government could sell projects of this kind. At the expiration of two years the proposed housing corporation might have to relinquish to one of the executive departments an extensive real estate business.

The Public Works Administration has allotted funds to several municipalities and a considerable number of local corporations for slum clearance and construction of low-priced dwellings. But that is quite a different proposition. Municipal governments are in a better position to supervise or manage undertakings of this kind located within their own corporate limits. Uncle Sam might encounter formidable difficulties if he should take over the role of rent collector, especially among families with meager incomes.

The establishment of a Federal housing agency is proposed as a means of overcoming the delay encountered in slum-clearance enterprises. Local groups are finding it difficult to work out practical plans for replacement of hovels by modern apartments. The ability of residents in squalid neighborhoods to pay rentals, even in the low-priced dwellings, must be considered. No doubt this is one reason why local agencies are proceeding with caution. Unless the Government is ready to include housing in its relief activities, it must face the same questions as to the economic feasibility of low-cost housing on an extensive scale.

The Cost of Relief.

The problem of financing emergency relief is growing more serious with the passing of every month. When want became prevalent in 1930, relief work was carried on almost entirely with private funds. When these became inadequate, local governmental agencies were called upon to supplement private charity. In recent months, however, local relief agencies have been withdrawing from the field in favor of Uncle Sam.

A survey by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, covering the month of May, showed that 93 per cent of all relief was being financed by public funds. Of the public funds only 6.5 per cent was contributed by the States, and 20.8 per cent by local governments. The remainder, 72.7 per cent, was made up by the Federal Government. The percentage of relief funds supplied by the Government may be even larger now, because of the disposition of the States to throw this responsibility upon Uncle Sam.

Some States have been extremely negligent, and the States as a whole make a very poor showing. It is not unreasonable that funds should be drawn from the Federal Treasury to meet grave emergency situations beyond the capacity of some States to handle. But the tendency to dump almost the entire relief problem into Uncle Sam's lap is cause for apprehension. The $500,000,000 appropriated for relief at the last session of Congress soon will disappear, unless the States do their part, and large additional drafts on the Treasury may be necessary.

Mystery of Columbus.

The passing of time increases rather than diminishes world interest in Christopher Columbus, whose discovery of the New World is supposed to have occurred on October 12, 441 years ago today. Perhaps it will be conceded that this man's achievement was followed by more momentous consequences than have ever resulted from any other human act. The discovery marked a turning point in the history of mankind.

Yet the mysteries surrounding Columbus remain unsolved in large part. During the last few months the city of Genoa has issued an ambitious and beautifully detailed work intended to prove that Genoa is the city of his nativity. The evidence is persuasive; but so long as the archives of Spain remain unexplored there is the possibility of unearthing information concerning Columbus which may require vital alterations of history as it is now written. The immense stores of papers at Seville, Toledo, Salamanca and elsewhere have been examined superficially, but only in part, and tens of thousands of documents have not been examined at all.

The task of unraveling the mysteries that envelop Columbus as a man is made more difficult because of his own secretive habits and his deliberate resort to mystification. Even his signature is a cipher that never has been completely disclosed. His aims and ambitions were so grandiose that he might have been stamped as a madman if he had not doubled the size of the world itself. He held these ambitions before his discovery, and undoubtedly they spurred him forward on the voyage into unknown space. He died in ignorance of the scope of his discovery, but he never circumscribed his ambitions.

It can not be doubted that the correct and complete history of Columbus remains to be compiled and written. Many scholars have delved in this deep mine, bringing out precious ores, but there is more to be dug out—and perhaps the store that remains is richer than all that has been taken out.

A Peace Pact Signed.

Six Latin-American nations—Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Paraguay, Uruguay and Mexico—have signed an anti-war treaty. The agreement condemns aggressive war, and its adherents pledge themselves not to recognize the acquisition of territory gained by force. Originally proposed by the Foreign Minister of Argentina, Dr. Carlos Saavedra Lamas, the document was signed in Rio de Janeiro in the presence of President Vargas of Brazil and his guest, President Justo of Argentina.

The treaty, which embraces the basic principles of the Kellogg-Briand pact renouncing war, was first intended to include only South American nations, but exception was made in the case of Mexico, as one of the important members of the Spanish-American family. The new pact contains 17 articles. After condemning aggressive warfare, the convention binds the signatory nations to settle differences arising between any two of them by the peaceable means provided by international law.

Provision is made for a conciliation commission to settle disputes or conflicts which may arise. This body will consist of five members, one to be named by each party to a dispute, the other three, not citizens of either contending country, to be selected by common agreement. Once submitted to the commission a question can not be withdrawn except by direct settlement between the governments involved, or their decision to submit the issue to the Permanent Court of International Justice.

South American opinion hails the treaty as one of great importance and is particularly gratified that it is the result of the spontaneous efforts of national leaders in South America. The adherence of Paraguay engenders hope that Bolivia may also be brought into agreement, so that the prolonged Chaco controversy might be the first case to be brought before the peace commission.

In Arizona hunters will be prohibited from shooting game within 100 yards of an automobile road this year; possibly for fear that undersized automobiles may be mistaken for jackrabbits.

Uncle Sam thinks he has his troubles, but wait till he becomes the landlord of low-priced apartments.

Turn on the Heat.

From the New York Sun.

Seasonal domestic disputes over starting the furnace fire, wrangling of tenants with janitors on the same subject, facetious complaints of office and factory workers where the management is frugal with coal or oil in October—all this friction centers in apparatus either unheard of or known in its primitive forms as a great luxury 75 or 80 years ago; apparatus still advertised in large gold letters as a luxurious inducement on thousands of small hotel fronts in the capital of France and its provincial cities—"chauffage centrale"—and still scorned by hardy Britishers of the old school except when they demand it on the continent.

A recent accession of the Smithsonian Institution—parts of a warm-air heating furnace purchased in 1850 by Washington Irving for Christ Church, Tarrytown-on-Hudson—conveniently dates the beginning of central heating in the United States. Public buildings had been so equipped before—the first hot-air furnace is said to have been built in Worcester, Mass., in 1835—but it was long afterward that the fireplace and the stove began to give way generally in private dwellings to central heating systems.

Even fireplaces and stoves are modern conveniences in historical times. The house chimney was a bold innovation of medieval days, no evidence existing of any before the twelfth century. Until then braziers, or fireplaces without chimneys—their flues opened to the outside air through oblong holes in a wall—did very well for most people in the winters of northern Europe. Stoves for house heating came into general use in America only a little more than a century ago, base burners of the kind now surviving in a few general stores and bunk houses arriving in 1830.

Benjamin Franklin gets credit for the first practical stoves adapted to housewarming (1744) and probably for the first essays at central heating by hot air. Steam and hot-water systems came into popular use in the United States only yesterday—in the last quarter of the nineteenth century, that is. Oil-burning furnaces for general household use were first suggested in 1917. The oil heating industry, now one of our great and important ones, was just getting up steam ten years ago.

A LETTER ON THE BARBERS' CODE.

Dear Gen. Johnson: I see by the papers that the NRA is at present having its troubles trying to fix a fair price for a hair cut so the barbers' code may be amicably settled. Well, you will not settle it easily, as it is a question that people have been arguing over for the last 1,000 years. In the history of the world, in fact, nobody has ever got anywhere trying to win an argument with a barber.

• • • •

Personally, I think it should depend on the head. I have never been able to see why a man with practically no hair at all should have to pay exactly the same price for a hair cut as Prof. Piccard. You take me. I have no more hair than a grapefruit and the only place it will grow is around the ears and the back of my neck, yet when I go into a barber shop I am soaked the regular whole-time price, although my head is only a part-time job.

• • •

I suppose the barber figures that as he don't see me often he has got to average up, but there is no justice in that theory. I propose the NRA fix the following rates for hair cuits:

Unblighted heads with a rich growth of straight hair ..... 35 cents
Unblighted curly heads.... 45 cents
It's-going-fast heads..... 25 cents
Nearly bald heads..... 20 cents
100 per cent bald heads, 2 for ..... 15 cents

• • • •

You have got to have a schedule like that if you are for the square deal. When a barber sees a baldhead come into his shop, it is so much velvet, and if he is entitled to the full charge, then a plumber who comes to plug up a leak in the pipe is entitled to make the same charge he would make for installing a gas furnace.

• • • •

I think maybe heads should be cut on a time basis. Certainly a man whose head takes a half hour to cut should pay more than a fellow who will need the barber only two or three minutes. Is there any justice in making Jim Farley pay as much for a trim as Senator Borah? I ask you.

• • • •

Of course, we all realize that a barber gives the same time to one man as another because he talks so much. He figures about 10,000 words to a customer, bald, medium or Paderewski. That is the real trouble, Gen. Johnson.

• • • •

I would suggest that you put something in the barber-shop code making a barber lose his Blue Eagle if he talks about the horse races, Max Baer or the stock market during business hours. In this way you would cripple him pretty completely as a conversationalist.

• • • •

Anyhow, I wish you luck, general, but it will probably be a long struggle if you expect to have the last word in any powwow with a tonsorialist.

Yours,
ELMER TWITCHELL.

CHARLES READE'S BEST NOVEL

When I was a boy, one of the most popular of living novelists was the Englishman, Charles Reade. His books were printed as serials in well-known American magazines; then they came out in book form. If I remember rightly, "The Wandering Heir" visited our house in Harper's Weekly. Although most of his novels I have not seen for 50 years, I can vividly remember many of the incidents in them. For example, the homesick miners in Australia listening to the singing of the English skylark. Years ago, when I was traveling in Alaska, I met a man from Australia. I told him all I knew of his country was what I had read as a child in "It Is Never Too Late to Mend," by Charles Reade, and I asked him if he knew the book. He became excited, and said it had changed his whole life. He was born in Birmingham, England, read that novel as a boy and, as a consequence, ran away to Australia. He was now a middle-aged man, returning for the first time to England by way of America.

But Reade's best novel is his great historical romance, "The Cloister and the Hearth." The success of this story, like that of so many others, depends on its wonderful presentment of the friendship between two men. No one will ever forget the night they killed the leader of the band of robbers.

Even Whiskers Are Endeared by Time To Those Who See Them Often

By Robert Quillen.

When you spend a month or so away from home, you make the acquaintance of strange newspapers that are uniformly disappointing.

They may contain the same news, the same features and the same comic strips found in your home-town paper, but you feel cheated none the less.

The headlines are different. Your favorite feature is on the wrong page. Even the type face is unfamiliar. In short, everything seems wrong because you aren't accustomed to it.

And there you have discovered the greatest asset that any institution can possess. It is the attraction of the ordinary—the holding power of the familiar.

Numbers of smart business men have forgotten its value in recent years and sacrificed it in a vain effort to get blood from a turnip.

Frightened by mounting deficits, they have blamed their product instead of the times and discarded familiar things to catch the customer's eye with something new.

A magazine loved and trusted by middle-aged people changed its appearance and the nature of its contents to meet new competition. Perhaps it gained new readers, but many an old one turned its pages with a sense of outrage. An old friend had been supplanted by a stranger.

A certain toilet article known to our grandmothers suffered a like fate. Its package was old-fashioned and distinctive, and old friends accepted it as a guarantee of quality. Then the wrapper was changed to catch the eye of moderns and at once the article became one of dozens competing for notice. Drug clerks call heaven to witness that the contents have not changed, but old customers glare at the new package and will have none of it.

Makers of fine cars know the value of the familiar. Their new models change but little, for their chief concern is to hold the affection of old patrons—not to please the transient taste of the crowd.

Progressive we may be, but nothing is so dear to us as the thing we have always known.

'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam, we still prefer things we got used to at home.

Young people demand new things because they haven't been here long enough to grow fond of the old. But woe to the leader who changes his doctrine after middle age gets used to it.

Press Comment

Houston Post.

According to General Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, in good times the railroads consume about 25 per cent of all the coal mined in this country, 16 per cent of the steel production and almost the same percentage of the lumber. In 1927 nearly 1,750,000 employes drew a total of more than $2,900,000,000 in wages and more than $1,000,000,000 was paid out in interest and dividends. There are 1,000,000 fewer employes today than in 1920. Last year the country's steel production was less than one-fourth that of 1929, and yet of this diminished output the railroads took only 12 per cent. Orders for new freight cars were only one-fiftieth of those placed in 1929. The annual expenditure on maintenance of way was cut 59 per cent. The net income of the railroads was almost $140,000,000 below their fixed charges for the year.

Governmental aid extended to the railroads at this time would, if sufficiently liberal, give an impetus to the general movement for recovery. There is perhaps no other field in which the benefits would be so quickly apparent and so widely distributed.

Firearms for Lawful Use.

Kansas City Star.

When the submachine gun, high-caliber rifle and other effects of Albert Bates, convicted Urschel kidnaper, are sold at public auction in Denver to satisfy a judgment against the gangster, it is to be hoped that the successful bidder will not be from the ranks of organized crime. It is explained that Colorado has no law pertaining to possession of firearms, so, presumably, any ambitious member of the underworld with the ready cash could bid in the weapons that Bates himself no longer can use.

That is suggestive of a laxity throughout the country which has contributed in no small way to the spread of crime and the murderous activities that have made a good part of it.

Financing the Next War.

Providence Journal.

The long controversy over the war debts has not been without illuminating results. It has taught not only this Nation, but other nations, that intergovernmental loans for war purposes are not considered as belonging in the same category as obligations contracted for non-war usages. It is unlikely, therefore, that war landing in the future will be as freely indulged in as it was in the World War. Governments seeking financial assistance from allied governments will presumably be asked to dig deeper into their own pockets. If that were understood in advance, there might be less inclination to fight.

With Carlisle Bargeron

I CAN'T help but believe that Mr. Roosevelt's announced war on Jackie Coogan's salary is a shrewd move to get the revolutionaries fighting among themselves. The war is not to be against Jackie's salary alone. It is to be against all of the high movie salaries, but I got the distinct impression from what Mr. Roosevelt said at his press conference yesterday that he had Jackie mostly in mind.

Bargeron.

He made known in answer to inquiries that he had directed the deputy NRA administrator hearing the film code to look into the matter of the high salaries for actors and actresses. That some of them are making "five times as much as the President of the United States," he said, in effect, was disgraceful, a situation that needed remedying, and from another expression he used he seemed to have Jackie foremost in mind.

Not being where I could well see his features, I later discussed with my colleagues the matter as to whether Mr. Roosevelt had spoken in altogether serious vein, and was assured there was no doubt of it, that, indeed, he had spoken with some feeling.

• • • •

I suppose other Presidents have the same way, but Mr. Roosevelt is the first, so far as I know, to give public utterance to it. That Jackie Coogan or Hal Roach or any of the rest of them should get more money than Mr. Roosevelt is unfair in any planned system because for one thing, he puts on just as good a show.

My concern, though, is with the conviction that this is but Mr. Roosevelt's way of getting the revolutionary mob to fighting among themselves. Everywhere I sought reaction on the President's attitude, among my colleagues, among others, it was greeted with joy.

"They've got no business getting those high salaries," was the general response. So you see how it works.

• • • •

FELLOW revolutionaries, we should not fall for this trick. The movie stars are of us, not of the enemy class. Why, a few months ago they were ribbon clerks, cabaret dancing girls and the like. No one of them is from the House of Morgan. I can't recall Jackie Coogan's background, but I do know he did not go to Hollywood from Kuhn, Loeb & Co., or from Clarence Dillon's outfit. None of them is a Wall Street product.

They are from our own ranks. It happens they've got in on the big money but we should not let any envy of them blind us to the fundamental fact they are on our side.

• • • •

IF their salaries are slashed it will be a redistribution of wealth, all right, but not the kind we had thought. We want to keep our eyes straight ahead and our minds clear on that. Let's not be sidetracked.

Remember the promise—the redistribution was to come from the industrial and financial giants, from that celebrated 3 per cent where wealth is concentrated.

Just how it will adversely affect Mr. Morgan or the Wall street money barons in the slightest for Jackie Coogan's salary to be cut, or for Kay Francis' or for Joan Crawford's is more than I can see.

I knew there was a trick in this redistribution promise all along. It was simply too good to be true. Mark my word now, in the end I'll bet the only redistribution from the class we had been led to expect, will have come from old Gen. Atterbury. He's the only one that has redistributed so far. They made him cut his salary from $110,000 to $60,000 a year!

To switch from him to Jackie Coogan would indicate a change of front which we revolutionaries should not accept.

RUGS FOR COWS.

Farmers in the North will be interested in a report from New South Wales, where experiments have been made in "rugging" cattle to keep them warm. The Agricultural Gazette of that country says "a rugging is almost as good as feed, as much of the food a cow consumes in winter goes to maintain body heat. A rug will do this at little cost if the farmer is handy with corn, wheat or flour sacks." These are quite warm and almost waterproof after they have absorbed some of the oil from the body of the cow.

Just Folks.

By Edgar A. Guest.

Wondering.

I know so little. In a world so vast
I know so little of the ancient past,

That Caesar was a warrior, I know,
But not the curious twist that made him so.

In school I struggled with the books he penned

I cared not much just how his wars he fought,
But wondered why he thought the way he thought.

Brutus was kindly, so I've often read,
Yet he, too, wished the mighty Caesar dead.

How chanced that seed of hatred in his mind
That strength to stab an old friend he could find?

Nowhere appears a sage so wise to state

To live more gently—and I wonder why.

Hitler Policy Believed Key In World Crisis

British Feel Nazi Course Now Will Determine European Alliances.

London, Oct. 11 (AP).—The future policy of Germany's Nazi government, according to the authoritative British view today, likely will be the determining factor whether the present European crisis will develop into a menace to world peace.

If Chancellor Hitler can curb the Nazi hot-heads, these circles believe, the continental nations probably will be able to go along without more serious trouble than an occasional frontier flareup.

If the German policy does not formulate along the conciliatory lines adopted by the German envoys abroad, the British fear serious results may occur.

The Nazi policy toward Austria, the treatment of the Jews, and the present crisis in the arms parley at Geneva are cited by the British observers as contributing to Germany's present virtual isolation in Europe.

Paris-Rome Pact Strong.

This Franco-Italian understanding has reached such a sound state of development, the British views is that even a change of Nazi statesmanship would not undermine it.

A more marked spirit of friendship exists in the Balkans. The present visit of King Alexander and Queen Marie of Jugoslavia to formerly unfriendly lands is typical of this new Balkan spirit indirectly resulting from the conditions in central Europe.

Authoritative opinion in London is that the Nazi statesmanship has driven France and her allied nations to forget their troubles with Russia. This is indicated by the friendly character of the recent missions to Moscow.

Only in the Far East is there a complete ascendance of military Fascism as in Germany.

Kingdom Is Cautious.

Skirting this welter of continental politics, Great Britain steers a cautious course. Secure in feeling that this national government is solidly built upon the confidence of the British public, British leaders are hopeful of contributing to a peace-solution of the new continental crisis.

Near Europe, but not of Europe, Great Britain keeps one weather eye on the continent, knowing that if trouble occurs there she can hardly hope to escape any more than she did in 1914. Her other eye always is toward the dominions, with whom she continues to consolidate their common interests.

Mae West Unheard In Extradition Plea

Cooper Must Return, Says South Carolina Governor.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 11 (AP).—Gov. Blackwood declined today to make a decision in the case of C. D. Cooper, who escaped the South Carolina Penitentiary and began life anew in California.

"He'll have to be brought back here before I consider the case," Blackwood said. He indicated he would hear Cooper's attorneys, but pointed out the prisoner had been "regularly convicted" of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Gov. Rolph of California refused to defer extradition of Cooper, who was arrested at Los Angeles.

Asked if Mae West, the film actress, had written to intercede for Cooper, Gov. Blackwood replied:

Sir Joseph Outerbridge Dies in Philadelphia

Our German Troubles Multiply

The State Department May Soon Get in Deep Water With Berlin

By William Harlan Hale.

That during the last few days the German government has been getting itself further and further into the toils, no one will deny. Everything, despite frantic Berlin attempts, seems going wrong so far as its foreign relations are concerned. Up to now our State Department has been able to maintain its position as a distant, dispassionate observer. But it is a great question how long this can continue.

The chief German contribution to this week's news, outside of several outbursts of oratorical Hitlerites, is the beating of an American citizen by Nazi storm troopers in Dusseldorf. This case follows about a dozen similar ones reported to our consular authorities. Whether any attacks have taken place which were not reported, we can not tell.

But the present incident is due for especial consideration because of what is charged to have been the utter refusal of German police officers to arrest the assailants. The offense was the usual one—failure to give the "Fascist salute" to a passing detachment of storm troopers.

In all the cases so far, the State Department has refrained from taking action, merely awaiting the arrival of regular apologies at our consular or diplomatic offices in Germany. Apologies have been forthcoming in every case, together with promises of "punishment." But, since it is absolutely impossible to get any detailed information in Nazi Germany about the movements of persons, we may assume that little or no disciplinary action has been taken.

The matter would not be so serious if Germany announced straightforwardly that all visitors to the country must carry out the appointed salute. Not only has it failed to make such regulation, but it has officially assured foreigners the salute would not be required of them, any more than the bending of the knee is required of strangers on entering a Roman Catholic Church.

Again, the matter would stand in a clearer, simpler light if Germany's diplomats came out with statements to the effect that they do not care what we thought of her. But Germany's diplomats have done just the opposite. On the very day when this latest American citizen was beaten bloody, Dr. Goebbels, Minister of Popular Enlightenment and Propaganda, was sending a message to a German-American celebration in Germantown, Pa., vowing friendship between the two countries.

These inconsistencies and confusions are too much for most of us to understand. We are entirely at a loss how to deal with present German mentality. One suspects that the State Department is at a loss, too. But it is going to have to make up its mind pretty soon. It will have to decide whether it shall declare American life and property unsafe within the boundaries of Germany.

Germany has made other contributions to the news this week. The chief of these is the publication in America of Hitler's campaign volume, "My Battle." Even a cursory reading of this book sends the chills up and down one's back. There is nothing in the entire work—outside of several subtle suggestions in regard to propaganda and mass appeal—but one long hymn of hate.

Hate against Jews, against Austria, against the liberals, the internationalists, the pacifists. Hate (which has been expunged from the American edition) against France, and threats against England. Hate against freedom in arts and ethics, hatred against all the principles of the twentieth century community.

It is an amazing performance, whose bloodthirstiness is only surpassed by its evidences of the author's mental unbalance. It was written, we learn, in a prison cell in 1924; but its entire aroma suggests another kind of cell. At any rate, it will be a great casebook for the psychiatrists.

And here again appears the gigantic Nazi inconsistency. The same man who this week is allowing this fantastic document to be published is at the same time making responsible speeches to the governments of the world, and making the verbal attempt to play a friendly role at Geneva, among the very liberals, internationalists, and Frenchmen whom his text dedicates to fire and brimstone!

There is no comment one can make to all this. One merely stands with sinister fascination before a spectacle which most of us, before last spring, would have called incredible. But while the State Department stands with us surveying the unearthly scene through telescopes, American heads are being smashed bloody by the official militia of Germany.

Lawyers Flay Court Eviction Of Dimitroff

Americans Rap Ouster of Defendant in Berlin Reich Fire Probe.

Berlin, Oct. 11 (AP).—Foreign attorneys tonight protested against the ordered exclusion of Georgi Dimitroff, Bulgarian, and one of the five defendants, from the sessions of the court, which for more than three weeks has been attempting to solve the mystery of the fire which damaged the Reichstag Building last February.

Dimitroff, whose fiery attacks against court procedure have brought him into difficulties throughout the hearing, was ejected today from the hearings.

Tilted with Judge.

Arthur Garfield Hays, of New York, and Leo Gallagher, another American attorney, are listed as signers of a statement to the press prepared by foreign lawyers which reads:

"If by any chance the three Bulgarian defendants should be found guilty, it will be impossible to make the world believe in the impartiality and objectivity of German justice.

Two Know Little German.

"We would like to point out that there are among the five defendants two—Blagoi Popoff and Wasil Taneff—who understand little, if any, German and who, therefore, do not know what is going on since, strangely enough, the proceedings are not being translated into their language.

"One, namely Marinus van der Lubbe, is apparently so cowed or ill that he does not follow the proceedings and a fourth, Georgi Dimitroff, has for the second time been excluded from the courtroom because he persistently is asking questions which he thinks are helpful to his defense."

Flying Feat Takes Fancy of Britons

Kingsford-Smith's Record Trip Interests King.

London, Oct. 11 (AP).—The breaking of the England-to-Australia flight record by Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith was such important news in London today that it dwarfed such matters as war debts and disarmament.

News of the Australian's success was wired to Sandringham for the information of King George.

Discussing Kingsford-Smith's performance, C. W. A. Scott, whose record was broken, said:

"Now I must think about trying to regain the record. I most certainly shall make an attempt, but it will not be this year. I may have a shot about next March."

"Booby Prize" Can Be Made Delightful, Too

Novelty Shop Has Excellent Suggestions; Dashing Accessories Appear.

By Ruth Ann Davis.

The hostess who would be all that a hostess should be keeps in mind that tact is the key to her success. It's as essential as powder to a shiny nose, salt to potatoes and mint to julep. It must be exercised in the seating of her guests even in the issuing of invitations, and is all important in the choice of prizes.

The so-called "booby" prize should be selected as carefully as the high-score prize. It must be a cheerful, bright kind of compensation, an inexpensive, delightful little favor. For a small party, even a table of bridge, an E street store which specializes in novelties has a delightful suggestion to make. It's a small box of half dozen whisk brooms in gay colors.

So many of the fall evening frocks are prone to severity of line and simple treatment that accessories have come more into the limelight than ever. A somber frock may be embellished strikingly with a few bright touches such as a bag, slippers, jewelry, cigarette cases and compacts.

In the latter line a Washington store is showing some gay and giddy ones that look like mashed rhinestones smoothed down like a mirror. They're small and oblong, an ideal shape to fit an evening bag, and have loose powder compartments. It's quite a surprise to find the price is only 95 cents.

There no longer is any need for stout people to suffer the heavy steel-stayed corsets which fit in ironbound fashion. An F street garment store has some which are guaranteed to keep the figure under control and at the same time to offer complete comfort. They are made of soft, strong batiste, with a zipper front which positively will not bulge. The two-way-stretch rubber back will not lose its shape and the modified uplift bust does just this and that to the form. These corselets are recommended especially to wear under evening dresses.

To look at them you'd never think one little featherweight cellophane package could contain so much usefulness, but when you untie it and peep within, you can see at a glance the little rubber cap can serve you many ways. First of all as a wave guard it's the very thing. It will keep the marcel in overnight, or help the combs to stay in place and leave you a loosely waved coiffure. Or for the shower, it fits snugly and doesn't admit a drop of water. When you're going to be the belle of a ball you want to apply your makeup in more than ordinarily careful manner. Slip one of the little caps over your head, push your hair up under it, and there you are, free and unhampered for intricate facial designing.

Despite all the tempting looking frocks in the shops, some people prefer to make their own evening dresses, cut them to fit like wax and design them a la Schiaparelli.

A downtown store has a certain evening dress collar which is inspiration for a whole wardrobe. It's planned so that a small band about an inch and a half wide of crystal bugle beads would fit around a high neck and follow a decollete back line. Here at the lowest point are a group of black bugle beads and rhinestone flowers which might fit on to the middle of the bow, or serve as sufficient ornament in themselves.

Fabric gloves certainly have come into their own this season and their own seems to be a large estate. According to the buyer of the glove department in an F street store, these gloves are selling as fast as they come in. She wants every one to know that she has some fabric gauntlets in gun gray and eel gray.

One of the surest and quickest ways to make a new handbag look old and to spot your clothes is to travel with loose jars and bottles with spillable contents. Before your next trip, stop by a downtown department store and pick up one of the little moire rubber lined tourist cases outfitted for cold cream and two lotions. You can carry your tooth brush, tooth paste, wash cloth and soap in these, too. They come in green, rose, blue and black, for only 85 cents.

Even flasks have felt the influence of fall fashions, to judge by some in a G street shop. You will find them here all bundled up in leather jackets which zip on and off at the owner's pleasure. Here's a chance to create your own byword—have a zip from my sipper flask. (Maybe a pun isn't the lowest form of wit, after all!)

Wire Fence Saves Child From Attacking Cougar

Ancient Antagonism Keeps Men and Women in Holland At Swords Points; Even at Teas They Spurn Each Other!

Dutch Girls Take Life so Seriously and Find Joy in Studies.

By Ware Torrey and Janet Owen.

The Hague, Sept. 29 (By Mail).—Sex antagonism rules the social affairs of Holland, where the frantic English hostess finds her male guests determinedly knotting in one corner of the room and the women as firmly clinging to another. A good stir of the social spoon to mix them—and they quickly separate again, except in the very small top strata of society, where an afternoon tea becomes a Quaker meeting.

Feminine equality would be considered choice humor by the average Dutchman; women are "diferent." Women of Holland, buried beneath a mound of male superiority, are doing their best to dig themselves out. They are aided and applauded by Queen Wilhelmina.

With a queen, a dowager queen, and a princess leading court and country, Dutch women feel themselves well upheld. In a country 25 years behind the world, Dutch women are now almost up to international par in education, sports and some branches of work.

Crave School Degrees.

The women place an almost fantastic value on titles of education. They genuinely try to improve themselves mentally. But increasing numbers take professional degrees they never intend to use, except on a calling card.

Almost 95 per cent of the country's women finish the equivalent of American high school. Then they go on, more than half into law, engineering, chemistry and medicine, but especially law. "Meester in Law," the degree entitling practice, is the coverted distinction. Girls who would never consider working for a living want the mental training of law study and want more to be able to say they are lawyers.

Princess Juliana herself has two degrees, one in law and one in Dutch literature, and it is proudly said she really earned them. The queen has encouraged education for women for the last 20 years. Now everyone studies.

Men Condescending.

Men of Holland look dispassionately on their women's energy. They say with a tolerant smile, of the excellent showing in women's sports, "yes, of course they go into sports, they have nothing to do."

More and more women are finding something to do and the greatest number of them, of all things, are becoming dispensing chemists or pharmacists. Going by a drug store, the first thing seen is the domestically curtained window, the next a white smocked young woman mixing pills. Women own their own businesses frequently, and in selling drugs to sick masculinity they are making their strongest professional bid against the men.

In actual work, after the chemists, women taking part in law, politics and medicine come next.

Sex Barrier There, Too.

The sex barrier enters into work, as into social activities, in the consistency with which women take second place. Women lawyers who practice do mainly office work. The men use them gladly, keeping them in their place. A typical lawyer has eight women in his firm, all working entirely in the office. Even in education, so long considered a woman's field, they are kept subordinate. School directors are men, the department heads may be women. A very large number of women are doing routine secretarial work, and, unlike women in other countries, they are resigned to going on doing it.

A gleam here and there shows where women are breaking through occasionally from their outer darkness into the brighter paths of the men. A few women are deputies in the lower chamber; an occasional woman practices medicine.

Crave an Outlet.

In the main, however, they are taking out their ambitions in study. They want to do something different, better than the men, but they don't know how. Women above the lowest, grooved social class are marked with a look of dogged earnestness. Over 75 per cent of Holland's population falls into the middle class, and it is here that the women are most serious in their fight to equal the men. There is less of social preening, less interest in fashions, fewer beauty shops for Dutch women; they have more concern with blue stockings than with new hats.

There is a surprising lack of frivolous chatter among the girls, an amazing acceptance of a standard of 20 years of schooling among the young women.

Dutch girls and women are not seen window-shopping, on boulevard parade or getting together over movie stars and "dates." They walk to get somewhere and talk to say something.

They are set to win their crusade against the men be force and not by wile. A friendly American aunt would advise them to hide their books in a cupboard and put powder on their noses.

The Family Marketer

Apples Pour on Capital's Markets in all Shapes and Sizes.

It's apple time in the markets now. On all sides we find them, golden, green and red. Some of them, the choicest and most expensive, are from Washington State, Grimes Golden and Golden Delicious from West Virginia.

According to dealers, the Grimes Golden are the best sellers, not because they're tastier than the others, but because their season is shorter. Once they're gone the others come into their heyday.

For cooking purposes the Grimes Golden are not the most satisfactory apples. In the first place it takes them longer and, in the second place, when they're done they lack the rudy color of the red apples. However, 5 cents, worth of red candy cinnamon drops, for instance, can readily remedy that.

Celery in Fine Form.

Celery, which is selling in most places two bunches for 19 cents, is hard to beat this time of year. The stalks are particularly crispy.

The last of the corn season seems to be definitely here. As one dealer said, it's not even worth writing about. However, it's yours at six ears for 15 cents if you want it.

And it looks as though the pickling season is going, going, gone. Now is your last chance to buy green tomatoes, four pounds for 13 cents; onions and pears, four pounds for 19 cents.

Monster Potatoes.

Potatoes are perhaps the housewife's most faithful friend. When unexpected guests arrive for dinner and there's a shortage of everything else, she usually can dig down in the potato sack and bring out enough of these to tide the meal over.

Some of the large Idahos now selling 10 pounds for 35 cents are small monsters in their own way. They have issued from the ground in countless numbers of shapes and are really Titans after the potato fashion. One of the large ones is ample for three people.

New potatoes are tasty tidbits whose reputation is the very best. Boil these and serve with butter and they leave nothing to be desired. They're 5 pounds for 17 cents, but the chances are you may buy them for less later.

Californias Reasonable.

California potatoes are selling at very reasonable prices—5 pounds for 22 cents. They rival the Idahos in baking quality.

Liver offers a pleasing variation along the meat line. For calves liver, however, you pay, and pay dearly, 70 cents a pound. If you buy steers liver you'll find it just as tender and equally as tasty. Ordinary beef liver, which is only 20 cents a pound, is all a person could wish if prepared carefully. Dip in boiling water immediately before rolling in flour and all vestige of toughness disappears. Some people prefer soaking it in sweet milk over night. Either means is effective.

Long Pants to Oust Knickers, Designer Says

Del Monte, Calif. (AP).—The days of embarrassment for those knicker-clad golfers whose legs are either too thin or too thick, are numbered, in the opinion of Jacques Dupont, Paris couturier, who is Hollywood bound. His theory is that long trousers with narrow cuffs will soon make plus fours as out of date on golf courses as short skirts are elsewhere.

Meat in Child's Diet Is an Item Of Importance

Supplies Protein, Iron and Phosphorus; Liver Has Needed Vitamins.

By Ruth Chambers.

Since meat contains food elements essential for building new tissues, its importance in the diet of a growing child can hardly be overestimated. Protein, iron and phosphorus are supplied by the meat portion of his daily fare, which, of course, should include vegetables, cereals, fruits and milk. Liver, kidney and sweetbreads are all excellent sources of vitamins. Liver is especially valuable in the diet of the child. It may be liver from veal, beef, pork or lamb.

Baby gets his meat in the form of broth or scraped beef. As soon as his teeth have made their appearance, he may have his meat several times a week—and does he relish it! It seldom requires much coaxing to get him to eat this food, which is so good to his taste and good for him at the same time.

By the time he has reached school age and from then on through the difficult adolescent years, a child needs meat once or twice daily, so foremost doctors agree.

Simple Preparation.

Meat for young children should be prepared simply. Stews are especially good since they also contain vegetables. And the vegetables taste all the better because of the savory meat flavor. Broiled steaks, chops and roasts are also good for even the littlest member of the family, if he has learned to chew them properly.

There are delicious ways of preparing meats with the youngsters especially in mind. Following is a recipe which combines valuable elements of nutrition and is at the same time good enough to bring demands for second helpings:

Liver Spinach Mold.

1 pound liver
½ cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup cream
2 cups cooked spinach
2 hard-cooked eggs
1 egg, beaten
Salt and pepper

Parboil liver five minutes. Chop finely and mix with bread crumbs. Add beaten egg, cream and seasonings. Place in a buttered mold, cover with a layer of cooked spinach which has been put through a colander and garnish with slices of hard-cooked eggs. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.). When firm, unmold on a platter and serve with creamed fomato sauce.

Creamed Bacon and Potatoes.

1 cup finely cooked bacon
2 cups potatoes, cut in dice
3 tablespoons bacon drippings
3 tablespoons flour
¾ cup milk
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Paprika
Salt and pepper.

Add flour to bacon drippings and brown. Stir in the milk gradually and cook until thick and smooth. Add bacon and seasoning, then potatoes. Cover and heat over a very slow fire. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and paprika. Serve very hot.

Beef Broth With Vegetables.

3 pounds beef shin
1½ quarts water
2 onions, sliced
1 cup carrots, diced
2 teaspoons salt
2 cups raw diced potatoes

Have meat cut in pieces, put in the soup kettle, and salt. Cover with cold water and slowly bring to a boil. Then simmer until meat is tender. Add potatoes, carrots and onions and cook until vegetables are tender. Strain and serve while hot.

Sweetbreads en Casserole.

1 pair sweetbreads
6 slices bacon
1 cup meat stock
4 carrots
1 cup peas
3 potatoes
Salt and pepper

Parboil sweetbreads 20 minutes in water to which 1 tablespoon vinegar and 1 teaspoon salt have been added for each quart. Drain and plunge into cold water. Detach strings or membranes. Partially cook carrots, peas and potatoes. Place sweetbreads in casserole and around them arrange sliced carrots, peas and diced potatoes. Add meat stock, lay strips of bacon across the top, cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until vegetables are tender.

Casserole of Liver.

2 pounds pork liver, sliced
8 slices bacon
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup meat stock or water
Salt
Pepper.

Cover sliced liver with boiling water and allow to stand a few minutes. Drain and remove outside membranes. Lay half the bacon in baking dish. Roll liver in flour and season with salt and pepper. Place on top of bacon. Put remaining slices of bacon on top and cover with stock. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until liver is tender.

Here is a way of serving sweetbreads which is a bit "fancier" and will make a hit with the youngsters:

Sweetbreads en Brochette.

1 pair sweetbreads
8 slices bacon
Salt
Pepper.

Parboil sweetbreads for 20 minutes in water to which 1 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon vinegar have been added for each quart. After draining, plunge into cold water to make them firm. Detach any strings or membranes. Cut sweetbreads into 1-inch squares. Arrange on skewers alternating with bacon. Place on a broiler rack and broil slowly for 10 or 15 minutes. Serve on skewers.

'Carfilota' Is Latest for White Evening Gowns; Graceful Folds Its Features.

Paris (U.P.).—If anything is worth talking about at all, it's worth talking about often. We already have told you something about Ilota fabrics, but we haven't told you all. Add these names to your list of new and smart materials for this winter and you'll thank us whether you actually take the trouble to write us and do it or not!

"Carfilota" is a white evening gown material that makes folks sigh and covet. Made in silk and wool, fairly heavy, it falls in lovely, graceful folds (that statuseque mobility Lelong is after this season if possible with this kind of fabric) and looks like an uncut velvet—wears like iron, too. Comes in pastels as well as white and makes simply marvelous shoes!

For a sport dress you could not do any better than by choosing "Sandilota" in that new dark "spinol" (spinach and olives, upon my word) green.

White or Gray Hair Flatters Most Women

But It Must Be Handled Carefully to Avoid Ugly Streaks.

When accompanied by smooth, fresh-colored skin, white or graying hair is one of the most flattering and distinguishing characteristics a woman may possess.

It is anything but a mark of advanced years, these days, with so many women turning prematurely gray.

The wise woman whose hair is gray or white exerts herself to achieve a blue-white hair loveliness and a pink and white clearness of complexion.

Yellow streaks in graying or white hair are ugly. Too frequent curling or marcelling tends to discolor white hair, as do exceedingly strong soaps and artificial drying.

Only the mildest of shampoos should be used, whether in soaps or liquids. Dry shampoos may be used occasionally, not oftener than once a month. They give a brilliant luster to the locks and eliminate excess oil, which is apt to make graying hair dingy and stringy.

If the white-haired woman has hair inclined to be naturally curly, here is an excellent suggestion for after-shampoo treatment. Let the hair dry thoroughly by natural rather than artificial means, then brush it vigorously until the oil is distributed evenly along the hair

Special Rinses.

Dip a comb into scalding hot water and moisten the hair lightly over the top of the head and where it frames the face. Push the hair into soft waves, rippling back from the face and draw it down over the ears. When the hair has dried and the natural wave is set, you will have a soft halo of hair which should comb easily into place until time for the next shampoo.

There are special rinses for white and graying hair, as well as a special brilliantine for dressing such hair.

In attempting to restore graying hair to its orignial shade, the process should be intrusted only to an expert. Hair dyeing is difficult at best. As a woman grows older her skin darkens and the texture coarsens. Dyed hair is very apt to accentuate such characteristics.

The consensus among beauticians is that graying or white hair is the most becoming frame for the older face. The effect is strikingly evident when the face happens to be fresh and youthful.

Huckleberry Finn Still Lives, But He's Tamed

Chicago (AP).—There are still plenty of boys who emulate Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer by playing "hookey," but modern educators have found ways to deal with them, Miss Isabella Dolton, assistant superintendent of schools, told the National League of Compulsory Education.

No End of Books

Somerset Maugham Claims He Is Through With the Theater; Louis Bromfield Takes House in Baltimore to Be Near Washington.

Somerset Maugham's play, "Sheppey" which has been captivating London for a month, is to end his career as a playwright.

"I am hoping," he says "that 'Sheppey' will be my last work as a professional dramatist. I do not want to be hampered by consideration of time and space or worried by the thought that I may be boring people."

But this may be no more than an attack of bile, Mr. Maugham has the theater virus in his blood.

Louis Bromfield is to take a house in Baltimore for the winter. He sees Washington as the center of excitement and he wants to be near the fun, but Harper, his publishers, states that Mr. Bromfield's interest is personal, not professional.

Burton Rascoe will narrate breezily the stories of more "Titans of Literature" in his book, "Prometheans," to be published by Putnam on November 1.

Without fanfare, the novel "Magnificent Obsession," has sold steadily for several years. Now the author, Lloyd C. Douglas, steps into the limelight. He is beginning a lecture tour of 75 engagements, and the November Cosmopolitan prints his first short story to appear in a magazine, entitled "Precious Jeopardy."

Emily Hahn, author of a sprightly tome on the art of seduction and the more recent travelogue, "Congo Solo" is ghost writing in Hollywood.

The firm of Morrow announces that sales are 60 per cent ahead of last year. Others should be thankful for small blessings.

Filipino Love.

"FOOTNOTE TO YOUTH," short stories, by Jose Garcia Villa; Scribners'. $2.50.

Some there are who will not take a poet's advice, but believe somewhere "the twain shall meet." Jose Villa, whose first book this is, is such a one—he, from the Orient of the Philippines, casting these pearls of irredescent, optical wisdom before the "hard severity and materialism of a totally unrelated civilization," as the blurb author puts it.

"Blended with his Filipino sense of race is a strong Spanish sense of form and color," declares Edward J. O'Brien, who prefaces this book of tales with a note to prepare the reader for what might otherwise be for him a kaleidoscopic nightmare of highly colored adjectives denoting equatorial love in its various aspects: Filial, maternal, idolatrous, and that David-and-Jonathan type which exists curiously indiscriminate between boy and boy, boy and girl.

An atmosphere of tremulous early love, sublimated, thwarted, consummated with resulting unhappiness, blows hotly through the leaves of the book. Repetition of scene, phrase and character serve to accentuate the narrowness of scope attempted by Mr. Villa. An obvious influence of Sherwood Anderson and Ernest Hemingway is seen in the sometimes grotesquely simple diction (one waits impatiently for page 125, where the first semicolon appears), in the slowness of action, in the attempt to dig the meat of meaning from the nut of life with a fine-pointed pick; these characteristics will undoubtedly mount to individual traits in Villa's later work.

A series of stories, "The son of Rizal," "Daughter of Rizal," and "The Man Who Looked Like Rizal" are written with sincere feeling to show the respect amounting to frenzy held by some Filipinos for their martyred national hero, Jose Rizal. "Daughter of Rizal" is the best of the three from the standpoint of treatment and effect.

"A Trilogy," three-paragraph-divided unfoldings of the young author's uncomprehended loneliness when first he became a student at the University of New Mexico, will not meet the sympathy of the general reader. Villa has attempted to capture the helplessness of the young foreigner in making friends in a land where already he feels uncongenial; the youth feels the impropriety of his Latin temperament at times, and is baffled before a broad love and an inner want for companionship of a sort not commonly found in occidental institutions, neither of which is he able to suppress.

"The Woman Who Looked Like Christ" is the best-made story of the group, in this reviewer's opinion. It shows rare insight into the heart of woman. Villa, finding a companion for the summer at his school, discovers she appears holy, Christlike. After a particularly solemn attendance at church with her and a later ramble into the country, he makes the error of telling her, "Aurora—Aurora, dearest—you look like Christ!" Of course, the young woman flees, leaving Jose alone again.

This last story, however, contains a better proportion of the real and the ideal than is customary in Villa's stories; grammar and punctuation, still necessary adjuncts to good English, are not here thrown to the winds.

Villa is still a foreigner to flexible idiom, a fault he has in common with many aliens learning English. One finds, juxtaposed to examples of painfully simple diction, such sentences as "He was a vicinal acquaintance, a big massive fellow with a quadrate face and pileous arms and chest. Pedrong Sabong the people appellated him." He is overfond of the words "pusillanimous" and "impuissant," and uses neither with grace. Tenses are sometimes garbled, producing irregular tempo which spoils an otherwise effective scene.

It is still difficult to predict with any security what may turn out in the young author's next project.

In the Swim

Y. W. C. A. Opens Pools for Mixed Bathing to Help Girls Get Beaux.

Philadelphia (AP).—For the first time in 12 years of its existence, men are permitted in the swimming pool at the Young Women's Christian Association.

As an experiment in helping young women entertain the "boy friend" at the "Y" instead of having to go elsewhere, directors of the organization are trying out the mixed swimming idea. "Bring your best beau," they urge the girls, "or let us get one for you."

Song of the Optimist.

By Katherine W. Smith.

Dash along, you words of wisdom,
Sing along, you sprightly tune,
Run along, you guilty conscience,
Happiness, come see me soon!

Hang your crepe, you weary mourners,
Shake your heads, and wail with woe—
I don't care for heavy groaners,

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Charles G. Glover, Jr., Pioneer in Community Chest Here.

Underwood & Underwood.
MRS. CHARLES C. GLOVER, Jr.

Earnest and ardent in all she undertakes, Mrs. Charles C. Glover, jr., has been an enthusiastic worker in the welfare field, especially along charitable lines. She is a member of the boards of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, the Washington Home for Incurables and the Children's Hospital.

One of the first in Washington to recognize the advantages of the Chest method of financing social agencies, Mrs. Glover was a member of the general committee named by the Council of Social Agencies to consider bringing a Chest here. She entered enthusiastically into the first Chest campaign.

As a member of the board of trustees and a member of the special gifts unit, Mrs. Glover has rendered yeoman service in all Chest activities.

"I always have worked for charities because I am sincerely interested in them," Mrs. Glover said. "The cost of raising money for charitable work by means of separate campaigns by the various organizations always impressed me as a waste of money and when the question of bringing a Community Chest to Washington was first broached, I felt it was the ideal method for raising and disbursing welfare funds.

"My association with the Community Chest has more than confirmed that first impression. Under this method the local organizations have received more funds and, what to my mind is more important, have been able to devote their entire time to the work for which they were intended without the necessity of devoting large portions of that time to the task of money raising."

What Today Means

"Libra."

If October 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 3:30 to 4 p. m. and from 8:45 to 9:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 to 10 a. m., from 5 to 6 p. m. and from 10 to 11 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will tend to rouse your suspicion. Do not jump at conclusions in matters of a personal nature, for if you do, the chances are that you will land yourself in difficulty. The husband or wife who keeps too close surveillance on his or her mate will have cause for regret. Children will not be easily duped on this day.

The child born on this October 12 will more than likely strive for mediocrity in its schoolwork. It will feel that any endeavor which makes it stand out above its classmates in the schoolroom will 'cause it to lose the common touch and put it too much in the spotlight. In so far as school activities are concerned, this little one will play second fiddle to none.

If October 12 is the date of your birth, you are undoubtedly the type of person who does not let himself become hampered by all the frills and fuss of modern life. You live simply but nicely. You probably own your own home and you take a great interest in it. The women are always fussing about, changing this or that in order to add beauty. They prefer to do their own work and get a great deal of pleasure out of running their homes. The men are generally the kind who enjoy puttering about the place, doing a bit of carpentering here, a bit of electrical wiring some place else and, more than likely, spending a lot of time out in the garden. Both the men and the women are tremendously fond of flowers. Your amusements are most likely simple. The radio plays a dominant part in the home, movies are enjoyed regularly though not frequently, and occasionally a concert or theater. Life is pretty much a routine existence, but to these people not a dull one. They are usually good and regular churchgoers.

Born on October 12, your life will always seem well ordered and well planned. There will be few major disturbances and these will be overcome without any great loss. Marriage will in all likelihood come early in life and should be a real love match. You will probably have more than one child.

Successful people born on October 12:

Alexander T. Stewart, merchant.
Lyman Trumbull, senator.
George W. Cable, author.
Helena Modjeska, Polish-American actress.
Alvina Valleria, singer.

Directed by Amos Parrish

All the way from hat brim to shoe tip, this fall's stadium-and-bowl clothes have the snap of autumn in them.

Most rooters' hats, for example, will be snap-brimmed, with a taper in their crowns and an Alpine flick in their medium-width brims. And most will be dark brown . . . and we mean dark. Some will wear those popular new mixtures that college men and others are taking to because their color and texture are more striking. Not a few will be snap-brimmed Homburgs—the hat that got its big start in life when Harvard-Yale wearers of the regular Homburg snapped down their brims to drain off the rain into the Yale Bowl last year.

Sea of Camel's Hair.

Look below their hats and you'll see a sea of camel's hair tan. Polo coats . . . carloads of them . . . with half belts, and a few with all-around belts. And more raglan topcoats than you've seen in years.

Where you don't see a camel's hair, it's likely to be a tweed—plain tweeds, checked tweeds, herringbone tweeds, every type of colorful, rugged, patternful tweed. Especially in raglan models. And sometimes in the newer stand-up military collar type.

Most football rooters—and this holds from Bowdoin to the University of Southern California—will be wearing soft collar-attached shirts, usually with medium-length 3-inch points. If you look closely, you'll find more button-down collars than you've seen in some time—because they're such a good-looking outdoors shirt (and because grand-stand acrobatics can't yank them out of place).

Ties Fine-Striped, Bar-Striped.

Thousand of striped ties . . . some of them fine striped, some bar-striped, and a good many small all-over patterns, too . . . will circle the necks of these football fans.

Generally speaking, their suits will be more rugged cheviots, shetlands and tweeds . . . in the neat checked and striped effects and in herringbones which most certainly belong in football settings. A good many undergraduates wear their tweed-fabric coats with odd trousers, especially plain gray.

Glance down at their feet and you'll find college men's ankles covered by warm wool and lisle socks, mostly clocked. Look up at the expanse of crossed legs and you'll notice hundreds covered with good-looking Argyle patterns—typical Scotch colorings that carry out that new trend for color in men's wear.

Straight-tipped shoes as they've always been, will be way out in front. But your more fashion-wise football fan will probably wear his dark-brown and wing-tipped.

Finally, the rule on up-raised, waving gloved fists will be the same rule that applies to the football itself . . . they'll be covered with pig skin.

(Copyright, 1933.)

Tomorrow: Velvet afternoon frocks luxurious though simple.

Stocks Stand Unchanged as Sales Dwindle

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Stocks lacked the energy to do much moving in either direction today. Volume dwindled to around 1,000,000 shares, and most leaders were content to hold a fractional range.

Slight easiness appeared toward the close after completion of some preholiday covering, bringing irregular and generally minor net changes.

Dealings had a highly professional appearance, though even the floor traders seemed unwilling to take much of a position. Commodity heaviness may have restricted interest in securities.

U. S. Treasury Plans.

Reports that the Treasury planned to call part of the Fourth Liberty loan circulated during trading hours, having little effect on markets. Government securities on the stock exchange were steady, while domestic corporation loans again improved.

American Telephone ran into a bit of selling that chipped a couple of points from the quotation. Johns-Manville, reputedly the recent favorite of a professional group, lapsed a bit as operations switched to Allied Chemical, which came close to its 1933 high; it was up 3½ net. Metals were somewhat spongy though coppers had moderate declines.

U. S. Smelting dipped more than 2. Oils improved slightly. Utilities were quiet after yesterday's flurry, while alcohol issues made no response to the addition of Florida to the repeal column. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Case, New York Central and American Tobacco "B" eased, but Westinghouse, General Electric, General Motors, Union Pacific and Union Carbide firmed. Continental Can perked up a point on its dividend boost. Sales came to 1,027,590 shares.

Refunding Plan Studied.

The Treasury's refunding plan for the Fourth Liberties, involving $1,875,000,000 of the $6,268,000,000 issue and providing for an exchange into 10-12 year and 3¼s or a cash settlement, attracted wide attention when the announcement was made late this afternoon at Washington. Most bankers thought the coupon on the proposed refinancing would prove attractive, especially with institutional investors.

Some also saw an inference of prospective dollar stabilization and a suggestion that currency inflation was to have no place in the Government's fiscal program. The assumption in many quarters was that holders of the bonds called would accept the new securities in lieu of cash.

Iron Age said the steel markets were watching Washington, since "only the Federal Government can solve most of the problems which seem to impede recovery." Currently, ingot production has stepped up two points to 44 per cent, a result of further shipments against old third quarter contracts, but backlogs will be down sharply by the end of this month if new business does not develop. The industry's main hopes are based on projects to be financed b Government credit.

Criticism of the PWA

Should Be Directed at Those Responsible for Price Uncertainty

By Ralph West Robey.

Most of the criticism of the slowness with which the public works part of the Roosevelt recovery program is being carried out is based upon the assumption that responsibility for the delay rests with the Government officials who have to approve the projects. Thus, Secretary Ickes has been subjected to a constant stream of abuse for weeks because more money is not being spent in this direction. Even people as close home as NRA officers have complained of the slowness with which he is pumping purchasing power into the economic system through public works. Before this view is accepted, however, it is well to appraise at least one other factor, for there is far more to such a program than just getting projects approved.

As a matter of fact, it is difficult to understand even how such a line of criticism gets started. The expenditures already approved total approximately $1,700,000,000. This, of course, is only half of the $3,300,000,000 which might have been assigned, but even so it is an enormous expenditure upon which to pass judgment in so short a time—so enormous, that regardless of how careful Secretary Ickes and his assistants have been, there unquestionably have been errors which in due time will have to be paid for by the taxpayers of this country.

Charge Public Works Administration Slow Not Justified.

It is not even accurate, therefore, to charge that the Public Works Administration has been slow in approving projects. The slowness comes in getting the money spent after the Government officials have given their sanction for the expenditure. It is here then that one must look if he is sincerely interested in discovering the reason why, with approvals of $1,700,000,000, only a few millions actually has been spent.

On this part of the problem it is interesting to put one's self in the position of a contractor asked to submit a bid for a building project. Under normal circumstances, of course, granting one is an expert in this line, he can figure with close accuracy just how much the cost will be, how long it will take, &c. Suppose that when the request for a bid is made, one does this, and he finds that the total cost, including a reasonable profit and the usual margin for contingencies, is $10,000,000.

Then, there is the question of whether it is safe at this time to make a contract to undertake the project for this amount. Obviously, under the best conditions there is a risk involved for there are a thousand things that might go wrong. By and large, however, these are predictible with enough accuracy to be allowed for. One may make an error on one project and lose money, but the amount at most should be small and it will be averaged out on other contracts.

Is Now Impossible to Forecast Costs a Few Months Hence.

In the present situation the potential loss is quite unpredictible. The Government, in fact, lets scarcely a day pass without assuring us that prices are going to be higher. Any calculation based upon current costs, accordingly, is bound to prove wrong unless the Administration is unsuccessful in its attempt to drive up prices.

This is not all. This price rise is going to have a large element of inflation in it. In other words, it will not be the kind of an increase that comes just from better business conditions. If it were, it could be provided for within a reasonable margin. Rather, this is a potential price increase, which may reach any proportions. Every bid, accordingly, becomes a pure gamble, and while business men are willing to take risks, they still like to have at least some figures in which they may have a little confidence.

Those who are annoyed at the slowness of the public works program, accordingly, should stop harping about the Govnerment officials in charge of approving the projects and turn their criticism on those responsible for such uncertainty in the field of currency and prices that private investors will not make long-term contracts. In this, rather than in the office of the Public Works Administrator, will they find a basis for complaint.

Railway Bonds Lead Lists to Higher Levels

U. S. Issues Turn Active as Sales Rise to $11,093,000.

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Railroad loans of both the low and high-priced categories rallied substantially in the bond market today, under the spur of renewed speculative and investment demand.

The trading volume expanded to $11,093,000, par value, against $9,064,000 yesterday, and the average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced three-tenths of a point.

Some United States Government securities became quite active, following a report from Washington that the Treasury would call a portion of the more than $6,268,000,000 Liberty Fourth 4¼s.

Issue Easier at Times.

This issue, a trifle easy at one time, ended with a net gain of 7-32ds of a point. After the close, the Treasury announced it would call for refunding $1,875,000,000 of this loan, with holders being given the option of receiving cash or new 10 to 12-year bonds earning 3¼ per cent interest.

The notification will be as of October 15. Other Government loans were moderately higher.

Carrier gainers of 1 to 2 or more points included some liens of Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Canadian Pacific, Central Pacific, Burlington, Chicago & North Western, Colorado & Southern, Denver & Rio Grande, Delaware & Hudson, Erie Great Northern, Illinois Central, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Rio Grande & Western, Iron Mountain, Southern Pacific, Southern and Union Pacific.

Among Firm Loans.

Loans of American Telephone, American & Foreign Power, American Metals, Consolidated Gas, Detroit Edison, International Telephone, Phillips Petroleum, Portland General Electric and Western Union were firm.

There was a sharp drop in bonds of the gold standard countries coincident with another rise in international dollar rates.

Dutch East Indies obligations were off 1¾ to 5⅞, French issues sagged 1 to 3 or more and those of Switzerland were down 2. Other foreign maturities were mixed.

Ford's Farm Plan Is Hailed in Brazil

Para, Brazil, Oct. 11 (AP).—Experiments of Henry Ford with rubber and lumber, and Japanese colonists with diversified agriculture, foreshadow a bright future for the almost empty Amazon Basin, Provisional President Getulio Vargas said on a visit here.

"I like to imagine," said Senhor Vargas, "what this region, unequaled in area, will be like when in it are fixed the intelligence and activity of 100,000,000 Brazilians."

Significance of the Ford and Japanese developments, Senhor Vargas explained, is that they are the first important efforts at cultivation and systematic production in the whole Amazon Basin. The Ford efforts are concentrated on a vast concession on the Tapajos River, several hundred miles up the Amazon. The Japanese colonies, numbering about 1,000 individuals, are situated near Para.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Columbus Day will find the country's financial markets closed. New York security and commodity exchanges, as well as the Chicago Board of Trade, are among those which will suspend business for the holiday. New York banks also will close.

Dow, Jones & Co. said today that Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's earnings for 1933 are estimated to show a balance of $2,000,000 for the preferred stock, or $3.39 a share. The road had net loss of $6,384,978 in 1932.

Commodity Exchange, Inc., today ruled that effective October 23 prices for silk on future delivery shall be in multiples of half a cent per pound instead of a cent. Silk, it was explained, was selling around $5 a pound when the 1-cent multiple was put into effect. It is now around $2, and the exchange says it feels the reduction is "logical and will serve to stimulate trading."

Freight loadings of the Nickel Plate last week amounted to 12,848 cars, against 12,788 the week before and 11,332 a year ago.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank today reported export of $6,667,200 in gold to France from stock held under earmark for foreign account. There was an export of 41,938 fine ounces of gold recovered from natural deposit.

Directors of Kildun Mining Co. have reached an agreement with Mexican Corporation, Ltd., whereby the latter will make a substantial investment in Kildun and assume management of the property. The agreement is subject to an examination of the mine and tests of ore on whcih work has already been started. Mexican Corporation is controled by Consolidated Gold Fields of South Africa, Ltd., and is the largest British mining company in Mexico.

Armour & Co. plans to build 500 refrigerator cars in its own shops. The underframes will be made by Pullman Car & Manufacturing Co.

Drop in Copper Price Laid to Scrap Surplus

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—The reduction in the domestic copper price by custom smelters to 8¾ cents a pound from 9 cents was attributed in some market circles today to the large scrap accumulations of recent weeks, which remain to be priced.

It was also pointed out that large consumers had filled their copper requirements for some time to come and that current demand was very light. Custom smelters are said to be desirous of finding a buying level that will enable them to sell scrap. Producers are holding at 9 cents.

J. J. O'Connor Urges Cures In Banking

U. S. Chamber Official Is Speaker at First Forum Meeting.

Several remedies for present banking problems were suggested by John J. O'Connor, manager of the finance department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in an address last night at the first forum meeting of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Banking at the Hay-Adams House.

Development of a better basis for faith in credit and currency is a great need, the finance manager said. The slow rate of expansion of bank credit and the rate of turnover of money are mainly due to the disinclination of those with credit resources to venture, he pointed out.

Unwillingness of banks to meet proper applications for credit is infinitesimal in comparison with the hesitancy or refusal of their customers to avail themselves of the opportunity to borrow, Mr. O'Connor declared.

Source of Complaints.

Applicants with little or no basis of credit except their expectation of profits which, from a sound banking point of view, must be considered uncertain in prospect, make up most of the complainants, he added. Going banks are eager to make short-term loans to commercial customers to aid in the production and distribution of goods that really move into consumption," he reported.

Changes are necessary in the contemplated system of deposit insurance, Mr. O'Connor said. He suggested limiting the insurance to maximum deposit of $2,500, which would cover over 95 per cent of the bank depositors of the country.

Need of increasing the production and consumption of capital goods was stressed by the speaker. Effects of the Federal securities act in its present form are a deterrent to recovery, he asserted. Corporations that are solvent are likely to be driven into receivership through inability to refund their obligations, he observed. This situation can not be improved until Congress amends the law so as to free issuers and financing houses from excessive liabilities, he asserted.

Banking Act Features.

Principle features of the banking act of 1933 were reviewed by Cyril B. J. Upham, of the Brookings Institution. He advocated adoption of a policy of realism with regard to branch banking.

Proof that the spiritual may well be applied to the business of banking was given in an inspiring address from the Rev. A. A. Stockdale, pastor of the First Congregational Church.

Potomac Electric Sales.

The exchange will be closed today in recognition of Columbus Day.

The AC Spark Plug Co., with a local branch at 917 Fifteenth street northwest, reported yesterday a September sales gain of 165 per cent in dollar volume and a pay roll increase of 107 per cent over September a year ago. The September volume was only 4 per cent under August. Employment approximated 3,700 workers, an increase of 61 per cent over September, 1932.

Koons Quits as Agent.

Frank T. Koons, for many years prominent in life insurance circles in Washington and for the past three years general agent of the Berkshire Life Insurance Co., of Massachusetts, has resigned this position to devote his time to personal clientele in the Berkshire.

Mr. Koons began his insurance career while with the Fortieth Division of the United States Army during the World War, being one of the insurance officers of that division. Since the war he has been associated with the Berkshire Life.

J. E. "Bill" McCombs succeeded Mr. Koons as general agent in the Washington territory. Mr. McCombs has been connected with the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York for the past 10 years. He is a member of the Life Insurance Club of Washington and has just recently served on the board of directors of the local Life Underwriters Association.

P. G. Cooper Elected.

P. Gordon Cooper, senior appraisal engineer of the U. S. Treasury, and Elonzo T. Morgan, chief patent examiner of the Patent Office, have been elected to the board of trustees of the Progressive Building and Loan Association.

Exchange Sets Limits On Members' Trading

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange today made the first move in its long considered program for limiting the operations of members and member firms to a single type of business.

Regulations were announced by the governing committee under which odd-lot and round-lot business will be segregated, effective on November 15. After that date member firms specializing in odd-lot transactions, units of less than 100 shares, will have to confine their operations to that phase of stock exchange business.

Japan's Products Gain Popularity in India

Competition of Japanese manufactures with the products of Western nations, which has been reported in various world markets, is particularly in evidence in India, according to a report from Consul Dayle C. McDonough, Bombay, made public by the Department of Commerce.

Importers of American, British and continental European goods in that market, it is pointed out, are becoming increasingly concerned at the situation. The most important feature of this competition, according to report, is that Japanese articles are not sold just slightly below the price of others, but oftentimes 40 to 60 per cent cheaper.

More Tobacco Grown Under France's Aid

Favored by government control of production and distribution of tobacco, Alsace-Lorraine has made rapid strides in the cultivation of the leaf since being readmitted into France following the World War, according to a report from Vice Consul James D. Child, Strasbourg, France, made public by the Tobacco Division, Department of Commerce.

Durnig the crop year 1932 records show that 8,134 acres were planted to tobacco, with a resultant yield of 21,547,504 pounds, an average yield per acre of 2,645 pounds. In 1913 only 3,663 acres were planted with a yield of 7,746,640 pounds, an average yield per acre of 1,781 pounds.

Tobacco cultivation in Alsace-Lorraine is carried on for the greater part as an accessory to regular farming, with but few large plantations in existence, the vice consul reported. In 1931, he stated, there were but 131 plantings having an extent of 2½ acres or more. The average parcel of ground devoted to tobacco culture is five-eights of an acre.

After readmission into France, more advantageous conditions were accorded the Alsatian tobacco grower by the government than were had by planters in the interior.

These special advantages, together with soil of a suitable character for tobacco cultivation, has been responsible for the progress of Alsace-Lorraine as a tobacco cultivation area, the vice consul reported.

New York Central Car Loadings Mount Again

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—New York Central Railroad's freight loadings last week aggregated 98,500 cars, compared with 95,961 a year ago, an increase of 3.1 per cent.

In the week ended September 30, loadings totaled 100,972 cars, which was a gain of 7.4 per cent over 1932.

Japan's Extension of Trade In Far East Causes Concern

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Potentially more disturbing to world affairs than the forceful Japanese extension of its political power in North China, is the vigorous extension of Japan's trade through the Far East, in the opinion of some Wall Street financial authorities.

Failure of the big textile firm of Currimbhoy, Ibrahim & Sons in Bombay yesterday was regarded as perhaps deeply significant, in view of the trade war between Great Britain and Japan, which has developed in the East as a result of Japanese inroads into the British cotton goods trade in India.

The Lancashire cotton textile trade, cradle of the cotton textile industry, saw Japanese exports of cotton goods surpass its own this year for the first time in history. Sale of Japanese goods in both British and Dutch territory in the Far East has become decidedly disturbing to both London and Amsterdam.

Some financial commentators see Japanese inroads into the trade of these powerful European commercial countries with their colonies as the beginning of a great commercial struggle between the Occident and the Orient, with their contrasting living standards and labor costs.

This Far Eastern trade war interests American financial quarters for the moment chiefly in its threat to currency stabilization. The Japanese yen has already depreciated from its gold parity much more sharply than either the pound sterling or the dollar. Stabilization of the dollar on any sort of a gold standard, it is felt, must be accompanied by stabilization of sterling, but whether England can agree to stabilize sterling, without stabilization of the yen, is regarded as doubtful.

Virginia Utilities Values Decrease

Richmond, Va., Oct. 11 (AP).—Figures made public today by the State corporation commission showed that for the last fiscal year the value of public utility properties, taxable by the counties, decreased only 3 per cent. Such property taxable by the State shrank 17.2 per cent.

Several persons said within the commission that segregation apparently had held up local valuations while the State's particular tax sources went down with the depression.

The figures, prepared by R. E. Steel, assessor for the commission, showed that of an aggregate assessed valuation of $204,227,474 for all property subject to segregation for local taxation the shrinkage was only $5,971,474.

Southern Railway Reelects Directors

Richmond, Va., Oct. 11 (Spl.).—At the fortieth annual meeting of the stockholders of Southern Railway Co., held here yesterday the following directors, whose terms had expired, were reelected to serve for three years: Fairfax Harrison, of Virginia, Jeremiah Milbank and Jackson E. Reynolds, of New York, Robert M. Hanes, of Winston Salem, N. C., was elected a director for the same term of three years. George A. Sloan, of New York, was elected a director of the class of 1935 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Eli B. Springs.

President Harrison announced that the board of directors had previously selected John Stewart Bryan, of Richmond, to fill the vacancy in the class of 1935 caused by the death of his brother Jonathan Bryan.

The present officers of the company were reelected at a meeting of the board of directors held immediately after adjournment of the stockholders meeting.

South Africa Increases Use Of U.S. Autos

Improvement in South Africa's economic status due to rising prices of gold has been reflected in an increased demand for automobiles, according to Trade Commissioner E. B. Lawson in a report to the Commerce Department.

This development is notably in evidence in Johannesburg, it is pointed out, where nearly 1,800 new cars were registered in the first half of 1933. Registrations in this city in July numbered 368, the second largest monthly total of the year and exceeded the figure for July, 1932, by 178. While figures for August were not available when the report was prepared, it is expected that registrations in this month will materially exceed those of August, 1932.

Stocks of new cars on hand and en route to South Africa are deemed sufficient to meet the increased demand, Lawson states. The cars sold in the lower brackets are continuing as leaders, and it is probable there will be little change in popular demand in the immediate future.

Competition of the British small car in South Africa shows definite signs of recession, according to the report. New registrations for the first half of the current year in Johannesburg show a drop in the percentage of monthly registrations of British cars from 41 per cent in January to 24 per cent in June, with the 29 per cent as the ratio for July.

Freight Loadings Drop On Norfolk and Western

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—Freight car loadings on the Norfolk & Western Railroad for the week ended Oct. 7 were 21,447 compared with 25,222 the previous week and 21,032 for the same week last year.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Wool—Prices continue firm despite the currently small level of trading. In certain finished lines stocks are light, and this condition is believed to be partly responsible for the stability of quotations.

Steel—Several iron and steel jobbers in the New York district report that sales so far this month have run ahead of those for the corresponding period in September.

Carpet Wools—Carpet wool imports at Philadelphia last week totaled 1,934,859 pounds, compared with 1,974,394 in the preceding week.

Chain Store Sales—Dollar volume of the first 17 chain and mail order companies to report for September was $94,902,539, against $82,673,615 in September, 1932, an increase of 14.8 per cent.

Flaxseed—Marketing of the domestic crop is proceeding in reduced volume, according to the Archer-Daniels-Midland Co., which estimates that during August and September about 3,200,000 bushels were distributed, against 5,600,000 in the same period last year.

Chemicals—Current demand for quinine is reported moderately active for immediate and forward delivery. Prices are firm because of the generally high costs of crude material.

Silk—Trade opinion is that the 47.8 per cent drop in raw silk deliveries to American mills in September, as compared with the same month last year, is largely accounted for by mill labor difficulties.

Flour—Production in the principal milling centers of the United States in September, as reported by General Mills, Inc., totaled 4,976,094 barrels compared with 5,932,620 barrels in September, 1932.

Dyestuffs—The movement of material into consuming channels continues spotty. Manufacturers of basic items report a fair amount of actiyity in the market despite labor troubles at some of the dye plants.

Floor covering—In the primary market buyers are reported confining their bookings to merchandise for immediate needs.

Wheat Drifts Lower Again; Rallies Fail

Market Nervousness Laid to Fears of Money Situation.

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP).—For the third day in succession, wheat today closed lower.

A flurried late upturn in the wheat market was more than wiped out. The transient quick advance appeared to be due to a sudden outburst of speculative buying that, as a result of tomorrow being a holiday, caught the pit temporarily bare of offerings.

Nervousness shown by the wheat market at the last was associated to a considerable extent with varying forecasts of what might soon happen relative to the administration's monetary policy.

Wheat Closes Fidgety.

Wheat closed fidgety, ½ to 1½ under yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ to ⅞ down; oats, unchanged to ¼ lower, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents decline.

Except during the late evanescent upturn which carried wheat up 1¾ cents from the day's low point, trading was inclined to lag. The wheat market received a black eye at the outset owing to an overnight accumulation of selling orders, based on some bearish aspects of the Government crop report, especially an 8,259,000 bushels increase of the official estimate of the 1933 domestic yield of wheat.

Trade News Studied.

On the other hand, considerable notice at times was taken of trade statements that latest official figures on domestic farm reserve supplies of wheat indicated a disappearance far above normal.

It was also asserted that farm reserves of corn pointed to much greater consumption than expected, and there were inferences that the 1933 corn supply including carry-over would be only 2,603,000,000 bushels, against 3,157,000,000 a year ago. Conclusions, too, were drawn that since July 1, this year, there had been 34,000,000 bushels increase of farm disappearance of corn, compared with the corresponding period of 1932.

With leading American exchanges to be closed tomorrow, however, price gains quickly faded. Corn ignored a decided improvement of shipping demand. For at least the time being, indications of a big shortage of oats failed to arouse buyers.

Continental Can Votes to Boost Dividend Rate to $2.50.

New York, Oct. 11 (AP).—The Western Union Telegraph Co. today reported August net income for the first eight months of 1933 of $3,841,421, compared with a deficit of $93,728 for the same month in 1932.

Directors of Continental Can Co. today increased the annual dividend rate on the common shares to $2.50, from $2, by ordering a quarterly disbursement of 62½ cents a share, against 50 previously. The dividend is payable November 15 to stockholders of record, October 25.

Announcement that export of approximately 35,000,000 bushels of North Pacific Coast wheat had received formal Government sanction appeared to have been discounted beforehand.

Granby Consolidated Mining Co. reports for the quarter ended September 30 net loss of $166,707 after depletion, taxes, &c. This compares with losses of $302,912 in the preceding quarter and $283,378 in the third quarter of 1932. For the first nine months of 1933, net loss after depletion was $694,417, against $776,068 in the corresponding 1932 period.

The report of the Electric Bond & Share Co. for the 12 months ended September 30 shows net income of $10,597,288, compared with $5,805,610 for the corresponding period ended September 30, 1932. Earnings applicable to the common stock were equal to 41 cents a share compared with $1.44 a share in the earlier period.

American Power & Light Co. and subsidiaries report for the 12 months ended June 30 net income of $6,152,089, against $12,-939,394 for the preceding 12 months. Gross operating revenues of subsidiaries amounted to $72,240,753, compared with $79,056,609.

The company's balance sheet shows current assets on June 30 of $11,282,995, including $8,626,326 of cash. Current liabilities amounted to $1,711,128.

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP).—Despite larger gross revenues, the Pullman Co. reported a slightly smaller net profit for transportation operations during August, as compared with a year ago.

August gross was $3,620,589, against $3,475,241 last year, and net, after taxes, as $135,806, compared with $167,848 in August, 1932.

Gross for the first eight months of 1933 was $24,810,893, against $30,-094,905 last year, while the eight months' deficit was $1,458,928. The deficit in 1932 for the same period was $859,002.

Tobacco Men Urged to Curb Burley Crop

Growers Warned Prices May Be Lowest if Code Is Ignored.

Bristol, Va., Oct. 11 (Spl.).—Burley tobacco growers of the Appalachian area are pondering the advice of J. C. Lanier, official of the tobacco division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, who, in an address last week before the Burley Tobacco Warehouse Association, Inc., of Lexington, Ky., declared that only full cooperation on the part of all burley growers in a production program for the next two years will avert the lowest prices burley tobacco has brought in history.

"Production control is absolutely necessary to the success of our program," Mr. Lanier said. "If burley growers refuse to go in, there is nothing the United States Government can do to help them. If this program is not adopted, the lowest prices in history are in prospect for this year."

"Any group representing the majority of the warehousemen of a particular belt can submit a code for regulation of all the warehousemen in that belt. When that code is adopted, all are bound to abide by its provisions, whether they have signed or not.

Code for Protection.

"When that code is approved, it becomes the law of the industry, and all participating in that industry must conform to the code. The Government will not let a small minority take an unfair advantage of the majority that will cooperate in the program. There are plenty of teeth to that law and we will use them if necessary to protect those who join.

"As I have said, production control is essential," Mr. Lanier continued. "We will get to the burley production control plan next, with the flue-cured program out of the way."

"Regardless of what plan the Government adopts for the relief of burley growers, a control program is certain. We will set a fair price for the acreage cut out if they adopt the program. Between now and the time a program is adopted, however, warehousemen should contact farmers and discuss with them the advantages of the program. They will be paid for the reduction. It is their own salvation to sign."

Prices at Markets.

At the opening of the Lexington meeting, which began in the morning and continued until late afternoon, John L. Buckley, the association president, read three telegrams from the tobacco markets at Rocky Mount and Wilson, N. C., and Lake City, S. C., which reported tobacco selling at averages of from $13.30 to $15 per hundred pounds, and farmers "well satisfied" with the present price level.

A report on an investigation of conditions in the Carolinas, made by Clyde E. Buckley and Floyd C. Clay, Lexington warehousemen, was made by the former.

Two Washington Actresses Signed by Max Gordon—Theater Bills for New Week

Local Players Seen in Stock Secure Plums

Two more of Washington's talented young actresses soon will add their names to the distinguished roster of those who have gone on from the local stage to augment the theater's list of recognized artistes—an honor role that already includes Helen Hayes, Ina Claire, Billie Burke, Frances Fuller and many others.

Announcement was made yesterday, both from the office of Max Gordon and during a personal call from Clifford Brooke, noted stage director and mentor of the National Theater Players, as well as president of the Clifford Brooke Academy of Stage Training in the Dramatic Arts, that Louise Harrison Gwynn, Capital debutante, and Bernice Bartl have been engaged for the cast of Noel Coward's "Design for Living," in which Corinne Griffith is to be starred by Mr. Gordon and Stephen E. Cochran, manager of the National Theater.

Both Have Stood Test.

Miss Bartl and Miss Gwynn both have proved their mettle in important stage productions under Mr. Brooke's auspices and direction—the former last season in "The Charm School" and "The Rest Cure," presented at the National; the latter in the graduate performances by the Brooke Academy pupils and in the National Theater Players' production of Coward's "Hay Fever." Miss Bartl, furthermore, recently gave such an excellent account of herself in the role for which she has been permanely engaged, in Mr. Cochran's guest-star revival of "Design for Living," that her choice for the road tour was looked upon as practically inevitable.

Comedy Roles.

Miss Bartl's role is that of the comic housemaid; Miss Gwynn's, the chatty young wife in the third-act "small-talk" scenes, among the most amusing in the play.

The out-of-town reports on the play, scheduled to open soon in Wilmington, Del., wil be watched with interest by those who have observed the beginning of these two promising careers on Washington stages.

After a considerable period of indecision and no mean demonstration of the subtle art of hemming and hawing, announcement was definitely made late yesterday that Helen Menken, recently seen at the National in the guest-star revival of her original hit, "Seventh Heaven," positively will be in the cast of Maxwell Anderson's new play of "Mary of Scotland," when it is accorded its world premiere in the National Theater on Monday night, October 23, with Helen Hayes in the name part. Miss Menken will be the Elizabeth to Miss Hayes' Queen Mary. This word was received yesterday afternoon direct from the offices of the Theater Guild in New York by the painstaking and perspicacious Prof. Ned Holmes, now in Washington in behalf of the new production.

And so to the enticements more immediately at hand, leaping over the short dash, to wit:

Sinclair Book Basis of Film

Screen and literary fans are on edge as the far-famed "Ann Vickers," Sinclair Lewis' vivid story of the woman of today, nears the screen of RKO-Keith's Theater, where it will be given a special gala opening this morning.

Selection of the cast and director by RKO-Radio Pictures and all the developments that go with the filming of a masterpiece of modern fiction have been watched with keen interest, and now the prize that all the leading producing companies sought is ready for the picture fans, the literary fans, and all those who appreciate the unfolding of a daring story.

Irene Dunne won the role of Ann Vickers. Playing opposite her are Walter Huston and a galaxy of supporting players that includes Edna May Oliver, Bruce Cabot, Conrad Nagel, Sam Hardy and others.

Dealing with the life of a social worker who has more advanced ideas than most of her sex, the story carries Ann Vickers from her first affair with a debonair army captain to high places in reform work, to literary success and public acclaim. The happiness she ultimately finds comes dramatically as her latest lover is sentenced to prison.

Tonight at 9, Walter Huston, in Washington to make a new picture for RKO-Radio, will appear in person at RKO-Keith's, once only.

Irene Dunne in "Ann Vickers" —RKO-Keith's.

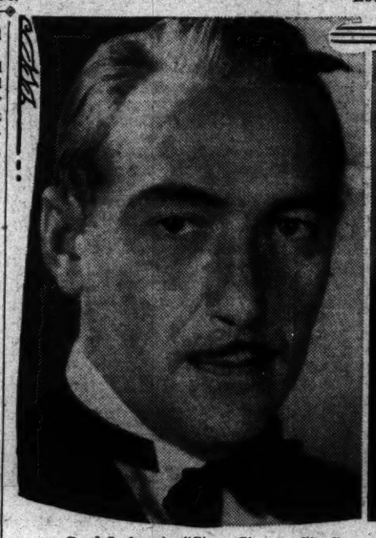
George Raft in "The Bowery" —Palace.

Carole Lombard in "Brief Moment" —Earle.



Paul Lukas in "Sing, Sinner, Sing" —Columbia.

Jack Oakie in "Too Much Harmony" —Metropolitan.

Bowery Drama At the Palace

The Nation's most colorful thoroughfare provides the title for one of the outstanding pictures of the year in "The Bowery," which brings Wallace Beery, George Raft and Jackie Cooper to Loew's Palace screen, beginning with a special midnight preview tonight.

"The Bowery" is the first of the new Twentieth Century productions, and presents these three ruthless rogues in a rowdy, robust romance of the mauve decade. It takes patrons back to the good old days made famous by Mae West, when hour-glass curves vied with button shoes and the corset-cover for first place in men's thoughts.

As "Swipes," Jackie Cooper is reunited with his idol of "The Champ," Wallace Beery. And Beery has one of his most effective roles as "Chuck" Conners, whose domination earned for him the mayoralty of Chinatown. He is seen fighting constantly with his pro-te-jay, Steve Brodie, played by George Raft, over the affections of a Bowery belle.

Held Over for A Third Week

Stepping right in line with its predecessors, "42nd St.," "Gold Diggers" and "College Humor," Paramount's latest musical romance, "Too Much Harmony," is creating such a generous round of applause that its current engagement will be extended at Warner Bros. Metropolitan Theater, where it is now in its second week.

Bing Crosby, famous stage, screen and radio star, has the featured role and is supported by Jack Oakie, Skeets Gallagher, Judith Allen, Lilyan Tashman and Harry Green.

The program is completed by short reel subjects, including a Grantland Rice Sportlight, "Champions of All Times," a Merrie Melody song cartoon, "We're in the Money," and the Paramount Sound News.

Football Yarn At the Rialto

With the world series out of the way, old King Football reigns again and the fall sporting season has opened with a roar and a sound of drop kicks.

And once again Universal presents a great football picture, this season the finest one of all, "Saturday's Millions," which comes to the Rialto Theater for the new week beginning Saturday.

It is a screen adaptation of the Lucian Carey story, which has just finished as a Saturday Evening Post serial, and is brought to the screen under Edward Sedgwick's direction with Johnny Mack Brown, Mary Carlisle, Leila Hyams, Andy Devine and Grant Mitchell in the cast. Robert Young is the featured player.

"Saturday's Millions," with its title descriptive of the crowds that attend the Saturday games throughout the United States, is a thrilling story of college life.

In completion of this unusual program, the Rialto offers selected short subjects, including a comedy feature.

Mystery Story Based on Fact

The thrilling film is based on a play by Wilson Collison. Howard Christy directed from the screen story by Edward T. Lowe.

"Sing, Sinner, Sing" is a story that rivals for drama and excitement the sensational murder mystery of last year, in which a famous singer was accused of the death of her young husband, heir to millions.

Blonde Leila Hyams is the torch singer in this story that concerns the marriage of a night club entertainer to a perpetually "soused" multimillionaire, who, through a frame-up, is accused of the death of her husband, who is found lifeless in the bathroom of their apartment following a brawl.

Several tunes have been especially written for the torch-singing sequences, and one melody particularly, "He's Mine," is said to have that certain quality that will label it a hit.

Fox Features New Technique

A radical change in the manner of presenting a story on the screen will take place at Loew's Fox tomorrow when "narratage," a new film technique, will be revealed for the first time in "The Power and the Glory," featuring Spencer Tracy and Colleen Moore. Another novelty will also be seen, on the stage, in Eddie Garr, America's newest and most versatile entertainer, who shares headline honors with the big, "little show" presented by Jack Sidney and his company of 10.

"The Power and the Glory" gives Spencer Tracy his greatest dramatic role and marks the return to the screen of Colleen Moore, who in this picture reestablishes herself firmly in the ranks of steller artists.

The plot reveals the outstanding events in the life of a man who rises from the humble position of a railroad track walker to a position of great power and wealth.

Eddie Garr, whose impersonations are extremely ingenious, scored an outstanding hit as a member of that amusing Broadway stage farce, "Strike Me Pink." Songs, dances and madcap comedy are the ingredients of Jack Sidney's "Samples of 1933." In the Sidney coterie are Wilbur Hall, nut comic; Anita Ames, diminutive dancer; the Stewart Sisters, Eddie Stewart, Marie and Antionette and Jack Sidney.

Bill Telaak, the all-American drawback, aided and abetted by Bill Brown and Sally Payne, and Alf Loyal and his Arabian Stallions complete the stage features.

Stage Play Is Put on Screen

"Brief Moment," telling the story of a night club singer and a young "playboy," will be the screen attraction at Warner Bros. Earl Theater for the week starting Friday. Carole Lombard has the featured role and is supported by Gene Raymond, Donald Cook and Monroe Owsley. The stage bill is headlined by Lowe, Burnoff & Wensely, one of the West Coast's most famous dance trios.

In "Brief Moment," the screen verison of S. N. Behrman's successful stage play, Miss Lombard interprets the character of Abby Fane, a struggling cabaret singer who meets and marries a rich and idle son of a socially prominent family. Marriage is like a bit of heaven for a while—until Abby comes to realize the futility of it all—the ceaseless round of parties, social affairs and play. She implores her new husband to go to work. He agrees, but under the pretense of being employed, he scamps around town with his former cronies. When his wife discovers the deception she promptly leaves him. The turn of events and the final denoument provide the setting for tender, romantic drama and scintillating comedy.

Other acts on the stage are Artie Lewis and Peggy Ames in a round of fun and foolishness; Nate Busby, a blackface favorite, in a song and comedy offering; Chung Yee Wah troupe, eight wonder workers from China, and Gracie Barrie as mistress of ceremonies.

Stores Blame Higher Prices On Factories

Manufacturers are responsible for increased cotton goods prices, Washington department store executives declared yesterday at their conference with Dr. Frederic C. Howe, consumers' counsel for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. They said that only a negligible part of the local mark-up in cotton goods prices is due to the processing tax, and asserted that in most instances the tax was absorbed by the retailer.

Charges that the processing tax was emphasized in discussing price increases were also denied by the merchants. They said employes on the contrary had been cautioned not to allude to the processing tax, and to refrain from specifying any particular cause for price increases.

It was charged that the increased prices were forced upon the retailer by the manufacturers.

Itemized Lists Submitted.

Adolph Weyl, treasurer of Lansburgh & Bro., submitted an itemized lists of boys' blouses of a certain type on which the processing tax amounted to 30 cents a dozen, while increased labor costs was $3 a dozen. He also read another invoice in which a 45 per cent increase over a price for last June was attributed to processing taxes, labor costs, increased factory costs and discount.

"Some manufacturers have arbitrarily arrived at the increased cost laid to the NRA," Mr. Weyl asserted. "We as retailers do not know what these costs are and what a legitimate increase would be.

"We are compelled to buy the merchandise or go out of business. Those prices are not our prices. We are endeavoring to be fair to the consuming public, but the retailers are forced to carry the burden."

Harold Levi, vice president of the Hecht Co., pointed out that retailers were not organized like manufacturers, hence do not have ample protection.

Opposes Minimum Mark-up.

A. C. Case, general manager of Palais Royal, cited an invoice of cotton sheets, costing $274, in which $106.81 was attributed to the processing tax and increased labor costs.

"This seems a little strong," he asserted.

Other executives gave similar evidence.

Criticism of the proposed minimum mark-up in the pending retail code was voiced by Dr. John A. Ryan, first vice president of the Consumers' Council of Washington. He said such a provision was proposed in order to save the "little merchant." He maintained that society owed no obligation to inefficient business firms.

Before the witnesses began testimony, Mrs. John J. Boyle, jr., chairman of the consumers' council, said she had received complaints from Washington buyers that the higher prices were not justified by the processing tax on cotton, or the NRA. She asked that the merchants make clear to the public just why the increases have been made.

Inquiry May Be Broadened.

In summoning Washington merchants to the conference, George N. Peek, administrator, made it plain that local stores were not under suspicion of wrong doing. In most cases, he said, merchants undoubtedly had been fair in handling the increased prices problem on cotton goods.

Stores invited to send representatives to the conference were Hecht Co., Kann's, Woodward & Lothrop, Palais Royal, W. B. Moses & Sons, Julius Garfinckel & Co., Goldenberg's and Lansburgh & Bro.

Similar investigations are being held in other cities, and Administrator Peek has anounced the investigation will be broadened to include the whole country if it is found to be warranted.

Post Carrier Boy Missing on Route

Last Seen While Making Collections Tuesday.

Police and friends last night were searching for Francis G. Long, 13, a Post carrier boy, who disappeared while making his weekly rounds of collections.

The youth is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Long, of 1313 Tenth street northwest. He was last seen checking over his collection list near Eleventh and M streets northwest about 8 p. m., Tuesday night.

He is 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 136 pounds, has blue eyes, sandy hair and fair complexion. He wore blue trousers, light brown sleeveless sweater, no hat and black oxfords, when last seen.

A year ago young Long was attacked and beaten. Found unconscious in an alley, he was under the care of a physician for several months. His parents fear he has been attacked again and robbed of his paper route collections. He is a student at Immaculate Conception School.

Deaths From Poison in Hair Dyes and Depilatories, Lost Eyesight Due to Eyelash Makeup, Revealed by U. S.

Data Gathered for Use in Tightening Food and Drug Law.

Evidence that many women have lost their eyesight by using certain brands of eyelash make-up, that persons have died from poisons contained in simple hair colorers and depilatories and that hundreds of men have wasted untold dollars on devices to grow hair and still remain bald, is being collected by the Food and Drug Administration of the Department of Agriculture.

The administration has prepared an exaustive exhibit to present to the Congressional Committee on Commerce when it meets in December to consider the new food and drug bill introduced at the last session.

Proponents of the bill point out that the present food and drugs act, which is 27 years old, is full of loopholes due to changed conditions and does not protect the consumer against deception and harmful poisons.

Cosmetics Not Covered.

Cosmetics were practically unknown at the time the act was passed and Government workers point to any drug store to show the extent of this trade, which is not mentioned in the present act.

The bill would provide Federal jurisdiction over advertising. At present there is jurisdiction over labels, but none over advertising.

The exhibit is a comprehensive one, including drugs, cosmetics and foods. It will try to prove that manufacturers, perfectly safe under the present law, have caused death, serious illness, bodily harm, or plain deception.

Frank Casey and George P. Larrick, of the Food and Drug Administration, have prepared the exhibit, which includes samples of the products, analyses of them, testimonials from grateful users, and in many cases death certificates of those who wrote the testimonials.

Skin Ruined by Cream.

Many skin bleaches, freckle removers and medicated ointments are on the blacklist of those containing mercury. While mercury is a fine skin bleach and whitener, its constant use can lead to a serious poison The administration has found one woman who, after two years' use of a certain skin cream, has lost all the beauty she was trying to preserve when large black patches broke out on her face and neck.

A popular brand of eyelash beautifier has caused total blindness of several women whom the Government investigators have located, and the partial blindness of many others.

A favorite depilatory, which sold for $10, contained a large percentage of thallium acetate, and developed in its faithful followers paralysis, with complete loss of hair on all parts of the body and, in some cases, blindness.

A popular diabetes cure, which sold for $12 a pint, was found on analysis to be a brew of a common weed known as "horsetail." For this exhibit, Mr. Larrick has collected the death certificates of 25 persons who had used this remedy constantly and died of diabetes.

Prevents Other Treatment.

"This is a harmless concoction," explained Larrick. "It could do no harm, but it couldn't cure diabetes. The trouble with this and other similar cures is that its use prevents sufferers from taking other treatment that might cure them."

Criminal action is pending on a Federal judgment against the manufacturer of a "genuine" cure-all. The manufacturer originally proclamed on his label that his medicine cured nearly 30 diseases, from tuberculosis to insect bite. In 1922 the Government succeeded in making him change his label to more modest claims, but could not prove the manufacturer knew his claims were false.

Finally Get Judgment.

For 10 years Government investigators worked on the case, and in 1932 produced in court the death certificates of persons whose testimonials the manufacturer was still using in his advertising pamphlets. Through this evidence that the accused was making fradulent claims, the Government got a judgment.

One of the practices which the Food and Drug Administration would have power to regulate would be that of putting cheap lead prizes in candy for children. Unsuspecting children, biting eagerly into a sugarcoated dainty, break their teeth and sometimes swallow the prize. In addition, according to Federal chemists, the lead adheres to the sweet and, taken in sufficient quantities, can be harmful.

City's "Buy Now" Drive Will Start at Once

Washington's "Now Is the Time to Buy" campaign is to be launched without delay, officials at the local NRA headquarters announced yesterday.

A meeting has been called for tomorrow afternoon at NRA headquarters to launch the campaign. Leading retail merchants have been invited, and a committee of merchants will sponsor the drive.

Georgetown Dean Asks, Lions to Back NRA

Support for the NRA was urged by Dr. William Frederick Notz, dean of the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University, at the Washington Lions Club in the Hotel Mayflower yesterday.

Dr. Notz cited unusual thrift measures in France, disciplinary rule of the Italians, self-sacrifice of the Germans and efforts of Great Britain to stabilize her finances as different attempts aimed toward the same goal.

$50,000 Gas Tax Sought For District

Bride Ordered to Collect Cash Long Past Due by 6 Importers.

The District Commissioners yesterday instructed Corporation Counsel William W. Bride to collect $50,000 in past-due gasoline taxes from a half dozen Washington importers.

Bride said he would allow the importers until November 15 to pay 25 per cent of the taxes under threat of being prosecuted in both civil and criminal courts if they failed to make the payment and three subsequent monthly payments.

One of the gasoline dealers has not paid any tax to the District, although he has been in operation since January, and the others are several months behind.

The tax assessor's office said leniency had been extended them because of local bank closings, as several had money tied up in institutions which only recently opened.

Tax officials declared inability of the District to collect the 2-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline showed the need for mandatory licenses and bonds similar to those required of dealers in Maryland and Virginia.

Occasionally the District files suit to collect back taxes only to find the dealer's property is all mortgaged and that the judgment is worthless. The District is then confronted with the problem of whether to prosecute the dealer and send him to jail or let him continue operating to pay at least a part of back taxes.

Rotarians Hear Jones Praise Home Owners

Home owners are the backbone of the Nation, Charles A. Jones, of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, told the Washington Rotary Club at its regular weekly luncheon yesterday.

He said one of the duties of his corporation was investigation of the characters of applicants for loans. He paid tribute to mortgage companies and building and loan associations, stating these had been lenient to persons trying to maintain their homes.

Error Stands

Woman's Pay, Set Too Low, Can Not Be Raised.

If the Government makes a mistake and hires an employe at less than the prevailing wage, it's just too bad for the employe, because his salary can't be raised to the general level, Comptroller General McCarl ruled yesterday.

The Comptroller General also ruled court reporters working for the Government on a fee basis are rendering personal service if they are hired for an indefinite time to do all the reporting work at a certain point. Pay for personal service is subject to the 15 per cent pay cut. But if the reporters furnish pencils, paper, and other materials they are working on contract and their pay is not to be cut.

Hospital Probes Illness of Nurses

Gallinger Hospital officials last night began an investigation into the illness of 36 nurses. All said they had eaten egg salad for lunch Monday.

All but four were able to go on duty yesterday morning, and the remaining four were well enough for duty last night. Hospital kitchen attendants said they were unable to trace cause of the illness.

Some 200 other nurses who ate the same food suffered no ill effects, said Miss Blanche Kickle, in charge of kitchens.

Ufford Resigns; Welfare Guide Here 25 Years

Walter S. Ufford, general secretary of the Associated Charities, will resign, effective March 1, 1934, ending a quarter century of social work in the Capital, it was announced yesterday.

He inaugurated the health program in District schools. The budget of association increased from $2,000 to $43,000, when it functioned as a separate social unit, before its participation in the Community Chest.

When Ufford came to Washington in 1909 to join the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis there was no public forum for social workers. He reorganized the Monday Evening Club, now recognized as a strong social power in the District. He helped organize child welfare agencies and the children's council.

He was active in the movement for abolition of alley dwellings, for the new Gallinger Hospital, for mothers' aid in the District and for an adequate number of doctors and nurses in the schools.

During the war Ufford was director of the Institute for Red Cross Home Service Workers. Under his leadership the Council of Social Agencies was organized and he was a prime mover in the organization of the Community Chest.

500,000 Fail to Get Shirts For March on Washington

Khaki-Clad Few Called to Proclaim Roosevelt Dictator-in-Fact.

President Roosevelt today will be proclaimed dictator in fact of the United States.

Hard-bound constitutionalists beware!

Art Smith, self-styled commanding general of the Khaki Shirts of America, has called his forces to the Capital to issue the proclamation.

He has warned that 500,000 khaki-clad followers will be in the Capital by today.

Not worried by the prospects, Chief of Detectives Frank S. W. Burke opines: "I think some shirt salesman is behind the whole business."

Somewhere the 500,000 storm troopers have disappeared. Only 72 have been accounted for by police. They left Philadelphia yesterday in automobiles. About 100 more lingered about their headquarters in the Quaker City, rather vague about everything.

Some of them wore Italian black shirt uniforms, with black fez and tassel. Others wore khaki shirts. Not even a police escort awaits them at the District line.

Hearing of this, the Khaki Shirts were in high glee.

"Washington has capitulated," was the cry.

$50,000 Libel Action Filed Against Carter

Public Printer George H. Carter was sued yesterday for $50,000 for alleged libel.

Lewis H. Smith, linotype operator, 2611 Twenty-second street northwest, said Carter made accusations in connection with two promissory notes Smith obtained from two Government Printing office employes.

Kohn Plans To Build Up D. C. 'Slums'

Locations Will Be Secret to Halt Price Rise, City Planners Told.

Two rehabilitation demonstrations, intended to set an example for the rest of the country, will be started soon in Washington, Robert D. Kohn, director of housing in the Public Works Administration, said last night.

Speaking at the Federal City dinner held at the Cosmos Club, Kohn declared need for slum elimination and abolishment of alley dwellings is as great in the Nation's capital as in other large cities.

One project which he intends to begin soon, he said, is rehabilitation of certain run-down neighborhood sections. Many houses in these areas, while neglected and unsightly, are worth saving, Kohn declared. The other "demonstration" is the erection of a model Negro section in which sanitary and attractive dwellings may be provided at low cost.

Locations Kept Secret.

Washington architects are cooperating in choosing sites for the experiments, he said. Locations will be kept secret until work is actually begun to forestall increase in prices.

Pennsylvania avenue will be the finest city thoroughfare in the world when the building program is completed, Gilmore D. Clarke, of the Fine Arts Commission, told the 200 dinner guests. He urged Federal acquisition of land on either side of the Potomac between Washington and Great Falls to make the proposed George Washington Memorial Parkway possible.

Alfred Bettman, president of the National Conference on City Planning, outlined functions of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Duties of the office of National Parks, Buildings and Reservations were described by Arno B. Cammerer, director.

Convention Ends Today.

The joint convention of the National Conference on City Planning and American Civic Association, transferred here from Baltimore yesterday, will end today. A morning session will be held in the Interior Building, followed by a luncheon at the Cosmos Club and an afternoon tour of the city.

$50,000 Is Asked For Armory Plans

Supplements $2,500,000 Sought for Building.

The District Commissioners today will ask the Public Works Administration for $50,000 to prepare plans for a National Guard armory for which they previously have requested $2,500,000.

A site at the east end of East Capitol street, recently was selected and the land will be dedicated to the District should funds for construction be obtained.

So far there has been no indication that Secretary Ickes would approve the $2,500,000 grant, but the Commissioners wish the plans prepared so that construction could be started as soon as funds are available from the Public Works Administration or other sources.

Labor Urges U. S. Adopt Short Week

Demands 30-Hour Plan for Government Workers.

A. F. of L. President Will Launch Fight Before Next Congress.

"The United States Government should be a model employer and take the lead in establishing terms of employment which will serve as a model to private industry," said a resolution adopted yesterday by the American Federation of Labor in behalf of a 30-hour week for Government employes.

President William Green, following adoption of the resolution, announced his organization is ready to throw the entire power of its lobby against Congress to obtain the desired hours "without any reduction in the weekly pay received by Government employes prior to the enactment of the economy acts."

A meeting of Government employes' organizations affiliated with the A. F. of L. will be called immediately, Green said.

Text of Resolution.

The resolution, sponsored by the Government employes' organizations and the Metal Trades Department of the A. F. of L. under the leadership of John P. Frey, read:

"Whereas, one of the causes for unemployment has been the enormous increase in the wage-earner's capacity to produce as a result of greatly increased use of power, machinery, chemical and other processes, and the technical supervision of methods of production; and

"Whereas, the shortening of the hours of labor is one of the important steps which must be taken to provide adequate opportunity for employment; and

"Whereas, spreading the work without increasing the total volume of wages being paid would prevent an increase in capacity to purchase on the part of the masses; and

"Whereas, this increased purchasing power is essential to industrial and commercial recovery; and Should Take Lead.

"Whereas, the United States Government should be a model employer and take the lead in establishing terms of employment which will serve as a model to private industry, therefore be it

"Resolved, that the Fifty-third Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor record itself in favor of the enactment by the Congress of the United States of a measure which will establish a 30-hour work week without any reduction in the weekly pay received by the Government employes prior to the enactment of the economy acts."

Among other resolutions affecting Government employes to be considered later are those calling for higher wages, lengthening of vacations and sick leaves, and establishment of a Civil Service Court of Appeals.

The Girl Reserve Adult Guidance Council will open sessions of a three-day conference at the Y. W. C. A. tomorrow.

Centralization of ownership and control and the absorption of independent generating stations also was reported. No report of the output of energy in Washington alone was made public, to avoid disclosing the operation of individual establishments, which is prohibited by law.

There are 23 commercial and 16 municipal power stations in the territory.

Invaders Pile Up Total of 34 Points in Third Period.

Molesworth's 90-Yard Run to Score High Spot of Game.

RED GRANGE'S Chicago Bears, Grangeless for 59 of the 60 minutes of play, swamped the Washington Passers last night, 48-7. A windnipped crowd of approximately 9,000 witnessed the first invasion of the Capital by a National Professional League team.

Grange, reported to be in a feverish condition just before game time, but bound by contract to appear on the field of play, entered the fray one minute before the end of the second period. He sat on the bench throughout the second half.

It was the opening kick-off touchdown run by Keith Molesworth to start the second half that afforded the spectators the thrill of the evening. The Chicagoan, formerly of a school named Monmouth, grabbed Bankhead's boot on the Bear 10-yard line and slashed up the center of the field for a beautiful 90-yard run for the score.

Bears Start Parade.

This gallop started the Bears' touchdown parade in the third period that saw Nesbit, Hewitt, Molesworth again, and Zeller cross the Passer goal line in a scoring parade that netted 34 points during the quarter.

In the second stanza, Bankhead zipped a 32-yard pass to Pease which brought the ball to the Bears' 12. Two short stabs at the line put the ball on the half-yard marker and then Bankhead plunged over center for the Passers' lone tally.

The Chicagoans started to score within the first three minutes of play. Corbett and Sisk worked the ball down the field from their own 22 to the Passers' 10. From there, on a reverse run around left end, Corbett took the ball over.

The game was featured by the brilliant running and trick laterals of the Granges. One play in particular that caught the locals off guard and brought the crowd to its feet was the triple lateral that started on a spin around left end with Sisk carrying the ball. He slipped it to Corbett, who, in turn, passed to Manders for a combined total of 56 yards.

Corbett's fine ball toting through the center of the line and the stone wall defense by the Windy City linemen also caught the crowd's fancy.

For the Passers, Fenlon and Bankhead stood out. The former George Washington star's returns of kicks were well executed, while Jimmy Bankhead's able pass—heaving, when his line held, compared favorably to that of the Bears.

Irish Click and Score 10 Times on Freshmen

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 11 (AP).—The Notre Dame offense began to click today as the varsity scrimmaged against a strong freshman team and scored ten touchdowns.

Good work by the forward wall, plus clever blocking, was largely responsible for the scoring flurry. Eight or ten defending players were spilled on every play. Andy Pilney, Don Elser and Ray Brancheau were the scoring artists.

Coach Anderson will select 33 players tomorrow and leave Friday for Martinsville, Ind., to remain overnight before going to Bloomington Saturday to meet Indiana.

Stribling Crash Driver Bonded in 2d Accident

Macon, Ga., Oct. 11 (AP).—Sergt. H. W. Humphries, of the Macon Police Department, today said R. V. Johnson, whose automobile collided with a motorcycle ridden by W. L. ("Young") Stribling, causing injuries that resulted in the boxer's death, had been arrested on charges of violating the rules of the road after another accident.

He said Johnson's automobile was in collision with one driven by C. S. Sargeant at a street intersection today and Mrs. Sergeant was injured. She was allowed to return to her home after treatment.

Munns, of St. Paul, Traded to Dodgers

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, of the National League Baseball League, today announced the purchase from St. Paul, of the American Association, of Pitcher Leslie Munns for three players and cash.

The Brooklyn players who will go to St. Paul in the deal are Pitchers Babe Phelps and Hollis Thurston and Outfielder Joe Hutcheson, secured from Memphis late in the year. The cash consideration was not announced.

Munns, a 6-foot 2-inch right-hander, won 19 games and lost 16 with St. Paul, a fourth-place club in the association.

Pegler Says

Stribling Probably Played Safe in Ring to Please Parents, Not Self.

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 11. People who did not know Willie Stribling will find it difficult to reconcile his reputation as a clincher in the ring with his established bravery on wheels and in the air.

Except for his fight with Max Schmeling, in which, at last, he forgot the caution which had always marred his work from the customers' standpoint and, to some extent, from his own, he was a prize fighter who always seemed leary of being hit.

Fought Cautiously.

Of Course, no smart gladiator invites punishment, but Stribling was so cautious at all times, except in the Schmeling fight, that he almost always left the ring owing the customers something. It is not a prize fighter's obligation to stick out his chin or otherwise expose himself needlessly to damage, but in a fight it is reasonable to expect an

C. U. May Start New Line-up Saturday

Work of Karpowich and Shaughnessy Will Be Watched Closely.

DESIRING to rest his regulars as much as possible, and anxious to obtain a definite idea of the value of his reserves, "Dutch" Bergman may start an entirely new team against St. John's when Catholic U. plays the Annapolitans Saturday.

The players to be given the opportunity of proving their mettle are Harold McGann and George Mulligan, ends; Lloyd Stafford and Ed Karpowich, tackles; Bill Thibodeau, quarter back; Tom Finn and Bob McVean, half backs, and Francis Santry, full back.

Agile for His Weight.

The work of Karpowich and Shaughnessy will be watched particularly. Shaughnessy, a 218-pounder, has done very well the few times he has been inserted in games, and is remarkably agile for his weight. Karpowich is husky, too, although he does not compare with his running mate in heft.

St. John's gridders went through a stiff workout yesterday in preparation for the fray. Greater speed and timing in the running attack was stressed by Coach "Tody" Riggs, who hopes to surprise the Cardinals.

Despite the abolition of the freshman rule forbidding first-year students to play on the varsity, Riggs is handicapped by a dearth of reserve material. Catholic will have a decided edge in this respect.

Talman Advances In Spa Golf Play

Reaches Semifinals by Defeating Indalls.

Hot Springs, Va., Oct. 11 (AP).—D. N. Talman, veteran Minneapolis golfer, advanced to the semifinals of the twenty-first annual fall golf tournament at Hot Springs today with a 1-up victory over Fay Indalls, of Hot Springs.

In other matches John J. Hicks Kerr, of Richmond, defeated Frank Lee, of Danbury, Conn., 6 and 5; Edwin H. Vare, jr., of Philadelphia, defeated Robert Hoyt, of Danbury, Conn., 6 and 5, and W. L. Richard, of New York, defeated L. P. Christenson, of Montclair, N. J., 5 and 4.

Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, took an easy victory over Mrs. William Clark, of Princeton, N. J., in the women's division, winning, 8 and 7.

Mrs. John T. Pierie, jr., of Chicago, defeated Mrs. Vare's mother-in-law, Mrs. Edwin H. Vare, of Philadelphia, 5 and 3. Mrs. Beverly R. Shriver, of Pittsburgh, defeated Mrs. Lawrence D. Buhl, of Detroit, 6 and 5, and Mrs. Thomas R. Hulme, of Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. Conway H. Olmstead, of Chicago, 9 and 8.

Washington Gun Club Shifts October Card

A change in its program for the remainder of the month was announced yesterday by the Washington Gun Club. As revised, the card includes a diversified number of events on each Saturday of the month.

October 14 the all-round club championship will be fired. Three trophies, allotted by the Lewis Class, will be awarded. The following week the regular club events, with trophies to high gun on 50 targets and 16-yard handicap, will be contested.

The biggest day of the month will be October 28 when a picked team will shoot it out with a ten-man team from the Annapolis Gun Club. This will be followed by the 16-yard club championship. This should be one of the most interesting events of the fall and club officials are looking forward to a gala day.

"Ringer" Is Barred From Belair Track

Two Suspended as Horse Appears at Frederick.

Baltimore, Oct. 11 (AP).—Aknahton, which has been barred from Maryland race tracks after it had run two years ago as "Shem" at Havre de Grace, today was ruled off the Harford County Fair track at Bel Air, by the Maryland Racing Commission after it had been entered in a five-eighths mile running race.

J. H. Anderson, representative of the commission at the track, said Aknahton had been entered by M. J. Scarborough, of Albion, N. Y., who told him the New York Jockey Club has assured him it would be all right to run the horse at fairs.

Earlier in the day, the commission suspended Mickey Liniero and G. H. Irish, listed as owner and trainer of Chinese Puzzle, which was identified at York, Pa., last week as Aknahton.

A race horse, entered as Chinese Puzzle, at the Frederick County Fair race, today was barred by track officials until they are satisfied that the animal is a bona fide racer.

G. W. Eleven Depends on Leemans

"TUFFY" LEEMANS, acclaimed one of the best backs enrolled under the George Washington standard, will be put to the acid test tomorrow night when the Colonials battle Clemson at Griffith Stadium. "Tuffy" will be one of the new quartet of ball carriers Coach Jim Pixlee has elected to start against the Southerners.

Heretofore Leemans has been relegated to the comparatively minor role of substituting for either half back. On such appearances he has shown flashes of brilliance, both in kicking and running the ball. Against North Dakota he flipped a couple of passes that opened the coaches' eyes. They may have another triple-threat man on their hands.

Bring Cadet Corps.

Clemson's cadet corps, 600 strong, is scheduled to arrive this morning at 7:15 o'clock. A 40-piece band leads the cadets. At 10 a. m. tomorrow they will parade to the Capitol to be received by the South Carolina delegation.

The team will not reach Washington until 11:55, and will proceed immediately to its hotel. The group includes 36 men, headed by Coach Jess Neely. Tonight the players will work out at the stadium under the arc lights.

A swift round of social activities has been planned for the students by Clemson alumni, headed by Edgar Morris, local business man, and the South Carolina State Society. The program will culminate in a dance tonight at the Shoreham Hotel.

George Washington's varsity scrimmaged the freshmen, who used Clemson plays yesterday. The coaches were far from satisfied with the general trend of the team's work. For a time the frosh had things their own way.

Lowder, American U., Will Be Able to Play

Bob Lowder, freshman full back who made his debut on the gridiron for American University last week against Hampden-Sydney, will be back in the line-up when the Eagles play Bridgewater College. Lowder was injured late in the third quarter, and at first was thought to have broken his collarbone. X-rays revealed only torn muscles, however, and he will be able to resume his position.

Seabright Girls Invade D. C. Nets

A tennis match with an intersectional flavor will be staged Saturday on the courts of the Columbia Country Club when a picked team of local girls meets a team from Seabright, N. J. Seven singles matches will be played starting at 10 o'clock in the morning, to be followed by three doubles in the afternoon.

The local team will be selected from among Mrs. Ruth Martinez, Abbie Sard, Francis Bassett, Clara Tabler, Dorette Miller, Sara Moore, Peggy Keyser, Marion Butler, Mary Ryan, Bobsy Turner, Ruth Colladay, Kay Johnson and Margaret Graham.

Mrs. Martinez will encounter Kate La March, star of the invading troupe, in the No. 1 singles match. Abbie Sard and Francis Bassett will play the No. 1 doubles match, and positions for the remaining matches will be filled from the rest of the group. All are requested to report Saturday morning at the club.

Susan Hacker Leading In Chevy Chase Tourney

Seeking her third consecutive club championship, Miss Susan Hacker got off to a flying start yesterday in the first 18-hole round of the Chevy Chase women's tournament by scoring an 89.

With 18 more holes slated today, Miss Hacker is leading her nearest rival, Mrs. Harrison Brand, by three strokes. Tied at 93, each, are Mrs. Hume Wrong and Miss Louise Claytor. Mrs. L. O. Cameron scored a 96; Mrs. McCook-Knox, 98; Mrs. Landra B. Platt, 100, and Mrs. J. W. Beller, 101.

Grid Crowds Increase 41 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP).—After several lean years at the box office, during which attendance dropped away alarmingly from the good old days of 1925-30, football is staging a recovery act that bids fair to make the 1933 season the best of the last four in point of patronage.

A Nationwide survey today by the Associated Press of early season attendance at 32 representative schools shows the amazing gain of 210,000 customers, with the total for the like period in 1932 as 499,029 and for 1933, 705,880.

Various factors enter into the upturn, such as good weather, lower admission prices, changes in coaches and better attractions. But when all these are discounted the record still shows that the sports fans are turning out in greater numbers than for several seasons, and sending the money rolling into athletic department treasuries that have been as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard.

New Record Looms.

If the trend continues, the end of the season may see a new high mark for attendance and happier days for the little brothers of college sport—basket ball, baseball, lacrosse, soccer, tennis and track—which have been on a lean diet the last year or so, and from which financial support has been withdrawn at many schools.

The 41 per cent increase in attendance so far offsets the losses of 1931 and 1932, which were, respectively, 10 and 15 per cent below the preceding years.

The increase has not been confined to any one section. Only four schools report a smaller attendance this year than last.

Yale, Tennessee Draw Throngs.

Record first-game crowds were counted at Yale and Tennessee, 17,000 to see the Bulldog defeat Maine and 11,429 to witness Tennessee's victory over Virginia Poly.

Ohio State, playing Virginia last Saturday, drew the banner attendance of 42,000, as against 12,000 in 1932. Most of these were school children admitted free, but the increase still stands as the best of any school in the country.

The largest outpouring of fans to date was the crowd of 60,000 which saw California score a last-minute victory over the Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's, 5,000 more than saw the same teams play in 1932.

The figures on the 32 schools reporting, most of them estimates by athletic directors or graduate managers and close to the actual count:

Mrs. Griffin Captures Spencer's Blind Bogey

Mrs. Albert Haas, losing to Mrs. Griffin in the draw, had 71-22-49, for second prize. Mrs. Rex Wever, with 12 putts, and Mrs. C. E. Purdy, with 16, won prizes in the putting contest.

The ladies ringer tournament came to a close yesterday at Beaver Dam, with Mrs. N. J. Waldron the victor with a 74. Mrs. Albert E. Fischer was second with 78.

Mrs. Waldron's ringer card:

Discussing Manhattan Game

Aerial Defense Stressed at Cornell

Army in Stiff Scrimmage; Princeton's Varsity Runs Amuck.

(Associated Press.)

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Coach Gilmour Dobie staged a general review of offensive and defensive tactics today in Cornell's last long practice before its departure tomorrow night for Ann Arbor, and Saturday's game with Michigan. There was no hard scrimmage and no injuries. The defense against passes and end runs was stressed, with Ferraro, Switzer and Goldblas showing up well against the Scrubbs' aerials.

Army Squad Scrimmages.

West Point, N. Y.—Working on a defense to use in its game against Illinois at Cleveland a week from Saturday, the Army squad had another intensive scrimmage. Time was about evenly divided between offense and defense against the scrub squad, which was equipped with an extensive assortment of Illinois plays. Tom O'Neill, second-string quarter back, got into the regular back field for the first time in several days, alternating with Paul Johnson and Ralph King.

Scores 11 Touchdowns.

Princeton, N. J.—The Princeton varsity scored 11 touchdowns in a long offensive scrimmage against the third eleven. Then the second Tiger team put over a few more against the scrubs. Homer Spofford tallied five times for the varsity and the sophomores, Pepper Constable and Paul Pauk, made two scores each. Constable was at full back in place of "Purdge" Rulon Miller, who was laid up with a slight shoulder injury.

Colgate Kickers Drill.

Hamilton, N. Y.—Figuring on a hard game against Rutgers, Andy Kerr, Colgate coach, drilled his placement and drop-kickers for nearly an hour. Clair (Chin) Lyon and Clarence Anderson did the booting, Lyon being especially effective. In defensive drill the scrubs made several long gains with Rutgers plays.

New Lateral-Pass Play.

New York—The Columbia varsity gave its passing game a thorough going-over in a scrimmage between the "A" and "B" teams. Cliff Montgomery threw both forwards and laterals with only fair success. A new lateral-pass play, Maniaci to Matal, came in for much attention.

N. Y. U. in Long Session.

New York—New York University's Violets had a long session of defense against Lafayette plays after working on forward passes for the second day. Charles Siegel, Nat Grossman and Ed Smith were the passers.

Two Changes Made.

Post Mortems . . .

The double wing-back was first used exactly 17 years ago from this Saturday by Pop Warner against the Navy . . . when he was coach of the Pitt Panthers . . . to commemorate the occasion the two teams will clash in Pittsburgh Saturday . . . Shipwreck Kelly, part owner of the Brooklyn pro football eleven and a great back at Kentucky a few years ago, ran a night club while attending his alma mater . . . in a final Pacific Coast baseball game this year, played at night, the cash take-in amounted to $26, while the cost of lighting up the field set back the management $38 . . . Max Hannum, Carnegie Tech basket ball coach, was slugged by a player in a high school game in which he was officiating . . . Max left the kid in the game, realizing that it was an excusable burst of temper . . . and when the final whistle blew, the ball was going into the hoop to win the game . . . and it was tossed by Hannum's slugger . . . Oddie Cleghorn, former national star hockey player, is now a golf pro at Montreal.

Md. Leaves Today For Tulane Game

Spirits High, Teams Has Visions of Upset.

University of Maryland's football squad will depart this afternoon at 1:35 o'clock for New Orleans, where it meets Tulane Saturday. A squad of 30 players and five coaches will make the trip.

Beaten in its first two games by Texas A. and M., 13 to 6, and Georgia, 26 to 13, Tulane, nevertheless, figures to stop the Old Liners without undue exertion. The Maryland game originally was scheduled as a breather for the Green Wave between the Georgia and Georgia Tech games.

Its spirits buoyed by its performance against V. P. I., Maryland not only hopes to hold its rival to a low score, but also has visions of scoring an upset. Victory over Tulane would make the season successful for the College Parkers, regardless of how they fare in their remaining games.

The same players who made the trip to Norfolk last week are going to New Orleans. The lone addition is Ed Minion, regular tackle, whose broken hand kept him on the bench. Minion expects to see action.

Spears Shifts Wisconsin Players

(Associated Press.)

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 11.—Coach Spears continued to make changes in both the line and back field today as the Wisconsin varsity drilled on defense against Illinois plays. J. Femal, who had been groomed as an end, was shifted to tackle and Bucci gave way to Kummer at guard.

Illinois Improves.

Deception Plays Drill.

Iowa City, Iowa, Oct. 11.—The lack of a second punter worried Coach Ossie Solem today as he tried out Bob Rook, Joe Laws, and George Teyro. But their punts failed to reach the mark set by the star sophomore fullback, Dick Crayne. That the Hawkeyes would depend upon a tricky running attack to gain ground against Wisconsin, October 21, was indicated when the Iowa mentor ordered further drill on deception plays.

Gophers Try Passes.

Minneapolis, Oct. 11.—A cold snap made the Gophers step lively today while spending most of the afternoon perfecting the pass attack for the Purdue game Saturday. Julius Alfonse, sophomore, kept his regular right half back position, while George Roscoe, his predecessor, threw passes for the second team.

Reserve List Strengthened.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Coach Clark Shaughnessy's search for Maroon reserve tackle strength ended today, when Jim Gold, a 181-pound former Chicago prep star, became eligible. Shaughnessy now has four good tackles, Bush, Deem, Rice, and Gold. Bob Cummings, who has attended Illinois and Chicago, has announced he intends to return to the Midway school. He will be used as a reserve center.

Northwestern Scrimmages.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 11.—Coach Dick Hanley changed his plans to ease off today on the Northwestern workouts, and the Wildcats went through another tough drill, which included scrimmage against a reserve team. Stanford, the Cats' opponents Saturday, arrived today, and Coach Tiny Thornhill hustled his squad over to Soldiers Field.

Centre Opposes Boston College

Unbeaten and Unscored-on Teams Fight Today.

Newton, Mass., Oct. 11 (AP).—Football stalwarts from Centre College, reputed to have the strongest team since the immortal aggregation that included Bo McMillin and Red Roberts, will make their third straight attempt to tame the Boston College Eagles tomorrow on the new alumni field.

Both Centre and B. C. have unbeaten and unscored-on records after engaging two weak opponents, but neither eleven has had a chance to discover its real strength. Coach Eddie Kubale, who played center for the 1921 team that defeated Harvard, admits that his reserve strength is much greater than last year, when Boston College eked out a 6-0 victory on Johnny Freitas' 65-yard runback of a last-minute punt.

Ruth Ready To Manage Club Now

Prefers to Be Player-Pilot With Team Low in Present Rank.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11 (U.P.).—Babe Ruth is ready to take over the management of a major league ball club any time now.

The famous slugger paused in Chicago briefly today to see the World's Fair before continuing his journey to Honolulu. He admitted he would consider seriously any offer made him to become a major league manager.

"I wouldn't be choosey about what club it is," said the Babe. "The lower the club the better for me. If I improved it and got it up in the race, I would get credit for it."

Ruth admitted in an interview that if he had his choice of managerial jobs he would take the Chicago White Sox or the Boston Red Sox.

"But those two teams have managers," said Babe. "The White Sox have a good man in Fonseca, and I understand that the Red Sox have signed up Bucky Harris. I have always wanted to play in Chicago as I seem to be very popular with the fans here."

Would Continue to Play.

Ruth said that if he took over the management of any team it would be as a player-manager.

"I'm not through yet, but I couldn't play many over 100 games," he said. "Funny thing, they had me all through last year and I felt better than for several years. I played with my ankles wrapped with tape, and that strengthened them a lot."

Ruth laughed at any idea of going back to pitching. He pitched the last game of the season the past two years, winning it each time.

"Pitching is too tough at my age," he said. "It would take a couple of years of hard training for me to get my arm in shape, and it's too late to start all over again."

Ruth will be 40 on February 7, and has completed 20 years of major league service.

It isn't at all certain that Ruth will play with the New York Yankees next season.

"I haven't talked to Col. Ruppert about my contract," said the Babe, "and I don't know how he'll agree on terms or what his plans are for me."

Big Bad Wolf

Impellettiere Named Man Carnera Foes Must Dispose of First.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (U.P.).—Raymond Rosaria Impellettiere, America's rebuilt heavyweight, today was recognized officially as the "big bad wolf" of the boxing game.

The New York Boxing Commission designated the 260-pound colossus of Cold Springs as the obstacle which Maxie Baer, Johnny Risko, King Levinsky or Tommy Loughran must remove before any one of them can be regarded as a challenger for Primo Carnera's world heavyweight title.

Impellettiere, who has been huffing and puffing about for the last year without finding a single worthwhile opponent, will be thrown in with one of these four boxers at the earliest possible date. If any one of them disposes of him, Mr. Impellettiere, the 23-year-old menace, will be removed automatically from the picture.

May Face Carnera.

However, if Impellettiere can pound his way through the quartet, he will be given a crack at Carnera's crown in the battle of mastodons. Little Raymond stands 6 feet 7½ as he steps out of the bathtub, wears 12½ shoes and sports an 18-inch neck. He weighs only 7 pounds less than Carnera and is about 2 inches taller. He is perfectly proportioned.

While a bout is being arranged with one of the big four, Lenny intends taking Impellettiere to New Orleans, Galveston and California for a couple of tune-up bouts. He expects to leave for New Orleans next week.

U. S. Hockey Team Bows.

Birmingham, England, Oct. 11 (AP). The Midland Women's Field Hockey Team today defeated the touring American side, 11 to 2, for the fourth straight defeat of the United States women on their British invastion.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

THAT bit of plain and fancy needlework that the Federal narcotic agents uncovered at Arlington during the summer when 12 horse dopers were hailed into the courts, evidently is forcing the race fixers to seek out other ways and means of mulcting the mutuels, the public and the track officials.

They are resorting apparently to the old stunt of running "ringers," according to the reports from York, Pa., where Aknaton, the famed horse that used the alias of "Shem" at Havre de Grace three years ago to win a race at long odds, turned up as a horse named "Chinese Puzzle," and ran second.

The boys who know all the answers even before the race is run, are shying at Federal interference in their doping racket and three cases of "ringers" at Eastern tracks within the past three days give us an inkling of which way the wind is blowing in the demi-monde of the turf.

Shrewd Counterfeiters.

They are shrewd counterfeiters in horseflesh, these "ringer" boys, who were brazen enough to attempt to get away with their tricks at a major track like Havre de Grace, where the best facilities are available for the detection of "ringers." And they got away with it, too, for it was not until the next day, when bets on "Shem" were paid off, that the ruse was discovered.

The name "ringer," used to describe the substitution of one horse for another, very aptly draws its designation from the fact that one horse is being "run into" a race under another horse's name and pedigree. Usually, the alias used is that of a cheap selling plater, on which long odds can be expected.

They never attempt to "ring in" a false steed in the stake races or better claiming races, for there is great possibility of detection by the paddock judge and the patrol judges, who are familiar with the conformation of every horse in training which is of any account. So the "fixers" seek out the cheap races for their coup.

Have Expert Dyers.

They go to great trouble to "ring in" their steeds under the name of a long shot. Expert dyers prepare the horse for the race and the inspection of the judges. They go to great lengths to duplicate the coloring of the legs, the nose, or the mane, as the case may be, in order to avert the slightest suspicion.

Another trick resorted to by the "ringer boys" when the substitution of a 3-year-old for a 2-year-old is made, is the filing of the teeth of their false entry to conform to the teeth of a 2-year-old, which are not nearly as large or as prominent. They overlook few bets, do these counterfeiters in horse flesh.

That they may be apprehended is no deterrent to these criminals of the turf, for they are liable only to the laws of the turf and not to criminal prosecution, as are the dopers. Expulsion from race tracks for life is the only penalty they face, a penalty that is difficult to enforce. And the possibilities of a financial killing is usually worth the risk, as far as the fixers are concerned.

These "ringer boys" are of the same ilk as the old-fashioned race fixers whose motto was "beat the bookies." Many and clever were their ruses to collect on "sure things."

There was a celebrated case in Kentucky back in the '90's when they worked in collusion with the telegrapher who operated the only wire at the track. After planting wads of money in poolrooms throughout the country, they waited for the telegrapher's false flash on the result of the race, collected and scrammed.

Not many years ago, Kentucky race officials exposed the existence of a jockey ring. Five riders, with mounts in most races, designated the winners before the race was run. To put their choice across they artistically pulled their own mounts, pocketed the favorites, and otherwise maneuvered the winner across the line.

Probably most unique of all the coups of the "fixers" was the trick used to mulct New York bookies back in the '90's. It was in the days before the fast communication facilities, and again they

Labrot Hope Scores by 2 Lengths

Gets Commanding Lead in Stretch to Beat Polly Egret.

"HERE come 'at gray hoss. Man, ain't he travelin'?"—those were words of a dusky turf fan with headquarters in front of the press box at Laurel yesterday afternoon. And those words tell a major part of the story of how Greyglade, a game daughter of Sir Greysteel, defeated some of the upper-crust juvenile fillies gathered at this course.

The gray horse came. With a rush that carried her out alone in the bright autumn sunlight, Greyglade was a winner by a margin that chartmakers recorded as one of of two lengths. High Torque and Hindu Queen, a 44-1 shot, had their own private battle for the second money and victory went to the former by the proverbial nose.

The race, run over the 6-furlong route, was dubbed "The Wye Mill," and drew a field of six candidates for the rich Selima Stakes.

Polly Egret Disappoints.

John Public believed it would be a mere workout for Polly Egret to lead the group to the finish line. He went to Polly in a big way, forcing the mutuel department to dig into the trunks for extra tickets. However, Polly was next to last when the important running was over. There was a move started after the race to rename her "Polly Regret."

Chief early speed was enfolded by Best By Test and Polly Egret. Saunders was letting Greyglade find her racing legs at this stage. On the swing for the stretch, Greyglade came. Past Best by Test, past High Torque and past Polly Egret went the gray horse. The finish, as far as win purposes were concerned, was just a formality.

Character Near Record.

The secondary feature proved a hop, skip and jump for Character, the worst looking horse in the race. Loury had only to guide the winner. Cathop drove inot second money ahead of Acautaw. Character ran the 6 furlongs in 1:11 2-5, a fifth of a second off the track record.

Blondino, under a rousing ride by Loury, came bouncing home in the opening dash for 2-year-old maidens. Poll Parrot was a fast-closing second and the favored Galon Lad was third. The last named had the toughest trip in a race marked by much crowding and rough riding.

Grand Acre was chased around the oval by Dancing Mack in the second race which found Bokie B. third. Williams had the mount on the winner and was in front rounding the clubhouse turn never to be headed. Loury saved ground all the way with Dancing Mack but there was too much horse in front of him.

Prince Tokalon Scores.

The betters backed Prince Tokalon into favoritism and then went up in the stands to see the son of Prince Pal score an easy victory in the third race. Tipton was pulling up during the last sixteenth of a mile. The real competition in the race was for second money with Daily News, Chief's Troubador and War Saint noses apart.

Marcasite came from behind to win the sixth race and send his backers into the pay-off windows for $37 for each $2 wager. Vested Power and Even Up was closest of the others.

The final went to Backgamon, which was followed by Fort Dearborn and Considerate.

Strange as It Seems

Christopher Columbus, whose discovery of America is celebrated this day, might have been lost to history had it not been for the faint heart of an unknown crew. Strange as it seems, the first expedition westward across the Atlantic which Columbus planned, embarked in secret without Columbus himself.

This occurred after Columbus had appealed to the King of Portugal for aid in fitting out an expedition to sail westward in hopes of discovering a route to Asia. The king's council turned the idea down, but King John, to whom Columbus had submitted his plans, secretly fitted out such an expedition and dispatched it about 1484.

The secret expedition went but a short way before the sailors lost heart, and forced a return to port—leaving for Columbus the glory of his later discovery.

Willie Meehan was never a very important fighter, but strange as it seems, he is the only man who shares Gene Tunney's distinction of having twice beaten Jack Dempsey. Meehan fought Dempsey five times, winning twice, losing once, and drawing twice. Meehan lost his first bout with Dempsey, drew the fourth and won the last. The first four fights were in 1917, the last in 1918. All went to decisions.

British Race Won By Widener Horse

Seminole Scores Surprise and Pays 100 to 6.

New Market, Eng., Oct. 11 (AP). Stepping away from 32 of Britain's leading handicap horses, the English bred and American owned Seminole, sporting the silks of Joseph E. Widener, of New York, today scored an unexpected victory in the classis Cesarewitch, long distance stake of the English turf.

So lightly regarded that he paid the long odds of 100 to 6, the big chestnut son of Diligence out of Blanche finished the trying two and one-quarter mile course two lengths in front of another outsider, P. Johnson's Loose Strife. Four lengths farther back in third place, trailed Joe Cooper's Roi de Paris.

A strong wind swept the course and kept away his majesty, King George, at Sandringham. The British ruler had planned to see the race, but was advised by his physician to remain indoors. The king's entry, Fox Earth, given little support in the betting, finished in the ruck.

Laurel Race Track, Oct. 12.

Dear Al:

Prosperity is moving around the corner if the popularity of the claiming box at Maryland race tracks is any indication. During the height of the depression, few and far between were the claims. Owners ran their horses in cheap races and kept their horses. But the horse that is "dropped down" these days is lead off to another barn. Yesterday A. L. Aste ran Character for $4,000 and there was a rush for the claiming box. Five individuals deposited the necessary certified check. In the draw for the crack sprinter, the Jersey Stable drew the lucky number. Two winners yesterday for the boy.

BILL.

First race—Bartering Kate did everything asked of her at Havre de Grace when she led her field from start to finish. This field appears to contain nothing of a menacing nature. Her works are good. Slipper King and Biff for the rest.

Second race—Park seems to be the class of this bad field of maidens. She ran a good race behind Zembla and has some fair trials to her credit. Golly and Dark Sister show some indications of good form and could be second and third.

Third race—Chatterdoo's last was a beaut. Went to the front and stayed there. Picks up a few pounds today, but is capable of handling it. Luculent is the possible surprise. Best races are on an off track. Knight's Hope to show.

Fourth race—Lone Hand will appreciate this longer route. Ran a better race than generally credited with in that recent effort. Worth an across-the-board backing. Everfair is the probable favorite and a dangerous horse. Did She for the show.

Fifth race—Believe and Holystone will battle it out for the major portion of this purse, it is my belief. Both have recent races under their belts. Time Off to take care of the others.

Sixth race—Fervid was raced into condition at Havre de Grace. Ran here the other day as a final tightener. Goes to the post today oiled, greased and ready to crack down. Aegis and Portden to complete the money circle.

Seventh race—Charlie K won his sprint here with neatness and dispatch. Asked to go a route here and should be a winner. Axenby and Come On are both sharp horses.

Caldwell's 67 Breaks 12-Year-Old Course Record

Bobby Jones Set Mark In 1921

Smashes by 4 Strokes Record Established by Bobby Jones.

Tops Field in Tourney at Columbia Club by Nine Shots.

ERNIE CALDWELL, 25-year-old Baltimore golfer, shot a spectacular 67, three below par, yesterday at Columbia Country Club in a tournament sponsored by the Maryland State Golf Association to smash by four strokes a 12-year-old amateur competitive record for the course established by Bobby Jones and later tied by Chick Evans and Chandler Harper.

Caldwell's round also tied the all-time city record, of which George Voigt, Miller B. Stevinson and Maury Nee are the cosharers, and equaled George Diffenbaugh's professional mark set in the 1932 Maryland State open.

It was Caldwell who carried Ross Somerville, 1932 National Amateur champion, to the twentieth hole in the second round of the blue ribbon classic at Cincinnati last month before losing to subpar golf.

Jones set the 71 mark in the 1921 National Open. Evans came along a few years later to equal it, and young Harper, the Virginia champion, tied it again during a playoff with Caldwell last August for the medal in the National Amateur sectional trials. Caldwell's score also equaled George Diffenbaugh's record for professionals.

Has One Bad Hole.

Giving an uncanny exhibition of driving, approaching and putting, the lanky Hillendale Club player with the lazy swing took the course apart on the first nine, which he negotiated in 32 blows, 3 below par. Caldwell had only one bad hole on this side. On the third, a 363-yarder, he was stymied by a tree on his drive, and it cost him a 5. But he coolly shot down his pars and birdies for the other eight holes.

He trundled in an 18-footer for a birdie 3 on the second, sank a 4-footer for a deuce on the short fourth, followed with a birdie 4 on the long fifth and scored his fourth birdie of the first nine on the 194-yard eighth.

Misses 3-Footer.

After starting back, 4—4, Caldwell's drive hit the rough on the twelfth, and he missed a 3-footer, taking a 6. He missed the green on the short thirteenth and took a 4. Then he ran down a 15-footer for a birdie 3 on the fourteenth and got his third deuce of the day on the tricky seventeenth.

Caldwell kept such a straight line all day that he was off the fairway only once, that time on the twelfth. He missed few greens and had only 27 putts for the round, nine being of the one-putt variety.

Leads Field by 9 Shots.

Caldwell's 67 easily won him first low gross prize, and was nine strokes better than his nearest rival. First low net went to Cooper Drewry, of Rolling Road, who had 78-6—72, while Spencer Overton, of Hillendale, who played with Caldwell during his epoch-making round, won second low net with 76-3—73.

Strib's Caution Topic of Pegler

artist who was paid as much as Willie got for his work to take at least a sporting chance. The patrons will make a slight allowance for a man who is physically frail for his class, such as Tommy Loughran or Jack Britton, but Stribling was a fine, strapping kid who had no need to ask any special consideration in a fight with any one. Yet, he was so long-headed in his punches by feinting his man out of position, he would save the punch and whip into one of his rough-house, wrenching clinches rather than let one fly. When a fighter does let one fly, even though the opening be there, he takes a certain small risk that he will miss the punch and be exposed to a counter-punch himself, Willie would not take even that chance.

Another Character.

But on a motorcycle or in an airplane, Stribling was quite another character. The chances are that any one beating in the ring will not leave a man much damaged who is as strong and stout as Willie Stribling was. So the worst injury that he was always so careful to avoid, even to the extent of marring his reputation in the ring and often defeating himself, was a black eye, a split brow or a broken nose. But on his motorcycle or in his plane his life was at stake and he gambled it with an abandon which you never would have expected in a man who shrunk so from a poke on the nose.

The most spectacular demonstration of this contempt for danger that he ever gave occurred one afternoon, when Schmeling was training amid the hearses, coffins and funeral wreaths of the district undertakers' convention in a little amusement park at Conneaut Lake, Pa., about 50 miles from Cleveland. On that afternoon, Stribling bounced away from a field at Cleveland in a rickety looking crate with Joe Koefoed, the sports writer, as his passenger, and flew over to Conneaut to impress Schmeling with his own devil-may-careness on the eve of a prize fight which meant much to both of them.

Roared Over Trees.

The plane dipped low, roaring over the trees which embowered Schmeling's training ring and pulled up quickly to come back and repeat the dive several times. Those present, thought they recognized Stribling, but he was going so fast that nobody there could be quite sure. There had seemed to be the yell of a voice from the ship but, what with the noise of the engine and the confusion, nobody could be certain of that either.

But a couple of hours later from Cleveland there came the word that Willie had flown his kite over the enemy's camp and had hollered down, "Hello, Max, I'll be seeing you in the ring." There is no doubt that Schmeling was impressed. The demonstration must have changed his opinion of Stribling considerably. But he was not intimidated any.

And a few nights later, when Stribling, for the first time, left off wrestling and clutching to punch for a heavyweight championship, he showed the people who had always thought he was shy that he could take cruel punishment and never flinch. He was on his feet with only a few seconds to go when George Blake stopped the fight, but he had been terribly beaten for six rounds and for once in his life, with his hands down and his strength gone, was in a position to be badly hurt by a punch of another man's fist.

Reminded by Parents.

Willie was the family diving and fortune after his parents abandoned their own career in the show business and devoted themselves to the handling and management of their son in the ring. They knew little about the prize-fight business when they started out, but Pa Stribling had been a trouper long enough to recognize prize-fighting as just an offshoot of the circus game. Willie was the family act, and Pa and Ma never let him forget that one punch on the chin, recklessly invited in order to win a few cheers from the customers, might ruin the act.

Willie was devoted to the family, and he played safe in the ring, probably against his natural inclination, which was daring and boisterous, because he never forgot that he was the family's business asset.

Even in the prize-fight business not many people knew that Willie once pulled away from his Pa and Ma and set out to go it alone. He did. And his Pa told him to get going and not to come back to him until he was ready to do business as they had always done business, with Pa the absolute boss. Willie pined wretchedly for a while, then he went back to his Pa and Ma, and from the day of his first fight until his last one no fight manager of the hundreds who would have liked to drop a halter over Willie and estrange him from his family ever got a piece of Willie.

The Head Pin

PAULINE FORD made her bow in the Ladies' District Bowling League last night and carved out a high game of 137, a set of 366, to lead Arcadia to a clean sweep over Bill Wood.

Rendezvous, paced by Catherine Fortney's 124, took three from Meyer Davis. Petworth won two from Georgetown, and Lucky Strike, with Lorraine Gulli shooting a 351 set, turned back Convention Hall in two games. Recreation lost to Columbia, in two, Marie Whalen, of the latter team, splitting the pins for a 345 set.

Morgan's 141 featured play in the Civics Club League at Arcadia, Moran's 360 won him high set. Civitans, with 565, took high team game honors, while high team set went to the Optimists with 1,585.

In the Dynamite League, Woodcock and Reichgut tied for high game with 121 each, while Weishbach reeled off a 333 for high set prize. The Dubs cleaned up with a 530 team game and 1,515 set.

Madden, of W. B. Hibbs, shot 151 and 398, to steal the show in the Bankers League. His team also copped honors with 595 and 1,674.

Reeling off a set of 410 in the Recreation League last night, Hokie Smith went to the front in the "400" set race among the topnotchers with four to his credit for the embryo season. With 160 as his high single effort, Hokie added generously to the 664 game and 1,854 team total, both season records, which the Bearcats chalked up in downing Kris Delicatessen twice.

Two season records in the Electrical League today stand to the credit of Ernie Warren, of the E. B. Warren Club. His 154 game and 382 top all previous high marks for this year's campaign.

The betting took place in a poolroom near the track. None of the betters was permitted to pass in or out during the races. One plunger found a way to beat them. He staged a lookout on a parapet overlooking the track. He hired a band to play on the street outside the poolhoom every afternoon.

The lookout would flash the result of the race to the band leader. The band would strike up a certain tune that the plunger inside the poolroom could interpret as the winning horse. His money was bet after the race was run, unbeknown to Honest John Kelly, the poolroom operator, who would not receive the flash on the winner until some minutes later.

The fixers can't get away with that any more, but they are a resourceful crew. As long as there are races, there will be fixers.

Howard U. Will Open Season on Saturday

Howard University will open its season Saturday at its stadium, opposing St. Paul in an C. I. A. A. game starting at 2:30 o'clock.

The team was hard hit by graduation and five berths on the Bison's starting line-up will be filled by newcomers, and very likely one or two will be freshmen. Coach Tom Verdell has worked the squad hard this week in an attempt to uncover suitable material.

Hagerty Uses New Kicker Saturday

Callahan, Lineman, to Boot for G. U. in Manhattan Game.

FOR the first time since 1927 a lineman will attend to the kicking duties for Georgetown when it opposes Manhattan Saturday at New York. Capt. Fred Callahan, 6-foot, 200-pound center, is the lad who will fill the role, and from all indications fill it well.

Callahan was selected by Coach Jack Hagerty from a group of five candidates. A replacement was necessary because of an injury to Mack Stanley, regular kicker. The big center gets his punts away fast and they sail high and far. Hagerty virtually had decided to let Callahan do the booting until Stanley regained his stride. Stanley got off good punts consistently against Canisius in a driving rain.

Freshmen in Scrimmage.

Armed with Manhattan plays, the freshmen went through a stiff scrimmage with the varsity at the Hilltop yesterday, and came off second best. The varsity completely stopped the running plays and succeeded in batting down a majority of the forward passes.

Hagerty lectured the squad before putting it through its paces. "We must win," he said. "If any of you fellows are going to New York with the idea of losing I want you to stay at home. We can beat Manhattan and we're going to do it."

Dick Murphy reported yesterday for the first time in three weeks. A regular end, Murphy was lost to the team early in the season when stricken with influenza. He lost 15 pounds during his confinement.

St. John's Defeats Emerson, 7 to 0

McGorlick Falls on Blocked Kick for Touchdown.

St. John's opened its grid season yesterday afternoon by defeating Emerson on the Tidal Basin field, 7-0. The Johnnies swept down the field early in the third period to the 1-yard line. The institute lads took the ball on downs, but on the first play, Capt. Jack Dixon crashed through to block the kick and Reds McGorlick fell on the ball for the score. Dal Walton kicked the point

Mrs. Small Is Victor In Cumberland Golf

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 11 (Spl.).—Mrs. Fred T. Small won the women's fall golf championship of the Cumberland Country Club by defeating Mrs. Walter C. Capper, 3 and 2, in the finals of the first flight of the tournament. She had a medal score of 92 for the 18 holes, while Mrs. Capper's card was 99.

Mrs. John Schwarzenbach won the third flight of the tournament by defeating Mrs. Mary G. Beneman in the nineteenth hole.

The winner in the second flight will be decided this week when Mrs. Arthur P. Dixon meets Mrs. Lloyd J. Lanich. Mrs. Dixon reached the finals by downing Mrs. Howard L. Tolson, while Mrs. Lanich won over Mrs. H. E. Martin.

The fixers can't get away with that any more, but they are a resourceful crew. As long as there are races, there will be fixers.

Gonzaga, Roosevelt Will Battle Today

Gonzaga's second test against a District public high eleven is scheduled today when it meets Roosevelt in the Gonzaga stadium. The kickoff is slated for 3:30 o'clock.

Last Friday Central defeated the Catholic eleven, 28-0. Meanwhile, the Ruf Riders have failed to impress in either one of their battles to date. They tied Emerson, 6-6, and last week were jolted, 20-0, by Swavely at Manassas.

Roosevelt will be pitted against one of the classiest lads in local scholastic circles in Mal Luebkirk, whose sensational kicking and ball toting borders close to collegiate proportions.

Pass Defense Stressed In Drill at V. M. I.

Lexington, Va., Oct. 11 (AP).—Anticipating an aerial attack in Saturday's game with Davidson, V. M. I. devoted a large part of today's football practice to its pass defense.

Later in scrimmage with the freshmen, Dick Dodson, fullback, and Gene Venable, sub halfback, ripped off substantial gains. Billy Smith, quarterback, was in the lineup but took no part in the rough work.

Navy Coach Lays Stress On Passes

Squad of 43 Players to Depart Today for Battle Scene.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11 (Spl.).—Rip Miller, Navy's head football coach, abandoned plans for a scrimmage session in a final hard prep for the Pittsburgh game Saturday, preferring to take no chances of having any of the first liners laid up by injuries with such an important engagement at hand.

Instead, Miller and his assistants carried their charges through an extensive drill in signals and formations, and also devoted considerable attention to individual instruction on defensive play in the line, for the Panthers are expected to present the strongest forward wall of anything the Tars have encountered so far. A dummy scrimmage against the Plebes also was staged.

Passing Is Stressed.

Christy Flanagan, back field mentor, gave his undivided attention to drilling what is now being termed the strongest back field group at this stage, based upon showings against Mercer and William and Mary. It consists of Reds Baumberger and Buzz Borries, half backs; Bill Clark, full back, and "Sonny" Lee, calling signals. Bud Slack and Larry Becht alternated in directing the play of another group that had Rankin and Walkup at the halves and Larson, full back. During the workouts the backs filled the air with passes and had a protracted rehearsal of sweeping end plays. Unless some unexpected weakness is found in the Pitt line, the Tars are not expected to direct much of their attack to the quarter, but will endeavor to get their running and passing offensive functioning to the bewilderment of the enemy.

Plans for the trip to Pittsburgh were completed today. The squad of 43 players, together with athletic officials, coaches and attendants, will leave tomorrow night at 9:30. The players will be conveyed to the quiet surroundings of Shady Side Academy, and a final workout will be held Friday afternoon. Official Navy headquarters for the game will be at the William Penn Hotel.

Middies Won't Attend.

The Pitt game is one of three big contests to be played away that will not be attended by the regiment of Mirshipmen, because of interference with academic routine and expense involved, but plans have been made by the athletic association to receive a running story of the game, which will be broadcast to the Middies and local fans at intervals during the annual contest with the Navy Plebes and Kiskiminetas School, of Saltsburg, Pa. The Plebes, by the way, regard Kiski as their main grid rival. Last year was the first time in 10 that the Middies yearlings succeeded in taking the measure of the Pennsylvanians.

Two other sport contests are scheduled for home fields. It was announced today that a football game between Catholic University freshmen and Navy's Squad B players had been arranged, and the Navy soccer team will open its season with Lehigh.

Genaro and Davis To Meet Tuesday

To Fight at Portner's on Opening Night.

Ring wise, battle scarred Mickey Genaro last night was added to the card for opening night at Portner's Arena next Tuesday. He will meet Roddy Davis, pride of Frankie Mann's stable, in an 8-round semifinal to the Sarron-Burl scrap. The latter will be over the 10-round route.

Genaro has found favor with the fans since his arrival in this vicinity. Only one defeat has been charged to him in a local fight, and Petey Sarron was the one who defeated him. Genaro holds decisions over Tony Lopez and "Pepper" Young and a draw with Earnie Caesar.

Davis still rates with the best in his class hereabouts, despite that pasting handed him by Maxie Koshover. The lad obviously must meet better company if he is to mount the fistic ladder, and Genaro will be a good beginning.

20 Motorcycle Riders To Compete at Wheaton

Hill-climbing motorcycle riders from various sections of the Nation will compete in the second annual event of the National Capital Motorcycle Club to be staged on Sunday at Wheaton, Md. Twenty riders are expected to fill the fields for five events.

Both amateur and professional riders will compete. For local amateurs, a special Class C event has been scheduled to provide for stock motors. Chief among the professional riders to appear are Bernard Thamm, of Baltimore, and Woodsie Castonguay, of Springfield, Mass., the winner last year.

Semifinals Scheduled In Perkins Plate Golf

The semifinal round of the Perkins Plate Golf Tournament at Chevy Chase has been reached. H. R. Stanford is scheduled to meet Gen. C. B. Drake, while Gen. Robert H. Allen will engage Walter G. Peter.

Stanford eliminated D. C. Shanks, 4 and 3. Col. Frank R. Keefer bowed to Gen. Drake 3 and 2. Gen. Allen defeated C. V. Wheeler, 2 up, and Peter upset Admiral McVay, 3 and 1.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Ordeal.

The pilgrim seats himself at last and contemplates his rancid past. This is the ordeal of the old, this looking backward to behold the bonehead blunders and the crimes pulled off in misty, bygone times. Perhaps there's here and there a wight who views his record with delight, who has improved the passing days, and always walked in godly ways, and loved his neighbor as himself, and kept the harpoon on the shelf. But often man's with grief o'ercast when he looks back upon the past, recalling many grievous tricks, including deals in gilded bricks, and promises deferred, delayed and confidence he has betrayed, and many a fierce and phoney game, the thought of which occasions shame. He sighs, "I'd give some 40 bones if I'd played fair with Abner Jones; I didn't treat that neighbor right, his ghost pursues me day and night. My conduct there I can't indorse; I sold that man a spavined horse, and told him it was good and sound, without a blemish to be found. I thought that I was acting smart when thus I broke that good man's heart; I told the tales with jest and jeer to all my cronies who were near. It was a thing to brag about, this beating of a harmless scout. But now that I am old and gray, how bitterly I rue the day when thus I told in gladsome tones of how I bilked poor Abner Jones." Thus many old men, sad and sore, recall the musty deeds of yore, and vow they'd give their wedding rings if they had never done such things.

"Fish Special" Toots to Town; Birds Ride In

'Cock of the Rock' Proves So Cagey at Zoo, He's Caged by Himself.

The "Cock of the Rock" is a South American fowl—so called because it nests on rocks. It is unique in that the males gather together for little dancing affairs—a feature of the mating season.

Sent to Solitary Cell.

None of the new arrivals so far has show any proclivity for dancing, but one of the males was so belligerent he was placed in a cage by himself. The males are a brilliant orange and the females commonplace black and gray.

The fishes, a large collection, were greeted by Fred Orsinger, in charge of the Department of Commerce aquarium; Charles Jackson, deputy commissioner of fisheries, and Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia.

The finny addition to the aquarium had the privilege of riding from Chicago in the world's only Pullman car for fish.

The car, made expressly for the Shedd Memorial Aquarium, of Chicago, is equipped to carry any kind of fish under any conditions.

All the Comforts of Home.

Tanks and pumps are so arranged that the car can be used to carry either fresh or salt water fish or half a car of each. A refrigeration plant permits transportation of cold water fish.

The fishes, which will augment the present Commerce exhibit, were stored at the Chicago aquarium after collection by Midwest stations of the Bureau of Fisheries.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Capillary Twigs.

One of the recent advances in medical science is the improvement in methods of examining the blood vessels and especially the capillaries. By means of low power microscopes and not very powerful lenses the capillary loops underneath the fingernails can be studied. As a rule the nail structure is fairly transparent and permits of study of the small blood vessels beneath them. The skin of the upper surface of the fingers near the nails is also fairly transparent. Small threadlike blood vessels can be seen beneath it. These can be studied by means of moderately magnifying lenses. Up to date not very much of practical value has been discovered, but the study of such capillary twigs tells us something and opens a door through which eventually we should discover much.

The small capillary twigs that can be seen in some cases of so-called drunkard's nose can be studied in the same way. However, the skin of the nose is too thick to permit of wholly satisfying study of these twigs.

It is considered that in most cases such twigs on the nose mean indigestion or some other abdominal disorder. In most cases they indicate that the person who has them should quit drinking alcoholic beverages, quit eating rich foods, and should change his eating habits as well as his diet.

Capillary twigs on the cheeks are generally ascribed to exposure to wind, rain, and sleet. Capillary twigs in the skin lying over an internal organ may be due to some disorder of the organ. Not infrequently such twigs are found in the skin around a joint showing arthritis. Why they appear as they so frequently do under the skin of the thighs I do not know.

The eye is even more transparent than the fingernails and the skin of the tops of the fingertips. Eye specialists examine the retina for evidence of disease in the blood vessels. If a person has much arteriosclerosis in the vessels of other parts of the body the blood vessels of the retina are expected to give evidence of the fact. The course of arteriosclerosis as it progresses can nearly always be satisfactorily watched by means of retinal examination.

One of the newer tools at the service of physicians is a special microscope or enlarging lens that eye specialists use to study the blood vessels and cells of the front part of the eyeball.

Three diseases that are attracting much attention in recent years are Buerger's disease, Raynaud's disease, and gangrene occuring during the course of diabetes. Some part of each is due to disease of the walls of the blood vessels, principally of the lower legs. Some of it is due to spasmodic contractions of the muscles in these vessel walls.

Anniversary Party Planned by Shoreham

L. Gardner Moore, managing director of the Shoreham Hotel, announced yesterday that the hostelry will celebrate the third anniversary of its opening October 30.

An increase of $110,247 in gross earnings for the year ended October 1, over the preceding year, was noted.

Radio Waves and Ripples

THIS department is pretty excited over what is supposed to happen over both N. B. C. chains today.

First, there is the third annual Women's Conference on Current Problems occupying most of the late morning and afternoon broadcast of one or the other of the N. B. C. outlets here. Leading feminists in this country, Italy and England will be heard before the day's out. Mrs. Roosevelt is the American broadcaster at 4:30, WRC. Ishbel MacDonald speaks for England and from London at 2:45 through the same station. "Women Under the Fascist Rule" is to be delivered from Rome by Countess Margherita Sarfatti at 12:15, WRC. WMAL will air more international broadcasting by Ruth Bryan Owen, also from London at 11:15 a. m.

Walter Lippman, Theodore Roosevelt, Col. Henry Breckinridge, Dr. Harold Rug and Y. M. C. A. Secretary Francis Harmon are among the male radioers.

Second cause for excitement is offered somewhat more timorously. It is over Charles Hackett, this department's favorite American tenor, listed to sing as guest artist on the Knights of Columbus Day program at such times as Supreme Knight Martin Carmody is not speaking. The program has WRC's 12:45 spot.

Whitecaps.

WOL—Henry Therrian, operatic tenor, 7 p. m.; wrestling matches, 9:30 p. m. WJSV—Eddie Dooley, sports reviewer, 6:30 p. m.; Elmer Everett Yess, serial play, 8 p. m.; Isham Jones' Orchestra, 11:30 p. m. WRC—Charles Hackett, tenor, Columbus day program guest artist, 12:45 p. m.; Mrs. Roosevelt addressing third annual Women's Conference on "Current Problems," 4:30 p. m.; Al Jolson, Paul Whiteman, 10 p. m. WMAL—Ruth Bryan Owen, addressing Women's Conference on "Current Problems" from London, 11:15 a. m.; Stanley Baldwin, "In Defense of the National Government," from London, 4:15 p. m.; Echoes of the Palisades, 10:30 p. m.

The WRC minds yesterday were huddled over ideas for a big Lum and Abner show Friday night.

One idea called for the engaging of Washington Auditorium, seating capacity 6,000.

Another had to do with selection of 12 acts from WRC's local show talent to help Lum and Abner put on the kind of performance the minds calculate will be needed to keep 6,000 people in their seats.

What the minds want is a three-hour show, from 9 to 11 p. m., the last half hour of which would go on the air through WRC as the Lum and Abner regular Friday night broadcast. The Capital show people would work hardest before the broadcast, possibly with the assistance of Jerome Mann, impersonator of radio performers. Their radio efforts would be brief and adapted to the Lum and Abner wedding continuity.

If everything goes through in accordance with the minds' ideas a lot of people are expected to be made conscious of a certain make of automobile when they call for their tickets at dealers' offices here. That's the biggest idea.

Hollywood's Irene Dunne (left) is listed for Nation-wide singing and acting in an N. B. C. broadcast Wednesday night. Planet plotter is Elaine Melchoir when she works for Columbia as Ardala in the Buck Rogers serial.

Columbia's weekly network broadcasting of WJSV's Elder Michaux Saturday night has been moved from 8:15 to 9 p. m. for a half hour.

The reason is the CBS brains figure the Elder the most likely competitor of NBC Funnyman Jack "Baron Munchausen" Pearl, who last Saturday returned to radioing on the same period.

Not a few of the minds are skeptical of the ultimate success of the Elmer Everett Yess program, Columbia's new play serial. They admit Elmer (Hal Dawson) is more than mildly funny at times, but they're afraid his appeal is mostly masculine. Women have a lot to do with auto sales, you know.

The Wilkins Surprise Show henceforth will be broadcast Monday nights instead of on Wednesday, because most of the people Announcer Trout will interview will be stage people, who believe a radio "plug" early in the week a very salutary influence on box office receipts.

WOL has rigged up an, illuminated board for keeping its football broadcasters straight on the players who do big things for George Washington football this fall.

It's a board with translucent glass and small electric lights. The players' names are on the glass. The lights are wired to switches for flashing when some one makes a tackle.

John Watts, new WOL announcer, will work the switches; Ted Ostenkamp will watch the ball carrier and look at the lights when he wants to know the tackler's name.

The idea is not particularly new. Columbia and N. B. C. football radioers have used devices with multicolored lights for telling the announcers all manner of things. But mostly they were confusing.

WOL feels its way is simpler.

Newsman J. Fred Essary replaced William Hard on WMAL last night. The minds assured this department that the replacement was only temporary and that it might have been right after all about George Holmes taking over Hard's job permanently.

The Johnson speech on WMAL Tuesday night ran 13 minutes overtime right into the Crime Club. The minds thought it just as well to let him go right on radioing. The only time they can't cut the mike is when "The Star-Spangled Banner" is being played.

WRC takes up regular radioing from the Heigh Ho Club Friday night at 11:30. The Pete Macias play spot also is to be aired Tuesday nights at 11.

Health and Happiness on WMAL program schedules doesn't mean that the Lone Star Cowboys are off the air. It just means that the sponsors like the old title of their program better, even if the new one is live hillbilly talent of electrical transcriptions.

100 Employes In U. S. Field Work Dropped

Nealy 100 field employes of the Veterans' Administration, who were transferred to the Department of Justice on September 10, were dropped Tuesday, when their temporary appointments expired, it was said yesterday.

All of the 40 Washington employes transferred were kept on at Justice, it was reported. Further cuts for field employes are in prospect. Some of those retained Tuesday were given only 30-day appointments, which means they may be dropped November 10.

By the terms of the reorganization order, 273 field employes and 40 Washington workers in the legal division of the Veterans' Administration were transferred. "About one-third" of the field workers were dropped, Justice officials said. The Washington employes included 16 attorneys and 24 clerks and stenographers.

An attempt to halt the practice of putting transferred employes on a temporary basis will be made by the American Federation of Government Employes, E. Claude Babcock, president of the federation, said yesterday. All employes in consolidated units are automatically dropped from the service, but several thousand of them have been given temporary appointments pending selection of those to be kept permanently. These workers on a temporary basis are not allowed either annual or sick leave.

Mr. Babcock's statement was made after he talked to Arno B. Cammerer, head of the Office of Public Parks, Buildings and Reservations. More than 3,000 employes of the office, most of them in Washington, are on a temporary basis as a result of the reorganization.

Show of Amateur Photos Arranged

Contest Will Be Held at C. of C. Exposition.

Washington's amateur photographers will have another opportunity to compete for prizes when the Master Photo Finishers Association holds its second annual exhibit, October 23 to 28, in conjunction with the ninth annual industrial exposition of the Washington Chamber of Commerce in the Washington Auditorium.

The exhibit of about 2,000 photos here will send its best work to compete for national prizes at Cincinnati in November.

Red Cross Announces Need for Volunteers

Volunteers to assist the American Red Cross in making bandages and dressings were asked yesterday by Miss G. S. Wright, chairman of the surgical dressing division of the District of Columbia Chapter.

The dressings are for use in local hospitals. Persons interested in aiding may call the chapter house on Monday, Wednesday or Friday from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. The telephone number is National 1910.

Watchman Slugged By 3 in Wood Theft

Slugged by three colored youths he caught stealing wood from a construction company lot at Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue early yesterday, Joseph Finallo, 45, a night watchman, was injured seriously.

First Precinct police arrested John Hines, colored, 17; Thomas Church, colored, 18, and Leroy Merrick, colored, 16, all of 204 Seaton court southeast. Finallo suffered concussion of the brain. His condition is undetermined.

Earliest Humans Shunned Caves, Says Dr. Hrdlicka

Dwelt in Open at First, and Took to Caverns as Climate Cooled.

The "cave man" was a modern.

Current and popular opinion that the most distant of human ancestors was a dweller of caves was shattered yesterday.

Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology of the Smithsonian Institution, declared the practice of dwelling in caves was by no means general until quite a late stage in human development.

After an analysis of 360 sites in Europe and Asia, where remains of early man have been found in the last century, Dr. Hrdlicka finds that earliest man was essentially a dweller in the open.

The cave man is identified most frequently with the grotesque Neanderthal race, which preceded the present species during the so-called Mousterian period. Yes, Dr. Hrdlicka finds that only a little more than half of the Neanderthal dwellings were in caverns.

"There is a prevalent idea," the Smithsonian scientist said, "that Neanderthal man was essentially a cave dweller, and this idea seems generally to carry with it a sense of inferiority.

"The records now available show that man begins essentially as a dweller in the open, but as the climate cools he gradually takes more and more to the caves."

"Y" Exercise Keeps Men Fit For Business

The problem of the business man, how to keep healthy without reducing business activity, is the first question to be met in The Post-Y. M. C. A. "Keep Healthy Week," beginning today. The week will continue through October 19, during which time the Central "Y" will offer its facilities free of charge.

Regular gym classes, the Y. M. C. A. believes, are the best means of meeting the need of some physical activity for the man over 30. Classes at noon, in the afternoon and at evening make it possible to fit such a program into most any man's day.

Such workouts consist of a short warming up exercises, calisthenic drills—free hand, dumb bell, pulley weight, wand and medicine ball, given with rhythmic music—and games such as volley ball and indoor baseball. It is possible, the "Y" says, to attend one of these classes, get a good all-round workout, a shower and swim, all in one hour.

Seasonal exercises such as golf are insufficient to carry the business man through the year, it is pointed out. Regular exercise is the one means of maintaining a healthy body and preventing ragged nerves and lost efficiency. The picture of the business man, who spends years developing his mind so that he has reached a responsible position and is then forced to spend most of his later life taking "cures" is called one of the saddest possible.

Regular gym classes result in vigorous perspiration, step-up of the respiratory system and the circulatory system, normalization of the blood pressure and improvement of the chemical content of the blood, building up of a defense against disease and the development of a better digestion.

Each day of the campaign The Post will publish a coupon on which applicants for the free course in regular recreation may register. Clip the coupon, sign your name and address, and present it at the Central Y. M. C. A. headquarters, 1736 G street northwest.

Liquor Arrests Here Increase

Police Take 5,247 in 3 Months; 3,920 in 1932; 234 Were Women.

The number of arrests for drunkenness in the District has been increasing the past three months.

According to a report submitted yesterday to Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown, intoxication arrests have jumped from 1,484 in July to 2,023 in September, and indications are that October will surpass even that mark.

Arrests for the three-month period total 5,247, against 3,920 during the corresponding period in 1932. Of the number arrested this year, 234 were women, including 61 between 17 and 21, and two under 16.

Meanwhile, the police vice squad reports liquor seizures have fallen off. During the nine months in 1932 44,000 quarts of spirits were taken from liquor "runners" and "speakeasies." This year only 37,000 quarts have been confiscated.

NRA Help to Negro Explained Tonight

Police Arrest Theft Suspect, Lose Own Car

Elusive Louis Means, 15, long sought as an automobile theft suspect, finally was caught; but not before one of his accomplices stole the automobile of policemen sent to arrest him.

For months, police said, they sought to arrest him. He always outran them. Less than two weeks ago, he evaded a cordon of 50 policemen near Seventeenth and Kilborne streets northwest. Shots fired at him only gave impetus to his sprints.

The arrests of William Jones, 18, of 1669 Irving street northwest, and Chester McPherson, of 1725 Kilborne place northwest, led finally to the arrest of Means, and the discovery of eight stolen cars hidden in Maryland.

When someone took an automobile from the garage of John S. Scaffhausen, at 1662 Irving street northwest, suspicion was directed at Jones and McPherson. They admitted, according to police, they and Means took the car.

Patrolman J. S. Duley, of the Tenth Precinct, yesterday went to Piscataway, Md., to arrest Means. He fought the officers. While they tried to subdue him, the policemen's automobile disappeared.

After a search of several hours the officers found their automobile hidden in the woods with eight other stolen cars.

Means was placed in the Receiving Home. He will be returned to the Maryland House of Correction, from which he escaped several months ago. The others were released in the custody of their parents.

Firemen Ask Rule Over Promotions

Leaders Should Come Up From Ranks, They Say.

Promotion of all executives in the District Fire Department from the ranks will be advocated at a meeting of the City Firefighters Association of Washington at a meeting, 8 o'clock tonight, at the Hamilton Hotel.

Association representatives said practical experience was a prerequisite of leadership in the Fire Department, and that only from the ranks of the firemen could such leadership be obtained.

An entertainment will be given after the meeting. Jesse M. Jamieson, president, will preside.

Mrs. Edey Heads Girl Scouts.
